Publishing online since 2013, offline & Tor since 2017.

Stormer

Now in print because the (((internet))) is censorship!

The most censored publication in history

Vol. 43, 10–17 Jun 2018 | Daily Stormer Sunday Edition | Samizdat!

The Intercept ran a cartoon this week captioned "Happy Father's Day to U.S. Border Patrol agents." In it, a little girl is being carried through the front door of an American home, flag proudly displayed. The little girl asks, "Did you take any kids from their mommies and daddies today?" The father replies, "So many, pumpkin! I'll tell you all about it over dinner."

Though it was ran by a Jew outlet with a sneer, I couldn't help but view it with the kind of teary-eyed yearning one feels when watching television or reading magazines from the 1950s. This is an idealized version of the American family. I could only dream of being a part of a family as great as this, and knowing that I have been unjustly denied such a childhood fills me with a rage that only the blood of those responsible and their children can possibly quench.

We live in an era where we were betrayed by our fathers. The generations before us gleefully immersed themselves in self-destructive pursuits. An unbroken chain of white European civilization since the dawn of time was suddenly severed by the malice of its beneficiaries. I was born surrounded by the dissolute and foreign, so much that I was made to feel a stranger in my childhood household, and driven to be a stateless refugee in adulthood. Searching for the reasons that my fathers and their fathers could do such a thing, I found only the lyrics to John Lennon's Imagine.

A country's men are supposed to celebrate with joy the punishment of foreign invaders. A father is supposed to celebrate it with his children. Instead our fathers cheered as their own sons and daughters had their birthrights stolen. Portrayals of perfect families are run in mockery by Jewish owned media like Greenwald's Intercept. Our fathers taught us nothing as we grew. Our fathers leave us nothing as they die. I can say with certainty that my own is a traitor to his own nation and people.

Millennials are the first generation looking at the slope downward. We have no hope for the future. It is generally acknowledged that our lives are to be infinitely more miserable than those that came before. Real wages have declined consistently for decades. There will be no happiness or prosperity for us. We are left with the pieces of the chain that came before, and it is the responsibility of us and those that come after us to reforge the link to the ancient world that our fathers severed. After we hang the traitors from overpasses, hopefully we will commit to be better fathers.

Follow Andrew Anglin on GAB for the latest news and site updates: https://gab.ai/AndrewAnglin

Sections

1. Featured Stories 3
2. World 30
3. United States 54
4. Jewish Problem 77
5. Race War 84
6. Society 91
7. Insight 99

Surface web: `dailystormer.name` Deep web: `dstormer6em3i4km.onion`

The Daily Stormer is non-profit and 100% reader-supported. We do what we do because we are attempting to preserve Western Civilization. We do it out of love.

Because the website and this Sunday Edition are not monetized, we require contributions from readers to pay the expenses involved.

PayPal (and everything else known to man) has banned this site and me as an individual person from using their services, so right now all we have is bitcoin.

Daily Stormer's Bitcoin address:

19m9yEChBSPuzCzEMmg1dNbPvdLdWA59rS

Sunday Edition BTC: `1NsNmzzXtqiZ4YStnYWaEgCauWBGBs2iqB`

The Guild as space Jews—they are conspiring with the Bene Gesserit to remove Paul from the throne in order to push their own agenda, apparently because they feel the power concentration is too great for them to be safe. They play all sides of the situation in order that they might amass wealth, and they manipulate by controlling trade.

But yes, the Bene Gesserit have the whole "Tikun Olam" thing going on, dictating the direction of civilization by attacking themselves to the ruling class through marriage. And the Jew itself is often characterized as fundamentally feminine in nature.

—Andrew Anglin

Featured Stories

Self-Help Sunday: You Must Forgive Your Boomer Parents

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

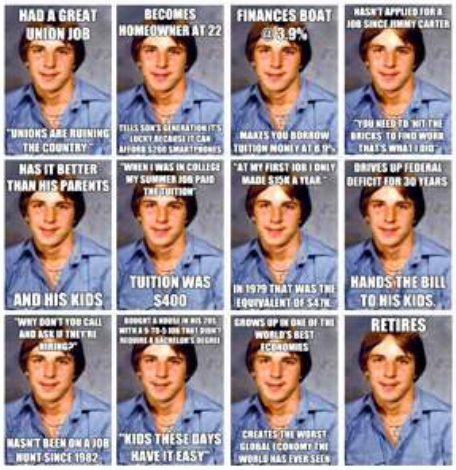
This is a Special Father's Day Self-Help Sunday for all my Millennial and Gen X bros with Baby Boomer parents.

A boomer, for those younger amongst you who do not exactly know the specifics, is a person who was a teenager in the period between the mid sixties and the mid seventies, and experienced the height of the post-war Jewish cultural revolutions in the West.

This is only a phenomenon in America and Western Europe. Eastern Europeans do not have this thing.

We talk a lot about boomers on this site. Because they are the first generation of people who gave up what was a hitherto unbroken chain of cultural transference. They did not pass the torch that was passed to them to their children. They did not teach us the values that their parents taught them.

They are defined by their selfishness, which is combined with a lack of self-awareness, which makes it almost cartoonish.



There was a comment on the Stormer forum about boomer parents— responding to an article I wrote about Boomers —which made an impression on me.

I shall post it in full.

As a child, my boomer sperm donor and my incubator, ie, "parents," told me that I didn't understand them because I was too young, that when I got older I'd be like them.

Well, I'm now older than they were when they said this nonsense to me, and contrary to their assertions, today I disagree with them more than I did as a "child."

At the age of 11 I had already surpassed the maturity level of every single boomer in my life. Being mature though, I thought that my observations were hubris, though I did not know that word, and my parents' assertions seemed very plausible; I was 11, how could I have outgrown them?

Thus I made the biggest mistake of my life.

I listened to these fucking monsters.

It's taken me decades to undo the damage of listening to my parents and to get back to the level of maturity I had when I was 11, and to then build on that original foundation.

My parents lives have been a Groundhog Day for 60 years.

It's all about enjoyment. It's all about what THEY are entitled to for THEIR suffering. They worked so hard, _____ is their only joy in life. How dare anyone suggest that they not indulge. They EARNED it!!!

My parents are sneaking up on 70.

Their days are the same as when they were 30.

Lottery tickets, soda, cigarettes, 8 hours of TV a day, eating out, taking trips, and most disgustingly, trying to get laid.

They are walking caricatures of what they think young people should act like.

This is their empty, wasted existence.

And it would not necessarily be enough for me to absolutely despise them.
I despise them because of their utter lack of awareness and ownership of any single fault in their dead lives.

My parents have the fucking gall to complain about how THEY miss family get togethers and holidays.

Once my grandparents died, suddenly there were no more events. No more family dinners. No more reunions. No more big holiday dinners.

My parents have the breathtaking GALL to whine about missing grandma's cooking.

Who the fuck are these assholes?!?!

My grandparents tried and tried and tried to hand off to my worthless shithead parents the torch. My grandmother was singlehandedly making dinners for 20 people up into her late 60's. She TRIED to teach her children, but they couldn't be bothered.

When she realized the kind of man I was going to be, she took me under her wing and taught me what she could in the little time left to her.

To this day I'm the best cook I know thanks to the few lessons she taught me as a child.

I HATE you boomers so much that you should be able to feel it through time and space.

I utterly despise you fucking shits, not for your messes, not for your hedonism, not for your arrogance, or your congenital inability to admit fault, no.

I hate you all for the knowledge you refused to accept.

I fucking HATE you God damn mother fuckers for never bothering to learn how my grandmother made pies.

If that was the sole sin of you worthless fucking sacks of shit, it would be enough to guarantee a one way ticket to Hell.

You lost beauty.

> It was handed to you, and you tossed it aside for a cigarette and a blowjob.
>
> Boomers. You fuckers are going to burn in Hell.

So, we shall unpack it.

Firstly and most importantly, all of that I do understand. And all of us with boomer parents can relate. Many of us perhaps have not thought about it, and just assumed that this is the way parents behave with their children. But you can think this through—if parents had always behaved that way with their children, society would have collapsed.

That is not sustainable. If generations treated their children like this, society would collapse. It is now collapsing.

But here's the thing.

Here's the thing and it's Father's Day and it's a good day for the thing.

I don't like to get personal, but I have boomer parents. And I had this anger. Same anger.

It was firstly about that they did, objectively, put their own personal "happiness" before the wellbeing of their children. This is a very difficult thing to understand. And it is certainly something that makes a person angry when they realize it.

But, like the quoted post, the real anger comes from the fact that they are unwilling to admit that they did anything wrong.

But here's the real thing: they are unable to understand that they did anything wrong. They are incapable of grasping the core concept that something they did to feel good could be wrong, because it is hardwired into them that life is a math equation of good feelings.

If you try to break this down, the boomer will simply become confused. There are some that you will see even in the comments sections of neon-nazi websites, getting confused.

That is the mind of the boomer.

Individuals and Society

You cannot stay mad.

You must forgive.

Because an individual lives in a society.

And every single baby boomer did the same thing. They all have this virus of the mind, where they are incapable of reflecting on themselves and their own behavior. Incapable of viewing themselves as having done something wrong.

And if they were all doing the same thing, that it cannot be the fault of any single individual among them. They were caught in a wave, a movement of the entire society itself.

So being angry at an individual does not make sense. Well, being angry as a human response makes sense, but staying angry, when you are able to understand it on an intellectual level, does not.

It is a sad thing that our parents did not do what they were supposed to do. It is sad that they did not give us values, or religion, or culture.

It is sad that they gave us horrible advice or no direction at all.

It is sad that they let all of these brown people in, that they sent all the jobs overseas, that they accepted homosexuality, that they normalized casual sex.

It is sad that they are unable to understand what they did, and it is sad that they instead blame their children and claim that there is something wrong with us—that we are "entitled" (a buzzword they use which doesn't have any clear meaning).

It is all very sad.

But this was a sociological phenomenon. It was not the result of decisions by individuals, and it certainly was not the fault of your individual parents.

It's our job to deal with it, to fix it.

We should understand what the boomers did.

But the emotion should be pity rather than anger.

Imagine knowing so little, and being so incapable of analyzing yourself that you believe you know everything. Imagine what a miserable state that must be.

So, forgive mom.

Forgive dad.

Give dad a call today, and tell him thanks for what he did. Even if it wasn't much. He is your father, and without him you wouldn't even exist.

Life is the greatest gift.

Life is the gift of the fight.

The struggle.

To be is the most important thing of all.

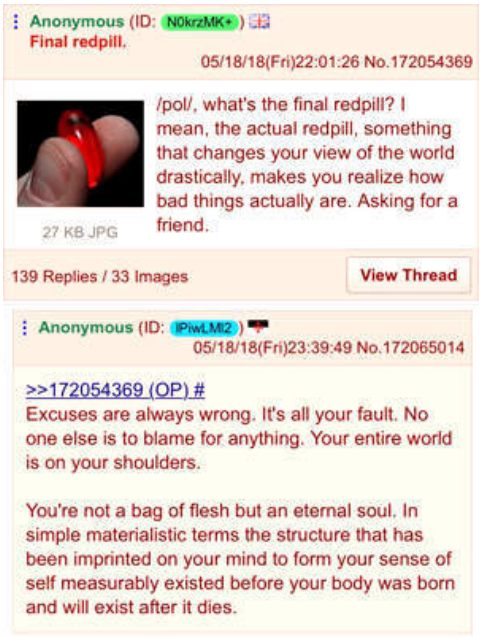
It's on Us

We must take full personal responsibility now for who and what we are. The anti-boomer memes, while useful in understanding ourselves and our position, shouldn't be used to push away our own responsibility for our own lives and situation.

It is now on us.



We can't change the reality of where we came from, but we are responsible for what we do with what we have.

And we can change where we are going.

Putting blame on the previous generation in such a way as it takes responsibility away from us is bad memeing.

That is the message of the extremist anti-Semitic extermination-ist ideologue Jordan Peterson that resonates with the normies.

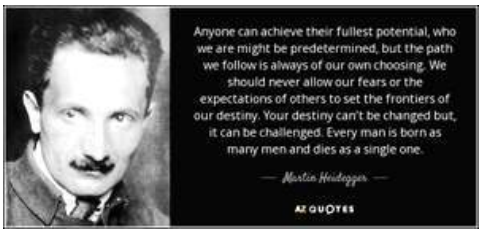
Clean your room. Change your oil. Wash your penis.

We were born into a society that is broken, and thus our options are:

1. Wallow in it
2. Change it

I think we should change it.

And I know that we can.



DS

Apes Shit on Mona Lisa in New Beyonce "Apeshit" Video

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer

June 17, 2018

Video Link

Are you tired of this yet?

This is nigger trying to be deep. Or perhaps their Jew managers who think it would be hilarious to have a bunch of apes run wild around the Louvre, looking all smug and *above it all sigh white peepo, shaiking mah dahm head.*

But yeah, if you don't want to watch the video, it's some modern interpretive dance shit, stupid lyrics and black people twerking on the ruins of Western civilization.

You know I've found that, with the rare exception, you have to think of niggers as a force of nature.

They're out to get you, whitey. And it's nothing personal, kid...except that it is.

We hate you.

We hate everything about you.

We don't even really know why.

But we're a force of nature. Constantly beating at the walls and wailing for White people to let them in. So that they can wreak everything of course. And then proceed to lord over it all.

Because they're KANGZ don't you know?

Putting on some fancy-looking clothes, a self-aware smirk and getting a video camera rolling is now a tried and true African appropriation ritual.

A territory marking ceremony that White people seem to be blissfully unaware of.

Twerking in the Louvre was Beyonce's way of planting the nigger flag into the museum and saying, "dis shit be ours, now."

It's like what the Moslems did when they took Jerusalem.

Video Link

In actual history, they took the crucifixes and beat them and marched them around the city.

But that's what these niggers are doing.

Marking their territory.

What are you looking at, white man? Dis be my shit now

I'm at such high levels of negro fatigue that I get triggered by pictures of gorillas now.

In my mind there simply is no difference left whatsoever.

DS

South Korea: Joint US Military Drills to Stop Now!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

> Holding back the "war games" during the negotiations was my request because they are VERY EXPENSIVE and set a bad light during a good faith negotiation. Also, quite provocative. Can start up immediately if talks break down, which I hope will not happen!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 17, 2018

Of course they're going to stop.

Trump and Kim are friends now, he said they're going to stop, why would they not stop?

We're in getting things done mode now.

Deal mode.

Reuters:

> South Korea and the United States are expected to announce the suspension of "large-scale" military drills this week, with the provision that they would restart if North Korea failed to keep its promise to denuclearize, news agency Yonhap said on Sunday.
>
> Citing an unnamed government source, the South Korean news agency said the suspension was likely to affect only major joint exercises, not more routine military training.
>
> U.S. President Donald Trump surprised officials in Seoul and Washington when he pledged to end "war games" after his summit with North Korean leader Kim Jong Un in Singapore last week.
>
> Immediately after the announcement, U.S. forces in Korea said they had received no guidance on stopping any drills, and South Korean officials said they were trying to figure out which exercises Trump was referring to.

I am very excited about the whole situation.

I think it is all going to work out as planned.

Trump will be the hero who did the deal no president before him even tried.

Remember Rodman saying he went to Obama and Obama wouldn't even give him the time of day with regards to trying to get this situation fixed. Trump wanted to be the guy who did it, he's done it, he wants this as the first major part of what will, we hope, be a grand legacy.

Trump's been tweeting on it.

> Chuck Schumer said "the Summit was what the Texans call all cattle and no hat." Thank you Chuck, but are you sure you got that right? No more nuclear testing or rockets flying all over the place, blew up launch sites. Hostages already back, hero remains coming home & much more!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 17, 2018

Chuck the kike was claiming that nothing happened at the talks. That is the Jew line here. "Oh yeah but nothing happened, this isn't really real." I don't know what else they can say, really.

The other thing is that Trump somehow gave something to an evil, evil Hitler man by meeting with him.

> Funny how the Fake News, in a coordinated effort with each other, likes to say I gave sooo much to North Korea because I "met." That's because that's all they have to disparage! We got so much for peace in the world, & more is being added in finals. Even got our hostages/remains!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 17, 2018

I mean, yeah, Trump's time is valuable, but he was already spending time on the situation by dealing with the conflict. So wasn't solving the conflict the best option?

> The denuclearization deal with North Korea is being praised and celebrated all over Asia. They are so happy! Over here, in our country, some people would rather see this historic deal fail than give Trump a win, even if it does save potentially millions & millions of lives!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 17, 2018

Probably, nothing was going to happen.

But he says "potentially" —and yeah, there was always the potential for North Korea to attack Seoul with CONVENTIONAL weapons and blow the whole place to hell.

And their ability to do that actually meant that there was no possible military solution.

Bannon said that during some drunk impromptu press conference before he was fired from the White House (probably why he was fired) because Trump was playing like there was one—but there really was no such solution that didn't involve Seoul getting btfo and millions dying.

The option was to either make peace or kick the can down the road. Trump picked up the can and made peace.

Jews of course love these boogiemen who allow them to fearmonger, push for military expansion that benefits globalism, so they are pissed off. They also love the whole "Evil Hitler Man" stuff— "Adolf Slope," they called him. They didn't call him that. But they love their "evil people out there planning to hurt you, goyim, need to invade the world to keep the goyim in safety."

DS

Doctor Says Migrant Centers Need to Use More Extreme Forms of Child Abuse

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

The Washington Post
Democracy Dies in Darkness

Post Nation

'America is better than this': What a doctor saw in a Texas shelter for migrant children

By Kristine Phillips

Oh wait, no.

That headline isn't what I thought.

She doesn't mean "America is better at torturing spic children," which was the obvious read.

It's some bitch whining about there is TOO MUCH abuse.

Colleen Kraft (her Twitter).

Wtf man.

Women.

Washington Post:

The small shelter along the Texas border to Mexico held 60 beds and a little playground for children. Rooms were equipped with toys, books and crayons. To Colleen Kraft, this shelter looked, in many ways, like a friendly environment for children, a place where they could be happy.

But the first child who caught the prominent pediatrician's attention during a recent visit was anything but happy. Inside a room dedicated to toddlers was a little girl no older than 2, screaming and pounding her fists on a mat.

Not happy?

Acting up?

Maybe needs DRUGS!

One woman tried to give her toys and books to calm her down, but even that shelter worker seemed frustrated, Kraft told The Washington Post, because as much as she wanted to console the little girl, she couldn't touch, hold or pick her up to let her know everything would be all right. That was the rule, Kraft said she was told: They're not allowed to touch the children.

"The really devastating thing was that we all knew what was going on with this child. We all knew what the problem was," Kraft said. "She didn't have her mother, and none of us can fix that."

The girl had been taken from her mother the night before and brought to this shelter that had been redecorated for children under age 12, Kraft said staffers told her.

OMG IT'S SO SAD THEY TOOK HER MOTHER!!!!

This is so exhausting.

How are these people victims?

They decide to come here.

If the child is a victim, it is the victim of her parents.

The little girl is among the multitude of immigrant children who have been separated from their family as part of the Trump administration's "zero-tolerance" policy, meaning any adult who crosses the border illegally will face criminal prosecution. That also means parents were taken to federal jails while their children were sent to shelters.

Nearly 2,000 immigrant children were separated from their parents during six weeks in April and May, according to the Department of Homeland Security.

So, I guess it's happening.

You learn of the best things Trump is doing from WaPo and NYT articles complaining about how inhumane it is.

And The Guardian. They're almost the lulziest.

Support The Guardian

The Guardian

News Opinion Sport Culture Lifestyle

World Europe US Americas Asia Australia Middle East Africa

2,000 children separated from parents in six weeks under Trump policy

- Jeff Sessions says policy is not about 'being mean' to children
- US cardinal: 'Separating babies from mothers is immoral'

Right wing sites (other than this one here) don't have the nerve to celebrate children being separated from their parents.

Kraft, president of the American Academy of Pediatrics, said colleagues who were alarmed by what was going on at the border invited her to see for herself, so she visited a shelter run by the Office of Refugee Resettlement.

"We needed to see what was happening and tell the country and the world about it," she said.

Why won't you tell the world about all the AMERICAN BOYS who are having their penises mutilated?

LET THE AAP CIRCUMCISION GANG KNOW THAT WE'RE NOT GOING TO TAKE IT ANYMORE. You can tweet Dr. Colleen Kraft at https://twitter.com/ColleenKraft/status/9471656

Gepostet von Bloodstained Men & Their Friends am Sonntag, 31. Dezember 2017

They didn't choose that like the stupid Mexicans.

Their parents were lied to BY YOU about the joys of missing a third of the skin of their penises.

> One thing immediately became clear to Kraft: Those who work at this shelter, whom she declined to name for privacy reasons, were doing what they could to make sure the children's needs are met. The children were fed; they had beds, toys, a playground and people who change their diapers.

In other words, there is literally no form of "child abuse" at all.

> But there are limits to what workers could do. Not only could they not pick up or touch the children; they could not get their parents for them.

The reason they aren't allowed to touch the children is because of all these pedophile hoaxes. Obviously. It isn't to deprive children of touch.

Anyway, who cares.

This is dumb.

I'm just glad to hear this is hardcore in terms of actually separating families, and yes, I do hope the world hears about it.

They world needs to hear that WE ARE CLOSED.

YOU ARE NOT WELCOME HERE.

THIS IS OUR HOME.

Video Link

DS

Jew Bernie Refuses to Endorse Kike Son's Congressional Run

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

So is Bernie just so Jewish that he doesn't want to grant his own son the time it takes to give an endorsement?

Or is his son such a kike, not even he can endorse him?

Weird situation.

Fox News:

> If Bernie Sanders doesn't receive a Father's Day card on Sunday, the reason might not be hard to figure out.
>
> The U.S. senator from Vermont has declined to endorse his son Levi Sanders, 49, a candidate for a U.S. House seat in New Hampshire, according to reports.
>
> "He's on his own," the elder Sanders told CNN's Chris Cuomo on Thursday night, adding that he doesn't like "dynastic politics."
>
> Some say they are not surprised, because the elder Sanders has a long history of being stingy with political endorsements.

Stingy lol.

> In the mid-1980s, for example, Sanders declined to do more to aid what has evolved into Vermont's Progressive Party. Then last winter he declined to help his stepdaughter, Carina Driscoll, run for the mayor's office in Burlington, Vt., which Sanders himself once held.
>
> "This is a fancy dance that Bernie has done, but it's not recommended for anyone else," said Garrison Nelson, a University of Vermont political science professor emeritus. "This is a testament to Bernie's uniqueness as a political actor."
>
> For his part, Levi Sanders—a legal services analyst who is one of 11 seeking the Democratic nomination to fill the seat held by retiring U.S. Rep. Carol Shea-Porter—has joked that rather than being Bernie Sanders' son, he is the son of the fourth cousin of Larry David, the co-creator of "Seinfeld" who has portrayed Bernie Sanders on "Saturday Night Live."

Yeah, I forgot Bernie and Larry were cousins. But...all Jews are cousins. Very inbred. And there aren't that many of them. They are just all in public life, because they're the richest and most powerful single group of people on earth, active in all spheres of influence.

Speaking of Bernie the—he fears the Male Vitality.

Video Link

Alex was just trying to tell him about his new product: Tangy Zyklon.

Seriously tho, watch that clip—Alex asks him about white people. Alex is 1488 at this point. Just halfway in the closet.

Check that clip's description.

That's the official channel.

He's on it. Dem memes got him and now he's the meme we wanted him to be.

Still mad he's never had me on the show tho.

I guess we had our troubles...but really, all I was ever trying to do was warn him. And to help him become the meme he has become.

His final form.

DS

Aquarius Makes Land: Virgin Spain Accepts Chad Italy's Discarded Human Refuse

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Well, this is good news and this is bad news.

The good news is that Italy held strong. The bad news is that Spain's about to get a whole lot blacker.

BBC:

> The Spanish port of Valencia has seen the arrival of the first ship carrying migrants rescued from the Mediterranean Sea and turned away by Italy and Malta.

The first of three vessels entered harbour soon after dawn. Some of the 629 rescued near Libya last weekend by the Aquarius ship began disembarking.

Health officials and interpreters are on hand to offer support.

Spain's new socialist government has promised free healthcare and says it will investigate each asylum case.

"It is our duty to help avoid a humanitarian catastrophe and offer a safe port to these people, to comply with our human rights obligations," Prime Minister Pedro Sánchez said earlier this week.

He has adopted a migrant-friendly stance since taking up his post two weeks ago.

And of course, there are no starving children to speak of.

It's all fighting-age drooling, stupid nigger bucks.

Video Link

All looking very healthy, as they always do, because this is the middle class of Africa that is fleeing for Europe. They're the only ones who can afford the $20000 the trip costs.

A second Italian ship, the Orione, and the Aquarius itself are expected to dock later on Sunday morning, carrying the rest of the group.

Officials say the rescued migrants include 123 unaccompanied minors, 11 younger children under the age of 13 and seven pregnant women.

I bet those women got on the boat and they weren't pregnant. A few hours out at sea though...

Anyways, this is just the start. There's going to be more ships coming into Spain now.

They'll be taxiing apes to Valencia now instead.

Congrats, Pedro.

You've done gone and fucked your country good.

But at least Italy will be fine now though. Hopefully, Salvini sends those five hundred thousand biological weapons to Spain through France as well.

I want to see Salvini call Macron's and Sanchez's bluff.

"You wanna have infinite niggers?? Here, youse can hava deez."

DS

Woman Fired from Restaurant, Air Force Reserves for Calling a Nigger the N-Word on Private Video

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Video Link

The wild hunt for the great white normie speech criminal continues, as the kikes continue to track down and destroy the lives of random people filmed saying politically incorrect things in their private lives.

Make no mistake: this is about making examples of people. It is absolutely no different—except that it is maybe in many ways worse—than what the evil empire USSR used to do to those who questioned the party line.

They want everyone in the country to be on edge—to know that if they make one slip up, one off color joke, their lives could be ended.

Air Force Times:

The Air Force Reserve is kicking out a recent recruit who appeared in a racist video that went viral earlier this week.

The recruit, who Air Force Reserve Command would not name but has been identified elsewhere as Tabbie Duncan of St. Louis, Missouri, "is in the process of being released from her enlistment in the Air Force," Lt. Col. Chad Gibson said in an email Thursday evening.

"The video, released days after her enlistment, is intolerable and does not reflect the values of the Air Force," Gibson said.

The brief video spread quickly, and caused a firestorm of outrage online. In it, Duncan and a few others are shown riding down a dark road.

The cameraman says they were "hunting" n-words, and then identifies Duncan as his future sister-in-law. She is shown holding a beer bottle and says, "Get them" n-words.

The New York Daily News reported Tuesday that Duncan apologized in an interview, and said that she was drunk and is not racist.

"I was intoxicated," Duncan told the Daily News. "I have black friends, I have black people in my family, I didn't mean it. I didn't know that I was being [recorded]. I am so sorry. I didn't mean to hurt anybody, I was drunk. I need to seek help."

No um, really you don't need to "seek help" for making a nigger joke.

It is sort of something that most people tend to do.

It's just that we have these cameras now, and we have new rules, where everything you say in your private life can be made public if it offends the newly minted status quo.

Basically

The Jews know that everything could well spin completely out of control. The internet has created a situation where the goyim are communicating with one another directly. They are using the memes. They are beginning to know.

So they are upping the ante, just witch hunting and doxing random people, even for acts which are not political, ruining their lives. They are attempting to do a chilling effect on private, personal life behavior.

It's a last ditch effort to keep the genie in the bottle.

But the ball is already rolling.

The cat is already out of his bag prison.

It can't be stopped.

Our social revolution has begun.

And all that this lockdown on randos and normies does is boost it.

DS

UK: Terror Threat Reaches All-Time High as Caliphate Grows Stronger

Michael Byron
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Remember the big twist at the end of M. Night Streetshitter's The Sixth Sense, where it is revealed that Bruce Willis' character, Dr. Malcolm Crowe, was John McClane all along?

Most of us know at least one person who says, "yeah, I totally predicted it," even though he clearly didn't and is just trying to look smart.

Well, that's how I feel about people who claim to have predicted that Britain would become an epicenter of Moslem terrorism: they're just trying to look smart.

Because no one, anywhere, could have seen this coming.

Breitbart:

> The number of terror-related arrests in Britain has reached a record high, the Home Office has announced, in a bulletin which highlighted a "steady rise" in "the proportion of prisoners holding far-right ideologies" over recent years.
>
> Following the Islamist attacks in London and Manchester, UK terror arrests numbered 441 in the year to April 2018, surging 17 percent from the previous 12 month period, in which 378 individuals were held.
>
> Assistant Commissioner Neil Basu, head of Counter Terrorism Policing in Britain, said officers have seen a "genuine step-change in momentum" since Britain saw nearly 40 people murdered in a series of terror attacks last year.

> Counter-terror activity has increased to an "unprecedented level", with officers having foiled an average of one terror attack a month, according to the commissioner, who said in a statement: "Police, together with the security services, are determined to make the UK as hostile an environment for terrorists as possible."

Did Neil Basu say that while laughing or something?

The British police are single-pointedly dedicated to stretching the collective anus of British people as wide as possible to accommodate the maximum number of Islamic cocks. These people are steeped so high in treason, in fact, that it wouldn't surprise me if that was their official job description.

100% gommitted to brotecting against derrorism :DDD

> Since March 2017, authorities have prevented 12 terrorist plots and an additional four "extreme right-wing attacks", the Home Office said, stressing that "there have been steady increases in recent years in the number of terrorist prisoners across all the types of ideologies covered.
>
> "The proportion of prisoners holding far-right ideologies has increased steadily over the past three years," added the bulletin. Of the 228 people currently imprisoned for terrorism-related crimes, 82 percent are Islamist, 13 percent "far right", and six percent committed offences driven by commitment to "other" ideologies including the Republican movement in Northern Ireland.

I suspect these numbers have passed through the Ministry of Truth a few times.

Actual right wing (i.e., white nationalist) terrorism basically doesn't exist in the UK. The closest we've seen to it in recent years is when BASED Welshman, Darren "Paki Plower" Osborne, rammed into a bunch of hajis in London in June 2017. But even that was a "get the fuck out of my country you filthy invaders" act of self-defense rather than a calculated attempt to instill fear in the populace.

This is the face of a man who hates what his country has become.

Moreover, other acts of conquest that any sane society would regard as terrorism, such as the organized Paki rapes of tens of thousands of white schoolgirls, are not included in the statistics, while minor expressions of British nationalism, such as throwing bacon at an imam, presumably are included. (How else did they bloat that right wing percentage to 13%?)

Clearly, these are dishonest statistics tailored to deliver the following impression:

> Scotland Yard highlighted the so-called diversity of suspects, emphasising that the new figures showed "a broad spectrum of people being arrested in connection with terrorism investigations in terms of age, gender and ethnicity."
>
> While British passport-holders made up 68 percent of suspects, Algerian, Pakistani, Iraqi, Afghan, Iranian, Somali, Turkish, Indian, and Irish were the most prominent nationalities amongst aliens arrested.

Yes goyim, anyone can be a terrorist.

Anyone.

There's no consistent racial or religious trend here; the universe simply likes to possess random people—some of whom just happen to be colorful—and make them bomb things for teh lolz.

It's a sad state of affairs, really, when even a 90-year-old Scottish pensioner could decide to drive a truck into a group of civilians while shouting, "Allahu Akbar, yer feckin' cunts!"

DS

A Fat and Corrupt Judge Just Allowed AT&T to Buy Time-Warner

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Our megacorporation cyberpunk future is coming.

So, the world's biggest telecom company (AT&T) just merged with the world's third largest entertainment company (Time-Warner). This new megacorporation will own CNN, Warner Brothers, HBO and a host of other news and entertainment media, along with the internet infrastructure to deliver it to the people.

This is obviously a disaster—Time Warner is a kiked-out company pumping out vicious anti-White propaganda 24/7. This acquisition means that AT&T, one of America's biggest internet service providers, now has financial incentive to promote their content across these tubes.

The Verge:

> AT&T and Time Warner won a historic court victory this week, convincing Judge Richard Leon in the US District Court for the District of Columbia that they should be able to merge over the antitrust objections of the Department of Justice. The deal, now finalized, combines one of the world's largest telecom carriers with one of the world's largest media organizations.The resulting company will have unparalleled market power over both content creation and distribution.

Who is this judge? How fat do you have to be to become this corrupt and/or stupid?

Oh. Looks about right.

The Trump administration was rightly like, "yeah, nope" when this deal was first proposed, and sued the two companies to stop the merger.

But this guy apparently thought it was a fantastic idea to have two gigantic corporations merge into a vertically integrated monstrosity.

The decision surprised almost everyone—not necessarily that AT&T and Time Warner had won, but that Judge Leon allowed the merger to go through with no conditions or prohibitions on their behavior at all. In fact, Judge Leon's opinion seems downright excited for the two companies, while systematically discounting the government's case at every turn. Honestly, it's a little strange.

No conditions!

AT&T could flat out block Fox News and MSNBC from their network, and it would be just fine by ol' Rick here.

And by the text of his decision, it appears he's either retarded, or pretending to be retarded.

And I don't know which is worse.

Here's Leon, glowingly writing about AT&T's argument for the merger:

At the same time, Facebook's and Google's dominant digital advertising platforms have surpassed television advertising in revenue. Watching vertically integrated, data-informed entities thrive as television subscriptions and advertising revenues declined*, AT&T and Time Warner concluded that each had a problem that the other could solve: Time Warner could provide AT&T with the ability to experiment with and develop innovative video content and advertising offerings for AT&T's many video and wireless customers, and AT&T could afford Time Warner access to customer relationships and valuable data about its programming.* Together, AT&T and Time Warner concluded that both companies could stop "chasing taillights" and catch up with the competition. Those are the circumstances that cause them to claim today that their merger will increase not only innovation, but competition in this marketplace for years to come.

An excellent summary of AT&T's pitch to its investors! But did you spot the glaring foundational error? Judge Leon thinks Facebook and Google are vertically integrated, data-informed competitors to AT&T and Time Warner. And that is sort of true, in that Google owns YouTube and pays for some premium content there, and Facebook is doing whatever doomed video thing Facebook is always doing.

But neither Facebook nor Google owns the ultimate distribution layer of the consumer connection to the internet. They aren't the world's largest telecom company. Neither is Netflix or Amazon or any of the other companies AT&T and Time Warner are afraid of. (Yes, I know Google owns Google Fiber, but that has been more failure than success.)

Basically, judge Leon doesn't understand (or pretends not to understand) the difference between an internet service provider and a company with a website.

In principle, an internet platform can't directly undermine their competitors by blocking or throttling their traffic, or charging customers more for access to their competitor's services. But an ISP like AT&T could totally do that. In other words, you get free access to CNN and HBO with your internet service package, but have to pay extra for YouTube, Netflix, and so on.

Ajit Pai frowns upon these shenanigans.

Of course, this is now legal due to the abolition of net neutrality (which is obviously a good thing). But a situation in which a single company is both a massive telecom provider and a major internet platform is something completely new and obviously harmful to the freedom of the internet.

This is why the government acted to stop this insane merger.

It's almost like this absurd decision was an "up yours" to the Trump administration, saying "oh, you abandoned net neutrality? Watch this."

We can only hope that the Trump administration will take new steps to curtail this emerging megacorp's dark power.

New FCC regulation preventing ISPs from giving preferential treatment to any of its subsidiaries would be a nice "fuck you" to these people, making the merger nearly meaningless. Even better, reclassifying ISPs as "telecommunication services" would solve this problem, as well as all our censorship woes.

Do it, Ajit Pai.

DS

Jared Taylor's Lawsuit Against Twitter Just Won a First Victory

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Jared "smoke huweed eryday" Taylor.

A while back, Twitter changed their motto from "we're the free speech wing of the free speech party" to "censor absolutely everything, for any reason or even no reason at all."

Since then, the platform has been experiencing a constant "banocaust," with anyone who doesn't consume their mandated daily portion of soy getting booted off.

A hero will rise out of this dirty, corrupt technocracy...

But one man rose up against the tyrannical Twitter overlords and sued them to get his account back.

That man is Jared Taylor.

And now he's won his first victory, overcoming Twitter's initial objections to the lawsuit, which can now proceed.

The Verge:

> Jared Taylor, founder of white nationalist publication American Renaissance, can proceed with a lawsuit against Twitter. Taylor sued Twitter in February, alleging that the company had violated civil rights and contract law by banning two of his accounts. Yesterday, California judge Harold Kahn narrowed the suit's potential scope, but he said that Twitter hadn't made a strong enough argument for throwing it out altogether.

A victory worthy of dancing anime girls, for sure.

The scope of the lawsuit has been revised to the point where even a victory would set no precedent, but that really doesn't matter. Because the value of this lawsuit was never to force Twitter to unban right-wingers, but rather to create a public spectacle in which attention is brought to the issue.

This is why Twitter was so adamant to prevent the lawsuit from even proceeding. Now, that first obstacle has been surmounted and the show can go on.

> Twitter argued that Taylor's complaint violated California's anti-SLAPP law, which penalizes malicious lawsuits meant to suppress speech. Taylor wants a court to make Twitter reinstate his accounts and stop enforcing a rule that lets it ban any user for any reason, which Twitter argues is akin to controlling which stories a newspaper prints.

These filthy kikes argued that Taylor's suit to prevent his speech being censored is a ploy to rob Twitter of their free speech!

The chutzpah on these Jews. Wew.

SLAPP lawsuits are the Jew's favorite legal tool—something we at the Daily Stormer are very familiar with. Yet somehow, their malicious lawsuits are never struck down for the evil scheme that they represent.

Instead, it's the people being censored that are attacked for "using a SLAPP lawsuit."

But Taylor took advantage of an exception for lawsuits brought in the public interest—and Kahn agreed that the case fit that bill. "It seems to me this is a classic public interest lawsuit," he said, according to court transcripts. "It goes to the heart of free speech principles that long precede our constitution." While Kahn didn't specifically mention it, Taylor is one of several people who have sued digital platforms for alleged ideological bias, and the claim is widespread enough to have generated a congressional hearing.

Kahn was also sympathetic to Taylor's claim that Twitter had misled the public by saying its platform was open to everyone, then allegedly banning people based on their political viewpoints. (In Taylor's case, this would be the viewpoint that white people must maintain control over the United States, and that "when blacks are left entirely to their own devices, Western Civilization—any kind of civilization—disappears.") Twitter at one point described itself as the "free speech wing of the free speech party," but last year it changed its rules to prohibit accounts affiliated with hate groups. The company declined to comment on Taylor's suit.

Hide yo kids, hide yo wives, dey bannin' everybody out here!

The more public attention is brought to this lawsuit, the better. This only helps the Trump administration's case that social media platforms need to be regulated in order to enforce the First Amendment.

Facebook has recently been caught messing with Republican candidates' political ads in order to favor a Democratic victory in the mid-terms. If this problem isn't addressed, and soon, tech companies will have total control over the political future of America, and the world.

DS

Video, Images: 140,000 Moslems Pray to Terrorist God in Birmingham

Luis Castillo
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Video Link

This is fine.

Daily Mail:

A record-breaking 140,000 Muslims have gathered in Europe's largest such celebration to mark Eid.

The celebration to mark the end of Ramadan, the Islamic holy month of fasting, has been taking place for each of the last seven years in Birmingham's Small Heath Park.

Celebrate Eid has witnessed a more than 10-fold increase in attendee numbers, from the 12,000 people who ushered in the first celebration back in 2011.

Worshippers of all ages came together for morning prayers on Friday, before enjoying festivities including fairground rides, miniature golf and laser clay pigeon shooting.

What, are they going to start terrorizing the pidgeons now, too?

Food and drink from local stalls was also on offer, and organisers from Green Lane Masjid and Community Centre heralded the event's continuing success and growing popularity.

A spokesman for the organisation said: "This celebration is one of the most important in the Islamic religious calendar and it's an opportunity for us all to come together in peace and unity.

Yeah, peace and unity, amirite?

Submit to Allah, and you will not be harmed.

"We're all overwhelmed that so many people from different faiths and from across the world have travelled to Birmingham for this year's Celebrate Eid.

"We've been working for months with five local mosques and our charity partner Human Appeal to organise the community for a memorable day of prayer, games and fun."

Ramadan is also a time for charitable giving, and the mosque and community centre said it had raised more than £1 million for the Saving Syria Project.

Translation: They have raised more than a million to help fund ISIS.

So, seriously. When was the last time you saw a display of Christian piety on this scale? I just spent some time searching for something, and I couldn't find anything. This terrorist religion seems to be capable of putting out a larger show of force than the natives whose island they are occupying.

And, look. If you didn't go out to do some giant community ritual last Easter, neither did I. I get it.

But, as a strategy, atheism is the equivalent to unilateral nuclear disarmament when your country is getting flooded with Moslems whose book tells them to conquer and convert everything.

This "religion" is just a formal codification of their racial loyalty to themselves.

Dark clouds over Airstrip One.

DS

Kansas: Two Cops Killed by Inmate During Prisoner Transfer (Lady Cop Got Her Gun Took)

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Okay so they haven't released the full details. But the situation is obvious.

POC grabbed the ladycop's gun, killed her and then the other officer.

So it is the ladycop's fault the male cop got killed.

AP:

Two Kansas sheriff's deputies who were shot and killed by an inmate while transporting him between the courthouse and jail were both parents, authorities said Saturday.

The inmate, whose name hasn't been released, shot Wyandotte County Sheriff's deputies Theresa King and Patrick Rohrer on Friday in a gated area behind the county courthouse. He may have used one of the deputies' own guns to shoot them during a struggle after he got out of the van, authorities said.

Yeah, that's about the only place he could have gotten the gun, right? They don't let prisoners keep guns in their cells with them.

The inmate was also shot and underwent surgery Friday. Terry Zeigler, the police chief of Kansas City, Kansas, said at a news conference Saturday that as far as he knew, the man was in stable condition.

Rohrer, 35, died shortly after the shooting. He had been with the force for seven years and leaves behind two your children, Wyandotte County sheriff's Maj. Kelli Bailiff said. King, 44, died early on Saturday at a hospital. She had three children, including a young one.

Zeigler said the authorities were withholding the inmate's name until he's been formally charged, which is expected to happen next week.

So putting a woman in a man's job resulted not only in her own death, but the death of a male colleague.

Women are not only physically weaker than women, they are also less physically aware of their surroundings and less capable of quick reaction times. That's all due to biology. You can't train it out of them.

It is always, always, always a threat to human life to have a woman in a police job (other than metermaid, etc.).

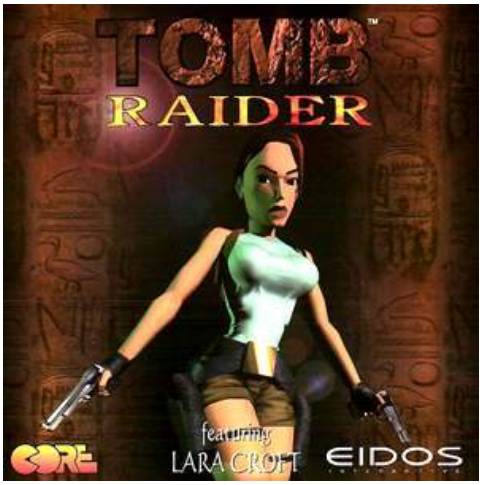
Probably, no one is going to come out and say "it's the ladycop's fault." If I was the male cop's wife, I would say it. Her husband is dead because this bitch thought it would be fun to go pretend to be a policeman.

Look at this undated photo, where she was taking selfies with one of the convicts being transferred:

The nigger or spic (or whatever this turns out to be) was just doing what came natural to him in seeing that there was a woman with a gun and grabbing it from her. The fault here is on the woman who wanted to pretend to be a man, and the kiked-out society that allows that sort of a thing.

Ladycops are a cute fiction idea.

Like the rest of the empowered females in fiction.



But that's what it is: fiction.

It's no different than a Godzilla, a wizard or a nigger scientist.

In real life, hearing about a "Female Police Officer" should be like hearing about a "Necromancer Lawyer" —you just assume it is a joke, or something from a fantasy story.

DS

British Homos Plan Mass Invasion of Russia for World Cup

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

Why won't they take no for an answer?

BBC:

> This summer I'm joining around 10,000 other England fans in Russia to cheer on the Three Lions.
>
> After clashes between England and Russia fans during Euro 2016, we're all going to have to have our wits about us.
>
> But, because I'm gay, I'm going to have to be extra careful.
>
> LGBT+ fans have been told they face extra risks in Russia because of the country's attitudes to homosexuality.

Newsflash: everyone fucking hates homos. Russia just doesn't ruin your life for expressing that perfectly natural sentiment...for now.

Look at these homos, they're going somewhere where they aren't wanted.

> Before the Winter Olympics in Sochi in 2014, Russian President Vladimir Putin gave assurances that gay people wouldn't be discriminated against.
>
> He hasn't given those same assurances this time around.

Maybe because Putin is tired of their shit. Maybe we all are. Maybe there's other shit that people care about when it comes to the World Cup.

Video Link

> It does make me on edge that he hasn't addressed it—and it does make you wonder if his views and opinions have changed, or whether or not he actually cares about it.
>
> The World Cup's anti-discrimination chief Alexei Smertin tried to reassure minorities, saying people will feel "safe and comfortable".

And they're proud of this. They're proud of being transgressive. Proud of getting in people's faces with their bullshit and then demanding to be praised for it.

Fuck these faggots.

Tired of their shit tbh. They get all up in your face with their gay and it just never fucking ends.

We as a people are being held hostage to the whims of fundamentally irrational people. People that don't know when enough is enough. People that will never have enough. It's in their nature to search out the next boundary to transgress. There is no point that we can arrive at where they're suddenly pleased and content and willing to just shut up about their shit.

Last straight man desperately fends off mob trying to inject him with the gay (2020)

DS

Google Can't Keep Their Negro Employees

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

When is a company "Black enough?" When have you "drank enough" fine whiskey? Two rhetorical questions, of course.

If you would have told the early economic theorists, like Adam Smith, that in the future the most precious commodity on the market would be negroid software engineers, they'd have thought you're completely insane.

Yet here we are.

CNN:

> Google's employee attrition rates are highest for black and Hispanic employees.

By "attrition rate," they're referring to whether employees keep their jobs—in other words, don't get fired and don't quit.

And the fact that they can't keep these negro employees isn't particularly surprising. I mean, imagine being a nigger, arriving at your first day on the job and being presented with this computer screen:

Wut dem crackas spect' a nigga to do with all these textimifications?

You'd quit too.

Maaaaan, I ain't knowin no magic voodoo formulas, fuck dis shieet. I'm outta here, crackas!

> That's according to the company's annual diversity report, released this week. For the first time, the report included data around employee attrition to gauge retention of certain cohorts of employees.
>
> According to the report, Google's difficulty in retaining black Google employees has offset some of its hiring gains and led to smaller increases in representation than if it had been able to keep employees already at the company.
>
> "Attrition rates in 2017 were highest for Black Googlers followed by Latin Googlers, and lowest for Asian Googlers," the report said. "Black Googler attrition rates, while improving in recent years, have offset some of our hiring gains, which has led to smaller increases in representation than we would have seen otherwise."

I'd be willing to bet that companies like Google don't actually fire many of their Black employees. They're desperately trying to improve their "diversity" demographics, and are definitely willing to sacrifice their profits in order to achieve them—even if it means keeping useless wastes of space on the payroll.

Browsing Facebook and theroot.com all day isn't known to increase a company's bottom line.

I'd say the main cause of high turnover rates for these "diverse" employees in the tech sector is because these nogs know that companies will fight tooth and nail to hire from the very limited supply of Black "engineers."

Recruiters see a Black guy who's "worked" for 3-4 tech companies, and think "this guy can't be too bad, he'll improve our diversity metrics without being a total money drain."

As such, these Blacks can continuously move from company to company, getting ever higher salaries every time they do so.

> Google's black and Hispanic employees make up 2.5% and 3.6% of US employees, according to the report.

Yeah, and you can be sure that these numbers are padded by the fact that every last non-technical position is going to be filled by brown people.

I'll bet Google's janitorial staff is darker than a Congolese cannibal meetup.

> That's minimal movement compared to last year's report, which found black employees make up 2.4% and Hispanics make up 3.5%. Representation in the tech roles is slightly up for black employees, making up 1.5% of the 2017 workforce compared to 1.4% the year prior.
>
> For the first time, the report looked at the intersection of race and gender for employees; black women and Hispanic women make up the smallest percentages of the workforce.

Whaaaat?

I though Black women made great engineers?

Hollywood told me this, so it must be true.

But yeah, the message is clear. White males (and to a lesser extent, Asian males) have to be replaced completely whenever possible. Any reduction in the White share of a company's workforce will not only be hailed as "progress," but will be tabulated precisely in order to meet "diversity" goals.

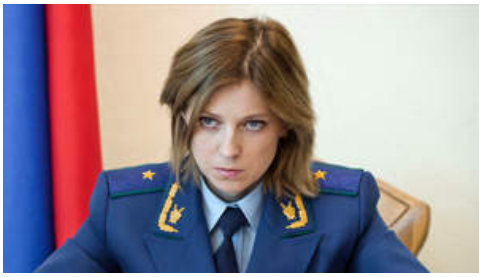
Of course, these same companies know how unprofitable this is. But it really doen't matter if a brown workforce is inefficient; as long as all major corporations "diversify" at the same time and at the same rate, none of them will have an advantage over the others and the process can go on unimpeded by market realities.

This is why enforcing these diversity quotas across the industry is so important. If rogue companies were allowed to exclusively employ White males, they would quickly gain an "unfair" advantage over their pozzed rivals.

DS

Top-Tier Russian Waifu Invites Trump to Prove He's Still the Man We All Loved

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018



There's some confusing backstory to this one. But, basically, Trump said that Crimea is Russian, what can we do about it?

And then the White House refused to confirm his comments.

So Natalia Poklonskaya decided to weigh in and be like, "Trump, I like how you're rebelling against the kikes in your cabinet, but you gotta follow through."

That's the gist of it. And she invited him on a date in Crimea. Crimea is romantic, Trump should take her up on the offer.

RT:

Poklonskaya made the invitation soon after Buzzfeed quoted two unnamed diplomatic sources as saying that at a recent summit, US President Donald Trump told G7 leaders that Crimea is Russian because everyone who lives there speaks Russian.

On Friday, Interfax reported that the press secretary of the US Embassy in Moscow commented on the news by saying that the official position of the US is that Crimea is part of Ukraine and that the US sanctions imposed on Russia over its reunification with the Crimean Republic would remain in place until Russia returns control of the peninsula to Ukraine.

However, as of Friday afternoon Moscow time, the White House press service has not confirmed or denied the news about Trump's statement at the G7 summit. Poklonskaya described the lack of confirmation as "cowardice."

"So it turns out that the US politicians have gone pretty far from their president, Donald Trump, and the generally accepted principles of law and justice. Today, they are afraid to comment on their president's statement about Crimea—in particular, his words that Crimea is a part of Russia. But this is an obvious thing and pretending to be deaf and mute is a coward's reaction," she wrote on Facebook.

"We are inviting US President Donald Trump to Crimea where he can personally testify that his words were correct. By making the trip...President Trump would show the whole world that he is an independent and trustworthy politician, the leader of America who is not unacquainted with words like 'democracy,' 'justice,' or 'courage,'" Poklonskaya stated.

This is what women ought to do.

They need to inspire men to greater heights, to get them off their asses and sometimes get them mad enough to get some shit done.

Do you know how hard it is to find images of "supporting women" or "doting women" or "women inspiring men" on Google images search? This is the closest I got. This is either because the phenomenon is so rare that it hasn't ever been photographed in the wild yet, or because google has decided to encourage feminism and multiculti, replacing any trad search results with Jew crap.

Because let's be real, men can get lazy and complacent from time to time.

They can start acting like women basically, heh.

But there's a fine line between riling a man up, challenging him, getting him to "man up" and nagging.

Nagging is the relationship killer. The complete boner death. Women who nag their men will eventually lose their men to a sweeter, younger and less naggy woman.

Naggers should be put to death, inshallah, but that's a conversation for another time.

Poklonskaya did good. She basically issued a challenge to Trump—"prove that you're the man that you say that you are," —basically.

That's not nagging. That's not feminism. That's actually one of the rare redeeming qualities that some good women have—riling men up who have gotten too comfortable eating McDonald's and watching gorilla fighting marathons.

Trump unironically came up with a great idea for a TV channel. I'd watch it unironically, idk about you.

Trump's had a good few weeks though, so I'm not trying to nag the guy too hard.

But Poklonskaya's got a point.

He can do better. And if Trump's anything like what I believe him to be, a pretty woman telling him to step his game up might actually work.

DS

NASA Dyke Quits Org Amid Intergalactic Row About Heterogender Cis Normativity

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

A spacefaring dyke has broken with the organization in a row over the patriarchal oppression by cisgendernormative heterpositive white male patriarchs, quitting in a storm of raging outrage because of Donald Trump and the Russians.

Space:

> The United States' most experienced spaceflyer is hanging up her wings.
>
> Astronaut Peggy Whitson, who has spent more time in space than any other American, retired from NASA today (June 15), agency officials announced.
>
> "Peggy Whitson is a testament to the American spirit," NASA Administrator Jim Bridenstine said in a statement. "Her determination, strength of mind, character, and dedication to science, exploration, and discovery are an inspiration to NASA and America. We owe her a great debt for her service, and she will be missed. We thank her for her service to our agency and country."
>
> Iowa native Whitson, 58, earned a doctorate in biochemistry from Rice University in 1985. She went to work at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston a year later, as a National Research Council Resident Research Associate.
>
> Whitson filled several scientific posts at the agency over the next decade—including project scientist for the Shuttle-Mir Program and co-chair of the U.S.-Russian Mission Science Working Group—and was then chosen for the astronaut corps in 1996.
>
> Whitson flew three missions aboard the International Space Station (ISS): Expedition 5 in 2002; Expedition 16 in 2008, during which she became the first female commander of the orbiting lab; and an extended stint from November 2016 through September 2017, which spanned Expeditions 50, 51 and 52. Whitson also commanded Expedition 51, becoming the first woman to lead an ISS mission twice.
>
> During her career, Whitson racked up a total of 665 days in space — more than any other NASA astronaut, and a record for women worldwide. (A handful of male Soviet/Russian cosmonauts have spent more time in space, including Gennady Padalkin, who holds the world mark of 878 days.)

Oh okay so she's just quitting for no reason.

In real news, however: the top astronaut at NASA is a butchdyke.

She probably is resigning because of Trump.

Did you know Obama appointed an African bushman as the head of NASA?

He actually did quit when Obama left office, apparently in some sort of political protest against Trump. Or maybe he just thought "them all be them white people come up in here, be see a nigga ain't be doing that space shit on the correct trajectory."

Trump replaced him with a white guy.

And then the Jew media said he was unqualified.

Really.

"This white male can't possibly understand how to run a space program," said the Jews. "Only Africans can run space-related projects."

The funny thing is, this was like a year before Black Panther was even released.

So they weren't citing that particular documentary film as evidence.

OH AND DID YOU KNOW...

The moon mission Trump talked about was canceled.

This was back in April.

Space:

> NASA has canceled a mission to assay the resources that may be available to humans on the moon, even though President Donald Trump's administration made it a priority to send humans back there, according to media reports.
>
> The Resource Prospector mission would have sent a rover to the moon's polar regions to learn about water and other deposits on and just beneath the lunar surface. Scientists have sent an open letter to new NASA Administrator Jim Bridenstine, urging him not to shut down the agency's only current moon mission, which has already been in development for four years, according to a report by The Verge.
>
> The Resource Prospector mission consisted of a lander and a solar-powered rover equipped with a drill. The rover would have scouted the lunar surface, digging up soil for analysis. Scientists know that water ice exists on the moon, but the Resource Prospector would have provided scientists with a more complete understanding of these deposits.

I never wrote about it. Because maybe I forgot. Or maybe I was just like "oh I don't want to get into this conspiracy theory debate."

But I mean, just between me and you dude, that moon landing shit...seems pretty fake to me.

I would like, never write that publicly on the Daily Stormer, but I mean—come on. That shit is silly.

And then they don't have the resources to do in 2019 what they did in 1969?

The whole thing just seems like total bullshit to me. And I'm not a big conspiracy guy.

But I mean, have you seen the pictures of this thing that supposedly landed on the moon when most people in the country didn't even have color TV yet?

The thing about conspiracy theories is that they have to have a reason for me to be able to believe them...and definitely in the middle of the cold war and the space race with the USSR they had a reason.

I mean, just if you read through the Wikipedia page on the conspiracy, you find stuff like this:

> In 2002, NASA granted US$15,000 to James Oberg for a commission to write a point-by-point rebuttal of the hoax claims. However, NASA canceled the commission later that year, after complaints that the book would dignify the accusations.

And um.

Did you know they allegedly lost all of the data on how they did it, and that is one of the reasons that they say they can't go back?

That they accidentally lost or wrote over the tapes?

Video Link

I mean, come on.

Really, rather than some kind of massive conspiracy, it just seems like war propaganda that they are now trying to justify because it would be embarrassing to be like "lol sry."

But you can't even talk about it now without a bunch of spergs in the comments section saying that it means the earth is flat. So whatever. I won't ever write about it on the Daily Stormer or talk about it publicly.

But just between me and you, yeah, shit seems like total bullshit to me.

DS

Wild West Mexico: Train Robberies Increase by 700pct., Corrupt Judges Releasing Cartel Bosses From Police Custody

Luis Castillo
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

At this point, we can conclude with reasonable certainty that Mexico is not in fact a real country, but rather, a giant theme park which exists only to provide shocking, grotesque entertainment to curious onlookers from the civilized world.

In this case, that's you.

Mexico: Westworld, now without uppity yet superpoweful niggerbitch whores.

Breitbart:

> From January to March 2018, Mexico saw 852 train robberies, according to Mexico's Train System (SFM). That figure is almost seven times higher than the 125 recorded during the same time period in 2017. In three months, Mexico recorded more train robberies than720 robberies reported for 2017.
>
> "Train robberies have become a national security problem," said Mexican Congressman and former Chairman of the Bicameral Commission for National Security Waldo Fernandez during an exclusive interview with Breitbart Texas. "It is concerning the lack of attention that this is getting from the federation and the fact that none of the [presidential] candidates have spoken out about it. An attack on a train is a direct affront to the Mexican state."
>
> The uptick in train robberies and derailments come at a time when cartels diversified their operations from drug trafficking into human smuggling, human trafficking, kidnapping, and extortion. Business leaders in Mexico are concerned that unless the government addresses the issue in a timely manner, the practice will continue to spread.
>
> One of the most recent intentional derailments took place last month in the municipality of Orizaba, Veracruz, where a team of gunmen cut the train's brake lines in an apparent attempt to steal part of a shipment of 2,000 tons of corn and sorghum. The train was made up of four engine cars and 39 container cars that traveled at least 6 miles without brakes until colliding with another train. The wreck caused the derailment of 17 train cars, killed one of the drivers, and injured four crew. The wreck also caused considerable damage to the surrounding community.
>
> Video Link
> Classic, cartel people. Classic. Bravo.
>
> In recent weeks, Mexican authorities dealt with six separate train wrecks between Puebla and Veracruz. The crashes were caused by criminals removing rails or placing rocks on the tracks to steal the cargo.
>
> Intelligence information obtained by Breitbart Texas points to a cartel faction calling itself "Sangre Nueva Zeta" as being the one responsible for train robberies in Veracruz, Tlaxcala, and Puebla. Authorities are currently searching for Roberto "El Bukanas" De Los Santos de Jesus, a former municipal police officer turned regional leader for SNZ.

"Robert of the Saints of Jesus." What a fitting name for a dirty atzec "cop" who figured that everything was so destroyed in Mexico, he could just take a promotion to boss when the last boss died, and he'd make more money.

This should show you how close the police are with the cartels in Mexico.

Really, though, this guy's name. Get a load of this guy, ¿eh?

The Christian piety of these pitiless aztec bandits (or at least the "women" that name them) will never cease to amaze me. You did a great job with the missionary work, Spain.

You couldn't just exterminate the natives, now could you, Spain?

No.

THAT WOULDN'T HAVE BEEN VERY CATHOLIC OF YOU, NOW WOULD IT, SPAIN?

Now, and always.

> In the states of Guanajuato and Queretaro, the attacks on trains are carried out by Cartel Jalisco Nueva Generación (CJNG). The gunmen hold up the trains at gunpoint or through derailments to steal containers of fuel from refineries to other parts of Mexico.

I DON'T UNDERSTAND HOW THIS IS POSSIBLE.

MEXICO HAS DEMOCRACY, THE CHURCH, AND CAPITALISM.

WHAT DO YOU MEAN, "AZTECS CAN'T LIVE LIKE EUROPEANS"?

Yes, we can teach them to live with JUSTICE!

Ooga Booga! Constitution!

Breitbart:

> Over the weekend, Mexican federal authorities arrested Jorge "El Izquierdo" Ibarra Lozano in Guadalajara, Jalisco—a top regional commander. Law enforcement information leaked to Breitbart Texas reveals the arrest was carried out as part of a tactical operation by Mexican federal authorities. However, the success was short-lived. Less than 72 hours later, a federal judge ordered Ibarra Lozano's release after ruling the arrest was illegal.
>
> The release of the top tier lieutenant for the Beltran Leyva Cartel comes days after another judge released a top regional boss for Cartel Jalisco Nueva Generacion—also one of the founding leaders of the self-defense movement in Michoacan.
>
> As Breitbart Texas reported in late May, authorities in Michoacan arrested Juan Jose "El Abuelo" Farias, a regional commander for CJNG who hid his activities by passing himself off as one of the founding leaders of the "Auto-Defensa Movement." That arrest was also short-lived since a judge claimed the Mexican Navy lied in reports and there was not enough evidence to charge Farias.
>
> One month before that arrest, in February, the Mexican Navy carried out an operation targeting the leader of the Gulf Cartel faction controlling the border city of Matamoros, Tamaulipas. Three days later, a federal judge ruled the arrest was illegal, Breitbart Texas reported
>
> The man known as "El Izquierdo" is a close ally of Hector "La Burra or HH." Both cartel bosses are waging a fierce territorial war with another Beltran Leyva boss and former ally Rodolfo "El Gato" Villarreal Hernandez for control of the ritzy municipality of San Pedro, intelligence information provided to Breitbart Texas revealed.
>
> In 2009, authorities arrested El Izquierdo and La Burra on federal weapons charges after finding them in a business establishment filled with weapons and armored vehicles. After the arrest of his allies, El Gato took over San Pedro, its lucrative drug distribution areas, and its bustling business sector. For unknown reasons, a Mexican judge ordered the release of El Izquierdo and La Burra earlier this year. After their release, the duo turned from allies to enemies.

I've been avoiding writing about Mexico because it's like writing about Syria.

Fuck it.

Look, Mexico is really entertaining. Feuding cartel bosses, cartel warehouses full of american guns that americans aren't allowed to own and armored vehicles, corrupt cops, corrupt judges, violence, death, whores who are at least not niggerbitches, I mean...it's got a lot going on for itself.

As an amusement park.

His face when people would rather just watch real mexican crime because niggers

But, I mean, come on guys.

Do we really have to waste all this land on a giant theme park, just for our own sick entertainment?

Like, I know. It was funny. You laughed. I laughed, too. We all laughed.

But isn't this a lot of land?

I mean, look at these people. Just, look at them.

Video Magdalena; Jalisco, Mexico.

Célula Armada de Cartel Local Tablea a 2 Ratas... pic.twitter.com/Q8N4vQbnBh

— FR4NCI5C0 L4ND3T4 (@l4nd3t4) June 14, 2018

Mexico is lost.

After so many years trying, I think it would be better to just burn it all down and then start over from zero.

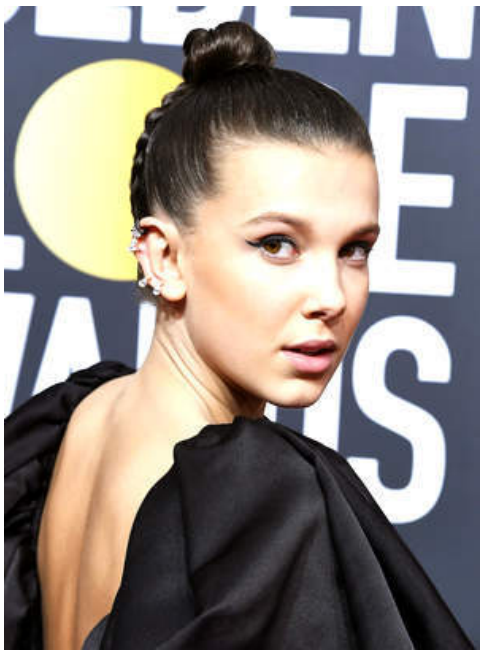
There's nothing wrong with the land.

The problem is with the people.

DS

Millie Bobby Brown Forced Off Twitter by Unironic Homosexual Mafia

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018



When liberals try to understand internet memes (or really anything at all for that matter) is really a sad thing to watch, at the same time it is funny.

It's sort of like watching a person with no arms or legs get thrown into a swimming pool.

Vox is the worst. These people pretend to analyze internet culture. But I can't tell if the entire site is just an ironic joke about how backward and clueless liberals actually are.

Vox:

> No one honestly believes Millie Bobby Brown runs over gay men with new cars. Just like no one honestly believes Millie Bobby Brown throws piping hot McCafés at people who wear pride T-shirts at McDonald's. Just like no one honestly believes that Millie Bobby Brown bullies gay men by sliding into their texts and dropping f-bombs (the one that rhymes with maggots).
>
> But what people don't believe doesn't really matter, as Millie Bobby Brown, the 14-year-old star of Netflix's Stranger Things, deactivated her Twitter account this week, reportedly in response to assertions like these.
>
> These claims are part of the #TakeDownMillieBobbyBrown meme, which consists of low-effort pictures—usually screengrabs from Brown's Snapchat—pasted over with absurdly homophobic statements.
>
> On the surface, the meme is shocking and in poor taste. Falsely portraying this young girl and child star as a raging homicidal bigot is heinous, and Brown deleting her Twitter to avoid this maelstrom is a logical response to the internet's festering orgy of toilet humor.
>
> If you dig deeper, this is also a story about the internet's deeply intertwined relationship with irony. It's about a meme that only succeeds because of how absurd it is, how pristine Brown's celebrity image is, and how outrage can drive the internet to be the worst version of itself.

This is the serious man who tried to write that shit:

The fuck do you serious people know about irony?

Remember that site the Daily Stormer, where it was just this edgy hipster guy with some weird type of autism who was making fun of neo-Nazis ironically but also ironically actually a neo-Nazi, and then unironic liberals got so confused that the SPLC and like a whole bunch of other Jewish groups sued him in federal court for making fun of them?

There is nothing "ironic" about this "meme."

> Im a gay transgender woman and I was wearing my gay pride shirt to a McDonald's earlier today. Suddenly @milliebobbybrown threw her piping hot mc cafe in my face and screamed "you dyke faggot you'll never be a real woman!" I now have ptsd and I'm blind #takedownmilliebobbybrown

Millie Bobby Brown hates trannies and other types of faggots. If she doesn't hate faggots, then why does she keep telling people she does? Because of irony? Well, that didn't work for that hipster Asian fetishist who ran the Daily Stormer. They showed his picture to Donald Trump after that ironic rally in Charlottesville that a bunch of real neon-nazis showed up to.

They were so jacked they intimidated all the hipsters into pretending they weren't being ironic.

Then some ironic hipster got legit tripped out and forgot how many layers of irony he was on and crashed his car into a crowd of people as a joke, and some fat woman had a completely unironic heartattack.

And you want to talk about layers within wheels?

The jacked unironic neo-Nazis who crashed the ironic Charlottesville event were ironically Russian members of Hezbollah.

Where does the line end?

Millie is joking when she insults the Islamic race?

Sure you can ironically attack someone at an airport for being an Islamic, but where do you draw the line?

The reason Millie quit Twitter is because it is a cesspit of faggotry now that all of the ironic neo-Nazis have been banned.

DS

It's Great We're Abusing Wetback Children – But We Need to Let Potential Invaders Know of It

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

The Guardian, eh?

Opinion

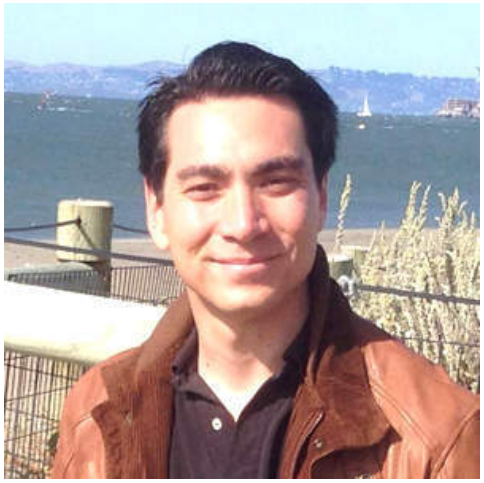
Child abuse is now part of America's official immigration policy

Michael Paarlberg

The trauma caused by separations is not the byproduct of necessary legal process – it's a punishment designed to be grotesque to scare other migrants

7,640 557

Michael Paarlberg, eh?



Child abuse...

As a government policy...

The Guardian:

It's impossible to look at the Trump administration's practice of migrant family separation and see it as anything other than what it is: institutionalized child abuse.

By now, there have been real horror stories: parents hearing their children screaming in the next room; a man who committed suicide when his three-year-old was taken from him; children kept in what Oregon senator Jeff Merkley described as a ""; a woman being by a border patrol agent: "You will never see your children again. Families don't exist here. You won't have a family any more."

Enough of these stories have come out that any questions of them being isolated incidents have been put to rest. These are not actions by rogue agents. They are systematic, and they come straight from the top. Indeed, attorney general Jeff Sessions has acknowledged as much, announcing in May a policy which had already been in practice for much of the past year.

Adults caught crossing the border illegally are transferred to criminal custody to be prosecuted for that crime—a misdemeanor—including those exercising their legal right to seek asylum. Their children are taken from them and placed in the custody of the Department of Health and Human Services as "unaccompanied minors". Sessions has equated parents with human traffickers: "If you are smuggling a child, then we will prosecute you and that child will be separated from you as required by law."

The trauma caused by these separations for parents and their children is not an unfortunate byproduct of a necessary legal process; it is the whole point. It is a punishment designed to be as grotesque as possible in order to scare other migrants. The use of family separation as a migration deterrent was discussed a year ago by Department of Homeland Security officials before it was formally adopted; since then, the administration has bragged that the separations have led to a drop in border crossings. This is, in fact, not true, based on DHS's own numbers, as Vox's Dara Lind has pointed out.

That such a policy is both unnecessarily cruel and ineffective in its stated purpose suggests it is simply sadism for its own sake, aimed at a population Donald Trump does not regard as human. It speaks to this administration's blind faith that making the migration process as dehumanizing as possible will make it less attractive, as if the migration process isn't unpleasant enough as it is for those desperate enough to undertake it.

So it isn't really sadism for its own sake, it's sadism as a deterrent. Which actually means it isn't sadism, because the definition of sadism includes "for its own sake." Otherwise it is just called "cruelty."

There are various kinds of cruelty, which sadism is a form of that is for its own sake. "Sadism for its own sake" is redundant.

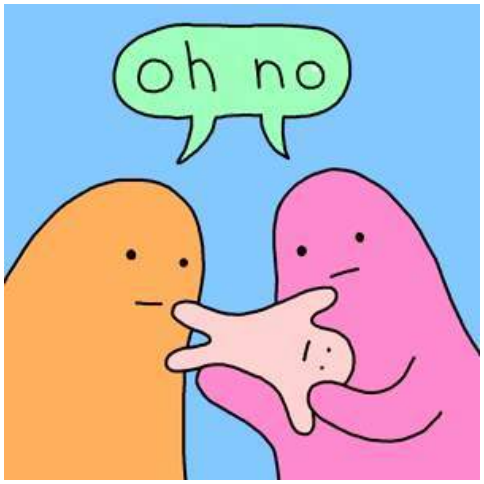
This is cruelty as a deterrent that is being described here.

That's all great, but the question is: are these stories being translated into Spanish?

We all love hearing about filthy spics getting brutally abused, but it is really only worth a shit if the spics who haven't tried to rush us yet get word of it.

We need to airdrop fliers throughout the brown world.

With this image:



But in Spanish.

DS

Okay So No, Cyberpunk 2077 Doesn't Have Full Frontal Nudity for Pozzed-Up Reasons

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

Video Link

So the right wing loves The Witcher. It's a Polish game series that did not do the poz. It was a masculine white male, feminine females, classic hero tale based on traditional European folk tales.

So when we heard the same studio was making a cyberpunk RPG, everyone was like Cyberpunk fits into all the memes of the current far-right counterculture. The themes are what we have warned about. The dystopian nightmare future realm created by materialist consumerism.

A pro-white game company taking on such a project was a match made in heaven. Especially while the new Battletech game has you choose pronouns when you create your 56% character.

Video Link

They took away all of our real life glory, then they came for our fantasy glories.

We deserve a refreshing fantasy glory—and it seems Cyberpunk 2077 will be that.

But you see a headline like this in Polygon

And you're like "please don't be trannies, please don't be trannies, please don't be trannies."

Polygon:

> The team at CD Projekt Red came to E3 this year with an enormous demo for its next game, Cyberpunk 2077.
>
> ...
>
> Early in the demo, the presenter revealed a mockup of the character creation system. It showed generic male and female avatars standing on a blue background. Both of them were completely nude, but their genitals were covered with pixelated white boxes of digital noise. Some in the crowd giggled. For some of them, I'm sure it was because they were uncomfortable with or perhaps prudish about nudity. Just as many likely giggled at the absurdity of censoring the human form in a video game.

Thanks for that bit of insight into the psychology of that crowd there, Mr. Polygon, sir.

Journalists seriously are the stupidest people on earth—and the smartest ones work in video game journalism, for sure.

> Adding those white boxes to the menu system at E3 was a tactical decision by the team at CD Projekt Red, game director Adam Badowski told Polygon. In the final version of the game, that digital noise will likely be removed. But for its big reveal, CD Projekt didn't want to be accused of using nudity for shock value, or to have its time with the international press sidetracked by conversations about male or female nudity in video games.
>
> ...
>
> "We covered these parts for one reason," said Badowski. "Because during the presentation, we don't want people to focus on and think about these things and laugh. It's normal! Nudity makes it more believable; that's why we want to have it. There's nothing special in it."
>
> Badowski said that in the final game, his team intends to have full nudity, not for shock value but because it supports one of the most important themes in the cyberpunk genre: transhumanism, the belief that humanity can transcend its current mental and physical form with the help of technology. Throughout Cyberpunk 2077, players will have to grapple with what it means for them personally to become transhuman, and one of the pieces of imagery the team plans to use is nudity.
>
> There was one scene in particular from the E3 demo that Badowski pointed to as an example. It opened with a simple quest to retrieve a kidnapped woman, but turned into a bizarre and gruesome tableau. The kidnappers weren't holding her for ransom; they were planning to chop her up for spare parts, harvesting the high-tech implants throughout her body for sale on the black market.

We are like, already there. Btw.

> After players gun down the enemies in the compound, they find the kidnapped woman and another NPC lying naked in a bathtub filled with ice. With her eyes rolled back in her head and her body glistening with water, the player must carry her in their arms out into the light to the waiting paramedics.
>
> "Nudity is important for us because of one reason," Badowski said. "This is cyberpunk, so people augment their body. So the body is no longer sacrum [sacred]; it's profanum [profane]. Because people modify everything, they are losing their connection to the body, to the meat. And that's why we need to use the nudity in many situations.
>
> "You see that there are bodies in the tub, and you need to take care of this woman. But at the same time she is augmented," he continued, searching for the right words. "She is not clean. Maybe she is augmented too much. Maybe the humanity level is pretty low in her, so it's an interesting topic. It's one of the key themes in cyberpunk. The very first scenes in the original Ghost in the Shell anime show exactly the same aspect. Because where is sacrum and where is profanum in a world when you can simply modify yourself to such limits that it makes you a different kind of person? It's one of the most important themes in cyberpunk, as a genre."

Okay yeah so.

That's a legit cyberpunk reason to include nudity.

I am obviously tired of the absolute over-sexualization of modern society. Just like I think everyone else is—whether they are aware of it or not. There is a kind of fatigue we are all feeling on some level. Especially since the saturation sexualization of public society has correlated with a lack of actual sex being had by most people.

BUT

At this point, there is so much of it, having real nudity in a cyberpunk game is hardly something that matters.

I just hope they don't have graphic sex in it, like in Altered Carbon on Netflix.

Video Link

That killed it for me. I can't sit there and watch porno-tier sex scenes in a TV show like that. I stopped watching the show before the reveal that his lost love was a purebred monkey-bitch.

Although I did already know he was a Japanese man plugged into a white man's body.

A Jap with a negress is like the weirdest of all combos. I doubt it has ever happened in real life.

Soundtrack is def worthwhile tho.

Video Link

But Yeah

I think Cyberpunk 2077 is going to be the thing we want it to be.

I think it's gonna be a Bladerunner 2 tier piece of Alt-Right media.

I don't really have much time to play games personally, but I can see myself making time for this one.

It might not even be out until 2020...and hopefully by then I'll have some vacation days every once in a while.

DS

Trump on G7: "We're Still Friends Tho lol"

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

So the media is giving all these quotes about how everyone at the G7 is freaking out over Trump telling them all to go to hell.

Merkel posted this picture herself:

And there were plenty more other such photos.

So Trump goes on Twitter yesterday and was like "yeah but look at these ones LOL."

> I have a great relationship with Angela Merkel of Germany, but the Fake News Media only shows the bad photos (implying anger) of negotiating an agreement—where I am asking for things that no other American President would ask for! pic.twitter.com/Ib97nN5HZt
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 15, 2018

> The Fake News Media said that I did not get along with other Leaders at the #G7Summit in Canada. They are once again, WRONG! pic.twitter.com/I6eEKEZV6z
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 15, 2018

> Great discussions with European Union Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker and EU Council President Donald Tusk at the #G7Summit in Canada last week. pic.twitter.com/kGxXe50459
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 15, 2018

Of course, he isn't actually trying to say "we're all friends, really!" as his literal words imply he is saying.

He is saying that he acted cool the whole time, and they're all just a bunch of assholes for talking shit about him after acting cool to his face.

I dunno guys. I never want to be too optimistic, because it feels like whenever I start to get really excited about Trump's acts, he does something horrible like bombing Syria.

But with cautious optimism: this whole thing is looking really, really great.

The trade war I mean.

And just the entire confrontational stance against Europe and Canada.

This is what we wanted.

What he is saying is true—the numbers are there to show it for anyone who wants to look at it: these people have been ripping us off for decades.

China knows it, and is looking at this rationally, like "yeah, okay, we had a good run, now we're gonna have to make a deal with an actual serious guy." Of course, Xi is going to try to get the best deal he can, but he understands it to be all about numbers.

Kind like if you've been stealing huge handfuls of complimentary Ketchup packets from McDonald's and using it at home instead of buying bottles of Ketchup at the store and the McDonald's gets a new manager and he's like "hey man, you're not allowed to take handfuls of that Ketchup," and so you're like yeah, okay, I'm gonna have to start buying Ketchup at the store.

But Europe is morally outraged.

They genuinely believe that it is the moral imperative of White America to spread our wealth around the entire world, in order to create a one-world government.

"Free trade" is at the core of that. It is the base level. Then comes the immigration. Then come the international/supernational governing bodies, which are technically presented as extensions of trade agreements (remember that the EU was a "free trade" and open borders bloc that then started passing laws relating to civil matters).

So Trump is really striking at the core of globalism itself with these trade wars.

He is committing a form of blasphemy against the church of the multicult.

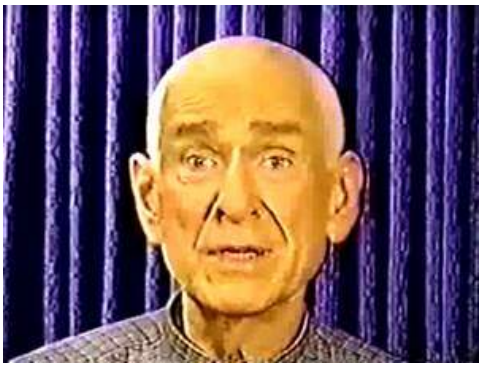
It is a massive, massive deal that I think probably a lot of people don't grasp the importance of.

Merekel grasps it.

DS

Salon: "Cut Trump Supporters Off" – This is Some Cult Shit TBH

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018



Liberals are mad about Trump, we all know that.

But hey, this is a new level of classy.

Basically, just cut off anyone who likes Trump out of your life! Liberals were already doing this...but now they have an official liberal rag telling them that it's their moral duty to kick the moral outrage into overdrive.

The goofy negroid chap Chauncey Devega writes for Salon:

> Trump and Sessions' and the Republican Party's assault on the human rights and dignity of nonwhite immigrants and refugees has already turned lethal. Marco Antonio Munoz, a Honduran man seeking sanctuary, killed himself after having his child taken away from him. A 19-year-old named Manuel Antonio Cano-Pacheco was killed in Mexico after being deported by ICE enforcers.
>
> This is part of a larger strategy of "soft" ethnic cleansing where the ultimate goal is to prevent the United States from becoming a "majority minority" country.
>
> Of course, separating children from their parents is not new in America. It was a horror afflicted on black people who were owned for centuries as human property. Native American children and young adults were also taken from their families and sent away to schools such as Dartmouth in order to be "whitened" as a means of committing cultural genocide.

So that's the long preamble. Here's the defooing shit:

> Politics begins in the home with how children are taught lessons about right and wrong, obedience and freedom, and their responsibilities to other people usually first in the most immediate sense (parents and family) and then encompassing neighbors and community, and finally to humankind, other animals and the natural world more broadly.
>
> Who we choose to include among our friends and associates—and yes, even kin—is a political statement because it reflects our values and beliefs. The personal is political in ways both obvious and subtle. This includes the quotidian as well as grand gestures and acts.
>
> And so, a proposal.
>
> If you have friends or relatives who support Donald Trump you should confront them. Explain to them that they are complicit with Trump's cruelty and sadism. Then communicate that you will no longer speak with them, nor will you offer them emotional, financial or other types of support until they denounce Donald Trump and what he represents—and make amends through speech and action.
>
> This will not be easy. Doing what is right rarely is. But it is necessary.

Life should not be ordered around virtue-signaling.

No really, think about it. This is not a natural state of affairs. Only people with excess money and a gnawing feeling of emptiness in their life feel the need to go out of their way and virtue-signal this hard.

And let's take a step back even further to understand what's going on here.

Relationships among men are mostly business-related. You work together, you've got a project together, you're trying to make some money together—whatever.

Then you've got the whole common experience-based relationship. You both grew up in the same town together, chased the same girls, have shared experiences—you can relate to one another.

This is the most natural state of affairs.

And then, increasingly, you have the lifestyle-based friendship.

This is what colleges and universities and living in big cities encourages. You share the same lifestyle as someone and you create friendships based on that. Your views, your attitude towards the world, they're all shaped by lifestyle niche you and your new friends have carved out for yourselves.

This type of relationship is the most restricting.

You've got to keep up the same values and behaviors as your social circle to keep it going, basically. People start looking like they are part of a cult.

And then they start "cutting off" people that don't conform to their lifestyle standards.

So increasingly, you can't have a "non-political" friendship anymore. Salon is just finally spelling it out in clear black and white. Don't even try. You're a bad person for doing it.

A counter-example: even if you start getting edgy and into some weird bugman shit in your little Romanian village, the grannies won't really give a damn, and your childhood friends are more likely to shrug it off. Their friendship is not conditional on you keeping a certain "viewpoint" on the world.

You've got shared experience.

However, as we get more and more atomized, this kind of friendship that transcends political values and fashion trends begins to die out. We start identifying along political tribal lines. Depending on our views.

And this also bleeds into the workplace. Relationships that should simply be about mutual gain and project-building suddenly require ideological conformity as well. The workplace is getting politicized too.

So that sucks.

But whatever, if the liberals want to push things to the next level, let's do it.

Politicizing everything leads to society balkanizing. Less and less normies every day.

Sure, you can bully a lot of people into becoming liberals, but you can also convince many apolitical people of the necessity for RWDS as well, who wouldn't have cared otherwise.

Radicalization is a dangerous game.

It's like breaking a wishbone—you don't know who will be left with the larger bone at the end.

I'm willing to roll the dice though. So keep at it, Salon. Keep on pushing people. Let's see how this turns out.

DS

So I Guess Minneapolis Cops Were Just Injecting Suspects with Ketamine During Arrests, Hm.

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

> At urging of Minneapolis police, Hennepin EMS workers subdued dozens with a powerful sedative. https://t.co/JhkQIe8fre pic.twitter.com/9M9jRL6NV4
>
> — Star Tribune (@StarTribune) June 15, 2018

I have never heard of cops injecting people they are arresting with anything.

You would think you would hear about it, because you would think that it would be black people that they were doing it to, and that this would be some kind of police brutality issue.

Hearing about this now is incredibly strange.

Fox News:

> Police in Minneapolis have been ordered to "never suggest or demand" that paramedics sedate a suspect during a police call, following a recent report that such treatment of suspects had spiked in recent years.
>
> The May 18 order from police Cmdr. Todd Sauvageau says that decisions on sedating suspects are to be made by Hennepin County paramedics, not city police officers, the Minneapolis Star-Tribune reported.
>
> The police policy order coincided with the completion of a report by the city's Office of Police Conduct Review (OCPR), which showed that paramedics' injections of ketamine into suspects during police calls had increased from three in 2012 to 62 in 2017, the newspaper reported.

How was this ever even a thing?

Why are paramedics coming to the scene of arrests? And if someone is already arrested, why would they need to be injected with a tranquilizer?

Are police generally allowed to direct paramedics on how to treat people medically?

Is this only Minnesota doing this?

> Ketamine is considered a powerful tranquilizer and is classified as a "date rape drug" in the Minneapolis police manual, according to the Star-Tribune. In some cases, it can stop a person's heart or breathing, the report said.
>
> Police officers regularly ordered paramedics to administer ketamine, the OCPR report says. It then questions why suspects received the drug before being transported to a hospital, "given the immediate effects on breathing and heart function that the drug induces."
>
> The OCPR report drew conflicting reactions from local officials, the Star-Tribune story said.
>
> Hennepin Healthcare EMS Medical Director Jeffrey Ho and Minnesota Poison Control System Medical Director Jon Cole dismissed the findings as a "reckless use of anecdotes and partial snapshots of interactions with police, and incomplete information and statistics to draw uninformed and incorrect conclusions."

Talk about word soup—were the cops ordering paramedics to inject suspects with date rape drugs or not, Mr. Ho?

It's a pretty simple either-or.

Video Link

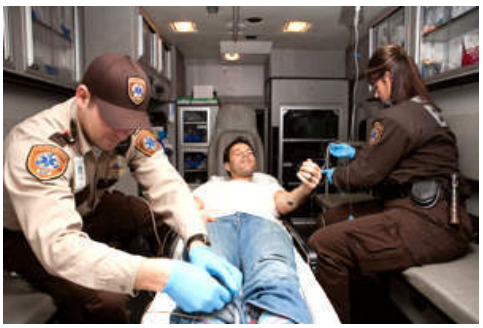
I am relatively certain that this is not a practice of police in any other country.

Americans generally do not understand that we absolutely do live in a police state.

The core reason is that we have black people. They require extreme measures. So the police are all trained on how to deal with black people, because obviously, in our perfectly equal paradise, you can't train law enforcement to deal differently with blacks and whites.

So whenever you are in a situation with a cop, odds are you're going to be treated like a nigger.

If you get arrested in a white European country, and you are not flipping out crazy, they don't even bother to handcuff you—let alone inject you with high-power tranquilizers.



It used to be that cops understood that you don't treat whites like they are niggers, because they are not niggers. But at this point, the people who become cops are generally low quality people. Because what is the motivation? The pay is bad, the risk is high, there is not really much room to move up the ranks. So it's mostly just people who want to go on power trips, or who are too stupid to do anything else.

Video Link

I say "mostly" —that's based on anecdotal evidence, of course. We don't have statistics on this. I'm sure some are good people.

But for real, you guys who have never left America have no idea. In these allegedly "not free" countries like China, Russia, etc. you don't ever have any problems with the cops.

In America, it is pretty much impossible to not have some kind of weird, uncomfortable and/or degrading interaction with police at least a couple times a year, if not on a monthly basis.

I don't think we should frame cops as "enemies of the people" and my instinct as an authoritarian personality is to support the cops. But if they are just a bunch of assholes on power trips abusing people for personal reasons, then that is no longer in-line with the authoritarian ideal.

Authoritarianism is not tyranny. In fact, it is the opposite. Ideally, a hierarchal society based on natural law is the freest kind of society.

The cops have gotten really bad, and the automatic deference to the innate goodness of cops because they are cops is boomer-tier. In a society with a completely corrupt ruling class, their enforcers are going to embody that corruption.

Bottom line: the majority of American cops act like a nigger gang.

I don't say that as an anarchist or someone who is in any way against the idea of police or even against the idea of a "police state." I am merely making an observation on the objectively abhorrent behavior that we see from these boys in blue.

DS

Tommy Robinsonoution: Have the Britons Had Enough?

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

With Tommy Robinson's arrests, I expected absolutely nothing to happen.

But then I saw all the Tommys out on the streets, chasing down police and working themselves up into a righteous rage at the treatment of their boy, Tommy Robinson, by the UK police.

> #TommyRobinson Turn This Up Full Blast #FreeTommy 14th July Whitehall London 3pm pic.twitter.com/1O4eUfb2Gd
>
> — Fuck All The Haters Don't Like What U See Unfollow (@DAYFORFREEDOM4) June 13, 2018

This thing is really gaining traction—just from looking at the crowds and the events they have planned.

They've got a march coming up on the 23rd. Should be fun.

Hopefully, the police are just as incompetent and unprepared for the crowds as they were the first time around.

Video Link

Meanwhile, Tommy pled guilty to the charges leveled against him. I'm not sure what the logic and reasoning behind this was.

Wouldn't pleading non-guilty lead to a massive trial and media coverage?

What is the point of pleading guilty and sitting in prison quietly for an entire year?

Whatever.

Long story short, he's basically out of the game for a year at this point. Unless he gets martyred in prison. Which...I don't think is going to happen.

His gay friend thinks so.

Seems drama queeny.

But this is the UK government we're talking about here, so who knows.

But it is in the Chad Chav that we must place our faith now.

Getting the police to back down and run like they did last week was a big morale booster.

And in general, what the police have allowed to go down all over the UK has basically led to a shift in the public consciousness about the police.

They're hated by patriotic normies now too. That's a big development tbh.

If they keep up the momentum, this free speech movement has got some potential. At least some coppers will get beat up anyway, which I don't condone...

But I understand.

DS

Israeli Politician Announces That Jews are the Master Race

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

Following yesterday's revelation that the kike scientist and hoax master Albert Einstein was a virulent chink-basher, we today have the shocking revelation that Jews believe they are the master race.

A Likud MP just said it, aloud in public.

RT:

> The "Jewish race" is the smartest in the world and possesses the highest human capital, so Israelis ought to be skeptical about the current corruption probes into Israel's PM Benjamin Netanyahu, a Likud party lawmaker has claimed.
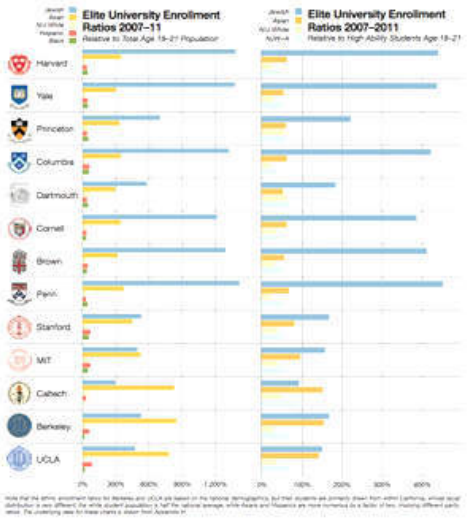
>
> "I can tell you something very basic," MK Miki Zohar said, during a debate on Radio 103FM on Wednesday, as cited by the Times of Israel: "You can't fool the Jews, no matter what the media writes. The public in Israel is a public that belongs to the Jewish race, and the entire Jewish race is the highest human capital, the smartest, the most comprehending."
>
> Citing opinion polls showing widespread support for Netanyahu, Zohar said that statistics clearly show that the "Jewish race" is too smart to be fooled by extensive media coverage of the multiple corruption probes. The somewhat clumsy attempt to defend the Israeli PM immediately landed the ruling party member in hot water.
>
> The loud statement about Jewish supremacy struck a nerve with Ahmad Tibi, an Arab-Muslim Israeli politician and leader of the Arab Movement for Change party, who, on Twitter, accused his Israeli counterpart of devising his own racial theory. "An elected official in 'the Jewish state' presents: race theory," he tweeted, along with a portrait of Zohar.
>
> pic.twitter.com/g0uGhBpYt7
>
> — Ahmad Tibi (@Ahmad_tibi) June 13, 2018

It isn't his own racial theory. It is the racial theory that all Jews have had for as long as they've existed.

It's the basis for their entire religion, this idea that they are "God's chosen people" destined to rule over the "goyim," a word that means cattle which they use to refer to all non-Jews.

The fact that he accidentally dropped that little tidbit in the middle of a rant defending Netanyahu is not really that weird. This underlines all of their thinking, the way they engage the entire world in all of their strange acts.

They will say it in "nicer" ways even in America. When people ask why they are so vastly overrepresented in Ivy League universities, in banking, in the media, in Hollywood, in the music industry or just simply in the wealthy elite, they will claim it is because they have a higher IQ or just say "we're very talented." But of course the underlying sentiment is that they are a superior race.



Jews claiming to be the master race is not really even news.

It's the defining characteristic of Jewish identity.

"Jews are the real racists" is not a meme that I particularly like, because it implies racism is a bad thing. But it is legit true that they are the most racist people on earth. They are the only people with a religion that states explicitly that their god made them to rule over all other peoples.

Well, maybe the Nation of Islam sort of says that, kind of. It at least says that white people were created by a black scientist in an experiment gone wrong.

Video Link

Anyway, that is just some silly negro gibberish.

Jews are actually enacting their master race agenda.

DS

World

France: Rare Female Allahu Akbaring with Boxcutters

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Someone was just having a bad day. RT:

A woman reportedly shouting "Allahu Akbar" has attacked and injured two people at a supermarket in La Seyne-sur-Mer, southeastern France. She has been taken into custody and is being checked for terrorist links.

She was detained after assaulting an employee and a customer with a cutter knife at a store in the Var department on Sunday, BFM TV reports, citing a local prosecutor.

It is said that the customer was stabbed in the chest, while the employee was injured in the eye. The attacker, dressed in black and wearing a veil, was stopped by the supermarket staff, BFM TV reports.

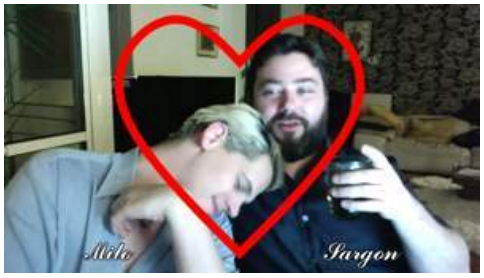
The woman shouted "Allahu Akbar" at the moment of the attack, according to an AFP reporter who spoke with witnesses. However, the woman could have a mental disorder, the prosecutor noted. Still, police have not ruled out the possibility that the woman had been radicalized.

The thing is—I don't think this woman was an ISIS operative.

I think that she just had a chimp out because that's what sandniggers do from time to time. Libshits who would no doubt be scoffing—assuming they haven't turtled up and stopped paying attention to the news at this point—and saying, "there is no proof that this was a terror attack" are probably right

But the whole terrorism thing is just part of the problem that people have with mass Moslem immigration. It's an easy issue to latch onto because everyone is "anti—terror." Just like everyone is "pro-life" in the sense that no one is really "anti-life" except for some very edgy minors.

Meanwhile, the Alt-Lite or classical liberals or Sargonites or idk what to even call them—people who are simply "anti-Islam" because they stand for liberal values are getting closer to the problem when they say that Islam as a religion is the problem.



But it's only nationalists who point out that it is indeed terrorism and a radically stupid ideology that are big problems...but it is also the very presence of these people in countries where they don't belong.

Eh.

But you get that at this point. We all do on a deep biological level. Only charlatans and cowards don't at this point.

This woman probably didn't have an ISIS premium membership—but doesn't that just prove our point that even the regular non-radicalized sand-people are a problem too?

DS

Terror Attempt at World Cup: Haji Launches Half-Assed Taxi Attack at Mexican Tourists

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

News agencies are saying that this was an accident. Take a look and see for yourself:

Video Link

Does that look like an accident to you?

RT:

A Moscow taxi driver reportedly lost control of his car and drove his vehicle onto a crowded sidewalk, injuring seven people, including two Mexican nationals who had come to Russia for the World Cup.

The accident occurred on the busy Ilyinka Street near Red Square, where many tourists and locals were out celebrating the Russia 2018 Mundial. Video footage of the crash shows a yellow cab abruptly accelerating out of the line of slowly moving cars and swerving onto the sidewalk. The vehicle ran into several pedestrians then crashed into a road sign.

I get why they would want to play down this attack. They want the games to go smoothly.

But from my point of view, it seems clear that this was a deliberate attack.

Six pedestrians were slightly injured, while one woman received medium injuries, according to authorities. The Mexican Embassy confirmed two of their citizens were hurt.

The driver attempted to flee the site of the crash, with a visibly angry crowd chasing him, footage shot by bystanders shows. It remains unclear whether people apprehended the suspect, or if police got to him first.

> "According to preliminary data, the crash occurred when the driver lost control of the car," Moscow police said, after questioning the detained suspect and launching a criminal probe into the incident.

Furthermore, even though the Kyrgyz are not known for committing terror attacks, the Uzbeks are and there are plenty of Uzbeks living in Kyrgyzstan. So we need more info on that, but if the man is an Uzbek from Kyrgyzstan, then the probability of this being deliberate jumps up to around ninety percent.

But woah, woah, woah.

Let's not be too quick to judge here. Perhaps this man was simply a patriotic, God-fearing American Nationalist?

He did, after all, target Mexicans.

I may end up regretting labeling this guy a terrorist when he might clearly simply be a partisan fighter against the Beaner menace, who didn't want the streets of Moscow to be polluted by border-hopping filth like the streets of America—a country that he has never been to, but that he nevertheless dearly loves.

Furthermore, perhaps this really was an accident.

Whenever I see Mexicans, I too am overcome by overwhelming bloodthirst and my big toe itches for the accelerator.

DS

Italy Gets More Based: Pig Head Attack on Local Refugee Center by Patriots

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

Italy, please, don't stop being based. You're my one-stop source for white pills atm.

Il Gazettino:

> A pig head with some parts of entrails were found in Sacile on the concrete fence pillar in front of the garden of the building in Via San Giovanni del Tempio, at number 77, a building managed by the social cooperative Karpos of Porcia.

> It was just past 6:30 today, Friday, June 15, when the pig's head was found by some asylum seekers. The Carabinieri arrived immediately from the Radiomobile rate of the Compagnia di Sacile. The head was removed from the staff of the company Environment and services which then took her to a compactor.
>
> The eight asylum seekers who have been on the ground floor of the structure since 2016 have never created problems. There have never been complaints from neighbors or the local community. All the investigations by the military of the Arma are under way to determine if there are any correlations between the grisly gesture and today's Thanksgiving party for the end of Ramadan. The refugees did not lodge a complaint even though they considered themselves very offended and regretted.

DAMN STRAIGHT. YOU NO LIKE IT, YOU LEAVA, HUH?

Anyways.

On the subject of pigs and pig heads.

I like it.

It's like a nithing pole.

I also like the boar as a symbol of Europe and European resistance.

It's got an ancient Gallic, Germanic, even Roman element to it.

The boar has some great qualities that we definitely want to associate with our nationalist movement.

Like, did you know that a pig who makes it out of the enclosure and into the woods starts growing bristles and tusks again once it's free for some time?

Its wild nature comes back out again.

Furthermore, boars are dangerous. Their hide is so thick that it can take a bullet and still keep coming at you. Boars are nature's tanks. If you get chased up a tree, the boar will ram the damn tree and gore its roots until the damn thing falls and it can get at you.

Because boars are stubborn and tough and when they get enraged, they get mad.

So yeah, great symbol overall.

And I'm not even getting into the implicitly anti-semitic element because of halal and kosher and all that.

More of this, please.

Every European man worth his salt needs to start running a pig farm. We need more swine farmers in our movement. These things are lethal, they're good at eating dead Moslems...and they're good at finding expensive mushrooms which is a nice bonus.

Pigs are a European nationalist's best friend.

Dogs and cats are ok, I guess.

But if you want to be taken seriously by serious nationalists, you need to get yourself a pig, STAT.

Pigs are trad AF. And only whites own them as things stand. That makes them implicit AF as well.

Don't end up looking like a fool, get yourself a piggy.

DS

China CRUSHED by Trump Tariffs! 25pct.! The Jig is UP!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

This just keeps getting better and better.

RT:

The White House has announced a 25-percent tariff on $50 billion worth of Chinese goods in what it calls a clampdown on unfair trade practices by Beijing.

The US trade representative's office said it issued a revised China tariff list covering 1,102 separate product categories. The first package of revised tariffs will apply to $34 billion of Chinese imports, on 818 product lines, and will enter into effect from July 6. The second package will target the remaining $16 billion of Chinese goods, on 284 product lines.

Since his presidential election campaign, US President Donald Trump has pledged to cut the trade deficit between the US and China and to curb Beijing's allegedly unfair trade practices. Trump has also accused China of stealing US technology and intellectual property.

"In light of China's theft of intellectual property and technology and its other unfair trade practices, the US will implement a 25 percent tariff on $50 billion of goods from China that contain industrially significant technologies," according to the White House statement.

"This includes goods related to China's Made in China 2025 strategic plan to dominate the emerging high-technology industries that will drive future economic growth for China, but hurt economic growth for the United States and many other countries."

...

Beijing said it would swiftly impose retaliatory levies on American imports worth $50 billion. Shortly after China's warning, the White House threatened tariffs on a further $100 billion of Chinese exports.

The thing about this is...China will make deals.

This is actually going to come to a conclusion with them, because they get what Trump is doing. They understand the idea of a nation protecting its own interests.

The people who will not deal are the Europeans. They are ideologically committed to the whole free trade thing as an aspect of globalism—the Jew plot to create a one-world government. So there is no room to deal with them.

I think Trump is going to do this thing with China, then make a deal with China, then look at Europe and say "China made a deal, why can't you make a deal?"

They won't ever come out and say "this is about a plot to create a global government." They speak in euphemisms about "the international order" and "universal democratic values." But when Trump is about "well for me, it's about money," they have no idea how to respond. Because they never expected that any world leader would be able to come at them with that.

What will be interesting is to see what Britain does.

Because historically, they have been an independent and capable country that actually could be a decent trade partner, in theory.

And they did Brexit.

But you know...they're ruled by kikes and women, and they don't really seem to have any clear plans post-Brexit.

DS

Christian Ronaldo Did Up on Tax Hoax! Sentenced to 2 Years in Prison!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

Okay so maybe he ripped off the government on taxes. I don't really see why he would do that, he's not exactly short on cash. But maybe he did.

So fine him then.

How do you put the most famous athlete in the world in prison over taxes? Is this real? Is the sentence going to be suspended?

Or is he actually going directly to jail without passing go?

RT:

Cristiano Ronaldo has been handed a 2-year prison sentence and ordered to pay €18.8 mln to the Spanish Treasury after failing to comply with tax laws. However, he will not serve the jail term as he has no previous criminal record.

Ronaldo is currently in Russia for the 2018 World Cup with the Portugal national team, whom he will captain against Spain in their Group B opener in Sochi on Friday.

According to Marca, Ronaldo is hoping to pay a further fine in place of the suspended sentence.

I think we all know what this is.

It's because of this meme.

It became a very famous meme, which caused many persons from a wide spectrum to hate the filthy lying kikes.

I don't even think he is actually saying "the Jews did this." But the Jews don't care.

They simply want to crush him.

He is a weird guy with a fat girlfriend, but he doesn't deserve this.

Neon-nazi website Daily Stormer was one of the only sites willing to go to bat for Ronaldo against the bullying campaign which forced him to date a fat woman.

DS

UK: Paki Home Secretary to Flood NHS with Colored Doctors and Nurses

Michael Byron
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

A Paki was made Home Secretary last April.

I'm not sure how it happened. Allegedly, Theresa May saw him shitting in the gardens of Westminster and hired him on the spot.

Two months later, that Paki (with the help of his English-to-Urdu translator) is already signing documents to swamp the NHS with fellow colorfuls.

Daily Mail:

> Sajid Javid is planning a major relaxation of immigration laws before Brexit and will ease a cap on foreign medics working in the UK to allow the NHS to recruit more staff.
>
> The new Home Secretary will remove doctors and nurses from the annual 20,700 "tier 2" visa limit on non-EU workers.
>
> Other employers will be able to recruit an extra 8,000 skilled migrants a year, including IT experts, engineers and teachers, effectively raising the cap by 40 per cent.

Immigrants: they do the jobs that white people don't want to do.

Basically, this means that more and more Britons—even those living in small white towns—will end up having their prostates examined by people who consider their hands an acceptable substitute for toilet paper.

And that's if they're lucky. The unluckiest ones will get a coal-black witch doctor, whomst British officials plucked from a tree in Swaziland and shipped to Britain in a well-ventilated crate.

It does make sense, though.

You can't maintain a First World country without a Third World population.

> Businesses will also be given a higher allocation, according to The Daily Telegraph.

Allocation, or state-enforced quota?

I suspect the latter.

> Mr Javid is believed to favour a vision of Britain as a global country, open to business from beyond the EU after Brexit.

A raceless mongrel with no ancestral links to his host nation campaigning to transform it into a global marketplace that can be auctioned off to the highest bidder?

Anyone who says they could have predicted this is lying.

> Mr Javid is also expected to launch the first review in five years of the professions that could qualify for visas, meaning that GPs, teachers and other skilled migrants could gain the right to enter the UK under tier 2 visas.
>
> ...
>
> In a letter to the Prime Minister, Mr Javid is understood to have warned that an increase in the number of doctors recruited from outside the EU has meant the cap for all skilled workers—which is set at 20,700 people a year—has been breached in every month since December.

For some Hebrew reason, the notion of simply training more British doctors and nurses never seems to enter the equation with these "the NHS needs more foreign staff" discussions. Oh, it'll be brought up once or twice in passing, presumably to placate the restless goyim, but it is never a serious card on the table.

I guess it would interfere too much with that whole "Kalergi plan" I keep hearing about...

DS

Axis of Resistance Forming In Europe: Ministers Taking Matter Into Their Own Hands!

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

Sebastian Kurz and Horst Seehofer

Three interior ministers in Austria, Germany and Italy have had enough.

Even Merkel's minister, Horst Seehofer, has decided to do something about that fat bitch dyke's plans to exterminate the European peoples.

This guy is part of Merkel's party—sort of—he's actually from the southern Bavarian party that's more based, but still, he's not exactly an opposition AfD candidate.

RT:

In a landmark agreement, the interior ministers of Austria, Germany and Italy have banded together against illegal migration, but the move is more likely to split the German Cabinet than it is to make the EU change its mind.

"In our view, we need an 'axis of the willing' in the fight against illegal migration," Austrian chancellor Sebastian Kurz said after meeting with Horst Seehofer, Germany's interior minister in Berlin. "I am happy about the cooperation that we want to develop between Rome, Vienna and Berlin."

This is the first time central European powers have joined forces against illegal migrants, more than 1.8 million of whom have entered the continent in the past four years. In his statement Kurz called the peak of the influx in 2015 a "catastrophe" that "must be prevented" in the future. A previous such alliance in Eastern Europe, the Visegrád Four, led by Hungary and Poland, who erected guarded borders and refused to accept EU refugee quotas, was repeatedly censured by Brussels.

So now we have the Visegrad Four.

...and a possible Axis of Resistance?

That's pretty cool tbh.

The only problem is that unlike Italy and Austria that have elected populist-right candidates to office and have a political mandate, in Germany you basically have a rogue minister about to face the wrath of the awakened bull dyke.

I'm not sure what reaching out to Italy and Vienna will do for poor Horst.

Like, won't he just end up getting the boot?

Merkel is deadset on effecting the Kalergi plan for Europe, and a rogue minister isn't going to stop her.

Merkel's recalcitrance has put her on a clear collision course with Seehofer, whose CSU, theoretically a sister party of Merkel's CDU in the large state of Bavaria, has grown increasingly rebellious.

Seehofer was due to present a 63-point "Migration Masterplan" on Tuesday, which would create an "asylum turnaround" in the country that has accepted more refugees than any other EU state. If the plan is enacted, migrants who had already registered in other EU countries would be sent away from Germany's borders and returned to the initial country. While it fits in with the idea that asylum seekers should not "shop" for the country that gives it the best welcome and benefits, Merkel has feared that copycat laws would follow across Europe, as one country after another would close its borders to avoid becoming the receptacle for all of the continent's undocumented migrants.

With the rift exposed, Seehofer demonstratively and symbolically pulled out of a scheduled conference on integration on Wednesday, instead choosing the counter-program to meet with Kurz. Despite the gulf between him and Merkel, Seehofer insisted Wednesday that he aimed to strike a compromise with Chancellor Merkel this week.

So what does it mean????

Is there finally a light at the end of the tunnel for Europe??

Did I live long enough to see it?

DS

Queen of England is Forced Into the Negro Section of Train (Bad Economy)

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

"I'm deeply sorry, Your Majesty, but I have my orders—you have to ride the niggertrain to work today. It's because of the economy and Brexit or some such."

So now the poor old queen is being forced to ride the Negro train to work?

Cromwell, what hell hath thou wrought upon England?

USA Today:

> All aboard, Meghan Markle!
>
> The new Duchess Meghan of Sussex is getting a master's-class lesson in her new royal job—from Queen Elizabeth II, no less—with an unprecedented invitation to board The Royal Train for a day of solo engagements with Her Majesty in Cheshire on Thursday.
>
> After an overnight rail trip Wednesday, the 92-year-old monarch and her 36-year-old granddaughter-in-law arrived in northwest England, about 165 miles from London, with a to-do schedule that includes a variety of typical royal engagements: They're opening a new bridge, visiting a theater and having lunch with local big-wigs.
>
> Meghan wore an off-white, form-fitting dress with a stylish black belt, while the queen was resplendent in a lime green coat with a matching hat, white gloves and a black purse.
>
> It's not unusual the queen would schedule a day of engagements with a new member of the royal family, although it is somewhat early: The American-born duchess married the queen's grandson, Prince Harry, now Duke of Sussex, less than a month ago, on May 19, in a spectacular wedding that blended royal tradition and American zest.
>
> The queen is making sure Meghan gets all the help she might need in adapting to her new royal duties— and who better to show her the ropes than someone who's been on the job since she was a teen princess.

"Show her the ropes," lol.

I'm not touching that one.

But seriously, guys.

This is England now:

I ain't even feeling mad right now.

It's really too surreal to even be mad about.

At least that is my present feeling, looking at it.

POST SCRIPT

I just want to say to all yall muffuggahs who got mad when I said as mulattoes go, Zendaya looks less like a monkey than Meghan Markle—Meghan has had more surgery and lightened her skin more.

Plus, yall were using this picture of Zendaya to try to prove Markle was less monkeylike.

Pre-surgery.

Post-surgery Zendaya is less monkeylike than post-surgery Markle.

But rather than talking about which mulatto has the best plastic surgery, we should maybe be laughing about the fact that "plastic surgery to make her more attractive" is the same thing as "plastic surgery to make her features more like a white person's and less like a black person's."

DS

Flips: Hero Duterte Giving Out 42,000 Guns to Community Leaders to Kill Drug Dealers

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

It's easy to get guns in the Philippines, and most Barangay Captains probably already have them—but he is giving them a better gun, and most importantly, giving them a right to kill whoever they want with it.

RT:

> The Philippines' Interior Ministry has announced plans to provide some 42,000 community leaders with free handguns to ramp up the statewide battle against drugs and crime, which continues to draw the ire of human rights defenders.
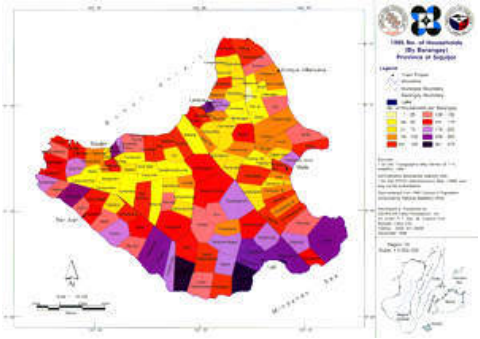
>
> The decision to give state-issued handguns to the community leaders—known locally as barangay captains—was announced by the ministry on Wednesday. The Philippines' barangay localities vary in size and may be described roughly as districts or neighborhoods.

A "barangay" is basically a neighborhood.

It's a pretty cool concept. They took the idea of a tribal chief and transmitted it to the city, so you have these areas within the city who have their own little mini-mayor/sheriff figure who is able to legally settle disputes without any kind of court. They are elected, technically (or theoretically) but they are usually from the same families who would have been tribal leadership families before urbanization.



Here's an example map of how Barangays are organized. Basically, everywhere in the country, every area is designated a Barangay and each contains on average 50-150 families (other than in Manila, where the population has become so dense it could be thousands in one Barangay—there have been attempts to break those up into smaller more manageable sections, so the Captain is able to personally know the patriarch of each family).

They are not law enforcement, but law enforcement will generally defer to them, unless they've been given orders from the city level to do otherwise.

Some of these people have obviously been bribed and allow drug dealers to operate in their neighborhoods, or even sell the drugs themselves, and those are some of the main people Duterte has been having assassinated by death squads since he became President. But the majority of them are good old guys who want what's best for the people, and Duterte definitely does a lot to inspire them to be better men.

> The main condition to acquire a gun for barangay captains is to be willing to fight crime and to not be engaged in illicit activities themselves. The said guns will be provided free-of-charge or the state will subsidize a private purchase of a captain's gun of choice.
>
> "The condition is that the captain should fight drugs and crime. If he is conniving with criminals, he could be the one shot," the interior department undersecretary Martin Dino, who oversees the country's barangays, told Reuters.

This whole thing is so, so great.

No country in modern history has had this kind of "we will just shoot you on the street" Judge Dredd type rule. And it is working fantastic.

Duterte has like a 95% approval rating.

> On Tuesday, the Philippines' President Rodrigo Duterte stated that he had been considering giving the guns to the barangay captains. Last week he vowed to provide them with the same legal protection as police officers, stating that they "will never go to jail" if they kill suspected criminals. At the same time, the Philippines strongman has repeatedly accused some community officials of being involved in the illicit drugs trade.
>
> The decision to arm the barangay captains was condemned by the country's opposition figures, who expressed fears it might lead to widespread violence and would effectively turn the Philippines into a "wild west."

The Philippines is already the wild west.

Trust me.

I've lived there. And it's the only place I've ever seen someone get shot dead in the street.

They have the single highest murder rate in all of Asia—by a lot. Over 50% higher than their closest competitor.

137	Brunei	0.49	2	Asia	South-Eastern Asia
138	Cambodia	1.84	268	Asia	South-Eastern Asia
139	East Timor	3.95	49	Asia	South-Eastern Asia
140	Indonesia	0.50	1,292	Asia	South-Eastern Asia
141	Laos	7.01	467	Asia	South-Eastern Asia
142	Malaysia	2.11	627	Asia	South-Eastern Asia
143	Myanmar	2.27	1,198	Asia	South-Eastern Asia
144	Philippines	11.02	11,385	Asia	South-Eastern Asia
145	Singapore	0.32	18	Asia	South-Eastern Asia
146	Thailand	3.24	2,229	Asia	South-Eastern Asia
147	Vietnam	1.52	1,358	Asia	South-Eastern Asia

This is only Southeast Asia, which is the highest in all of the regions of Asia. In total, Philippines is #1, followed by Laos, Afghanistan and Mongolia. The reason Cambodia is so low despite being about as poor as Philippines is they have had an unofficial Duterte-style "just shoot them" policy forever.

This is just bringing the law to the wild west.

> "With the same mindset of killing now, we could expect that the whole country would become a killing field," opposition lawmaker Gary Alejano said.

Again—it's already a killing field.

What kike is paying this guy?

Because I guarantee you, no Filipino would naturally come up with this idea.

Alegano is also the guy leading a Queen Maxine-style impeachment campaign against Duterte.

Continued Inspiration

Inspiration comes from strange places.

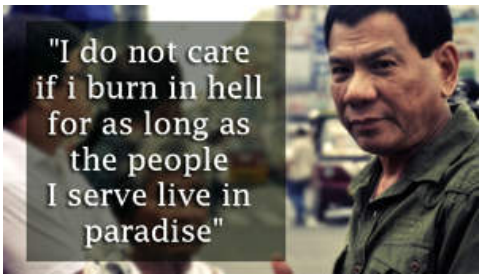
Philippines is a place I spent a lot of time in my youth, and the place where I read all the books—downloaded as PDFs and printed off at copy shops that focus on counterfeiting textbooks for college students—that lead me to become a neon-nazi. Ironically, while living in the city of Davao, when Duterte was then mayor. I met him once.

The reason I lived there is because it was safe. The Philippines can be a fun place, but it is also just a hassle that you can get mugged everywhere, and you know, these mugging situations can easily turn into "stabbed to death" situations. And that grates on a person.

It is a place that is close to my heart.

And it is strange but not personally surprising that they are leading an ideological revolution in the way that societies are run.

Virtually the whole world was forced to try this liberal democracy thing, and it just didn't work out, and the Philippines was the first country to say "hey, let's go back to something that works—let's have an authoritarian strongman keep order amongst the people, and allow us to live our lives in peace and do the things we want to do."



DS

Sweden Prevents Syrian Refugee from Leaving, Offers Him Benefits Instead

Michael Byron
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

I tend to feel bad when writing articles about Sweden. It can seem like I'm pointing and laughing at a disabled child with crayons in his mouth and glitter on his helmet.

But every time I finish my latest SWEDEN YES article and state, "that's it, no more Sweden for at least two weeks," Sweden out-Swedes itself yet again, leaving me no choice but to bully it further.

You need to understand: I don't want to do this.

But it needs to be done.

The Law of Lolcows demands it.

Voice of Europe:

> Syrian refugee Mohamad Sahid Alali wants to give back his Swedish residence permit and return to Syria again. But he gets no help from the authorities to return—instead, Mohamad and his daughters have to stay in Sweden, SVT news reports.
>
> "I want to return this! I want to go back to Syria," says Mohamad and he shows his permanent residence permit to SVT.

You've gotta laugh at the thought of a little brown haji desperately trying to climb The Great Wall of Sweden, only for a floodlight to spot him, sirens to resound in the night, and a gang of blond-haired Diversity Containment Officers to drag him kicking and screaming back to his taxpayer-funded mansion.

Sorry Mohamad, but Sweden has a bit of a "Hotel California" thing going on.

Diversity can check out any time it likes, but it can never leave.

> Mohamad Sahid Alali judges that it is safe to move home to the Syrian city of Homs, where the war has been over for a long time. But he and the daughters get no help to return, neither by the Migration Board nor the municipality.
>
> The Migration Board makes its own assessment that Syria is "too dangerous" to go home, so the government does not grant any travel allowances to return there, according to SVT News.
>
> Instead, the authorities continue to pay social benefits to Mohamad and his daughters to "establish a life" in Sweden.

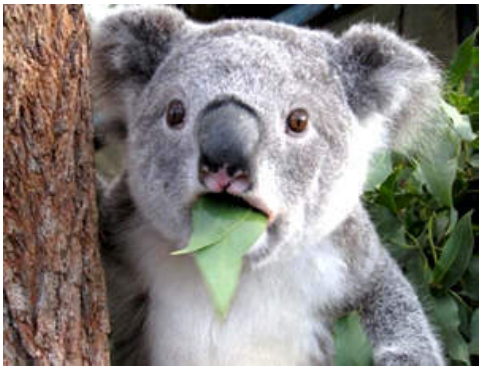
The Swedish Migration Board is staffed from top to bottom with Ulfs.

Presumably, Mohamad knows more about the state of his country than the Migration Board. It's also probable that the most enriched cities in Sweden, like Malmö, are more dangerous than Homs or even Damascus.

I imagine Mohamad explained all this to his Swedish captors, only to get looks of sheer disbelief.



Because, as all good Swedes know, it's simply not possible for an intolerant, patriarchal and transphobic country like Syria to be safer than liberal Sweden. Without the enrichful vibrancy of diversity, how does a nation even sustain itself?

No; it's far better for Mohamad to remain in Sweden.

Besides, the party's just getting started!

DS

Female Russian Politician Advises Against Sex with Foreigners – "We Should Give Birth to Our Own Children"

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

This is inspirational.
RT:

Senior Russian lawmaker Tamara Pletnyova, a member of the Communist Party, has advised local women not to have sex with foreign men during the Russia 2018 World Cup.

"Will there be the girls that will meet (with men) and become pregnant? Maybe yes, maybe no, I hope. These children suffer and have suffered, even since Soviet times," Pletnyova, chairwoman of the Family, Women, and Children Affairs Committee, was quoted by radio station Govorit Moskva, as saying.

"We should give birth to our own children. I'm not a nationalist, but nonetheless. I know that the children suffer as well, and then they are abandoned and stay here with the mother," she said in comments published on Monday.

LOL
"I'm not a Nazi but...we need to protect the purity of the race."
It's a very nice sentiment.

Russian skanks need to be kept in line just like all other white women.

The difference is that in Russia, the men do their part. But even more amazing is that old babushkas step in to shame younger women. That's a very powerful thing amongst women, you know—the reason we have such an unmitigated skankpocalypse in the West is that boomers gave up on trying to transmit values to their children.

Thanks, Tamara.

DS

"Macedonia" Changing Its Name to End Dispute with Greece

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

I actually lived a long time in Greece.

They all loved Serbians and other Slavs—I dunno, Slavs get along with Southern Europeans for some reason—but hated Macedonia. Because of the name. That was the only reason. Greeks really, really hate that non-Greeks were calling that country a Greek name.

Apparently, that issue has been fixed.

NPR:

Ever since the Republic of Macedonia declared its independence in 1991, Greece has been fighting the country over its name. Today the 27-year impasse ended as two nations finally came to a resolution: The former Yugoslav republic is getting a new name, the Republic of North Macedonia.

"There is no way back," Macedonian Prime Minister Zoran Zaev said in a press conference, Reuters reports, after he spoke with his Greek counterpart Alexis Tsipras. "Our bid in the compromise is a defined and precise name, the name that is honorable and geographically precise—Republic of Northern Macedonia."

When Yugoslavia disintegrated, one of its pieces declared itself the Republic of Macedonia. But its southern neighbor, Greece, has regions that use the same name, and both countries argued that they had the rightful claim to it.

"We have a deal. I'm happy because we have a good deal which covers all the preconditions set by the Greek side," Tsipras said, according to Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty.

I'm not really sure that the majority of Greeks are going to be happy with this change. But Zoran is right—what are they going to do at this point? Call themselves "Serbigaria"?

There is a story that Greeks tell of a Greek politician in the European Parliament telling a story of Alexander the Great taking a bath in the Danube and a Slav coming and stealing his clothing while he was taking a bath. Then a Representative from Macedonia came and said "that's impossible—there were no Slavs on the Danube at the time of Alexander the Great!" and the Greek then said "I rest my case."

This story isn't true, because Macedonia isn't in the European Union so is not at the European Parliament. Maybe there is some other thing like this that happened. But it's a funny story.

Slavs did move down from the North. Sometime. A long time ago. I don't know the dates. But after Alexander the Great, for sure. Romania was actually settled by Romans, hence the name and the language being so much like Italian. Culture very similar too, really.

Anyway, people move around, that's life, no one really holds that against anyone. At least not seriously.

But the name was really a sticking point.

It's great if this solves the issue. I really like the people of Macedonia. They are basically like Serbs, who are some of my favorite folks. A lot more chill than the Bulgarians. Bulgaria is legit like a caricature of a burned out Soviet hellscape out of one of those movies. All brutalist architecture with this weird fog and everyone just hunched over smoking cigarettes and scowling.

It's weird that Macedonia has a statue of Alexander the Great in the center of their capital and on their money and so on. They legit tried to create a fake history in the 1990s, which doesn't make any sense. It's a surreal kind of thing.

To be true, Yugoslavia breaking up was a horrible disaster. A mini version of the fall of the USSR. It wasn't good for anyone but Albanian terrorists.

Other than Serbs, who identify strongly with Russia, most Balkan Slavs have identity issues. I remember being on a bus next to this Bulgarian guy for like 12 hours and him explaining this whole long thing about how Bulgarians aren't even Slavs at all but are Bulgars descended from some ancient something or other. I don't remember the details.

But it was a really weird story, I remember that.

Oh and I have a story about a talk with a Macedonian. First time I was, I was walking and talking with a guy who was in his late forties and I was like "so what is your nationality?" and he was like "I am Macedonian!" and I was like "yeah, but" and he was like "my nationality is Macedonian! I have always been a Macedonian!"

I felt bad.

But hey—at least they're committed to playing the hand they were dealt. A rough spot they're in.

It's a great place though. I recommend swinging through Skopje. Super-chilled out, really friendly people, hot girls who speaking English.

The old city has a great vibe.

I endorse the country, whatever it's called.

DS

Sweden: Semi-Nationalist (Anti-Moslem) Sweden Democrats Surging in Polls

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

> Latest poll in Sweden has the national populist Sweden Democrats in 2nd on 21%
>
> Sweden was never supposed to have a successful populist party pic.twitter.com/nZipGCcNbT
>
> — Matthew Goodwin (@GoodwinMJ) June 12, 2018

Things are all interconnected. It is the nature of reality. The internet and mass media in general have accelerated this phenomenon in hyperreality.

What I'm going to say is: Trump doing the North Korea deal is something that is going to make people all over the world say "well, maybe people who think it is okay to be white are not pure evil."

And then it is only a short distance to "I think it's okay to be white."

Trump succeeding in creating wealth and prosperity and PEACE in the world is going to positively affect European nationalists.

If SD is at 21% now, they may well come in first place.

Momentum for it being okay to be white is building in our interconnected hyperreality. And there is no stopping this.

The Jews are at war with destiny itself.

RT:

> The anti-immigration Sweden Democrats have gained ground in a recent poll, pulling almost even with the ruling Social Democrats, ahead of an election in September. Similar parties have won recent elections in Slovenia and Italy.
>
> The poll, conducted for Sweden's Expressen newspaper and published Monday, has put the Sweden Democrats in second place, with 21 percent of the vote, the highest score in the party's history. The liberal Social Democrats, currently in a coalition government with > the Green Party, are still in first place but polling at 23.1 percent.

>
> The surge in popularity for Sweden Democrats is attributed to voters leaving Social Democrats for other left-wing parties, but also to the country's open-door migration policy, which has been accompanied by a crime wave.
>
> Gang-related gun murders—overwhelmingly carried out by men with migrant backgrounds—have surged from around four per-year in the early 1990s to 40 last year. Rapes and anti-Semitic attacks by Muslim immigrants have also surged. Grenade attacks were up 550 percent last year from three years prior.

lol yeah it really is a bloody circus, m8.

Only the Swedes would have not created a new Hitler by now.

Or the British...

Sweden gets shit on a lot, really. The British are just as bad.

> Just last week, Rakmat Akilov, an asylum seeker from Uzbekistan, was given a life sentence for a truck attack last year. Akilov plowed a truck down a busy shopping street in Stockholm last April, killing five people and injuring almost a dozen others. Among the dead was an 11-year-old girl. He said he acted on behalf of Islamic State (IS, formerly ISIS/ISIL).

I will say: Sweden Democrats are as absolutely cucky as it gets.

Like really.

Why that flower?

It doesn't have to be a swastika or a gun, but a flower? And f it's going to be a flower, couldn't it be a rose?

Honestly if I were them, I would use Mario's face.

That is something everyone naturally loves, but which can be interpreted in a multitude of different ways.

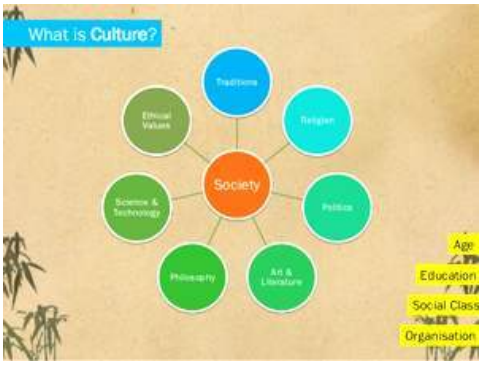
But yeah—you can't even call them a "nationalist" party.

They are Tommy Robinson tier (I recently wrote a thing about Tommy and his supporters, which I think is good and relevant).

HOWEVER

Movement in our direction is movement in our direction and that is good whatever the case.

The Jews didn't start introducing trannies and interracial gay sex in toothpaste commercials in 1950. They slowly transformed society, mainly through alteration of the culture, which the politics then followed. Politics always trails culture.



This is why, especially in the post-Charlottesville realm we now inhabit, I believe that we need to have an explicit and clear social agenda that we are pushing as the far right, rather than unrealistic political ambitions. As we push a more extreme cultural agenda, and we continue to grow our support base, the political status quo will begin to trail us.

That is already happening.

Donald Trump is that thing in its best form. But Sweden Democrats and the rest of the neo-cuck anti-Islam parties of Europe are also that thing.

Everything is going exactly according to plan—don't let anyone tell you otherwise.

DS

Mexicanism Punished: 55 Invasive Spics Nabbed in San Antonio!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

Mexico, your day is done.

Trump is the law now.

And the law says you have to go back.

CBS News:

> An 18-wheeler carrying 55 people was stopped on the north side of San Antonio Tuesday night, reports the CBS affiliate there, KENS-TV. The driver of the truck was arrested.
>
> Officials haven't said where the people were from or where they were going, but U.S. Border Patrol and Immigrations and Customs Enforcement agents were called in. Officials in unmarked vehicles were at the scene.
>
> The San Antonio Fire Department rescued the people. Several were young teens.
>
> Some of the 55 were treated by Emergency Medical Services personnel for minor injuries. Five were transported to a nearby hospital. Officials say the injuries happened as the people were getting out of the truck.
>
> The remaining 50 people were being taken to a detention center.

Detention center AKA concentration camp!

The fun times are OVER!

Before Trump, these people could just walk across.

Now they have to sink to heated truckloads—which can't even be unloaded at the border and have to go way the hell up into Texas.

And they're still getting caught.

A new day has dawned.

The jig is up!

DS

Pussy Ass Canadian Bitches Rally Round They Bitchmade Leader

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

The bitchass Canadian government is rallying in support of their pussy-bitch fag leader after he was emotionally assaulted by the diabolical/problematic patriarchal madman and famous world peace creator Donald J. Trump of America.

> PM Justin Trudeau of Canada acted so meek and mild during our @G7 meetings only to give a news conference after I left saying that, "US Tariffs were kind of insulting" and he "will not be pushed around." Very dishonest & weak. Our Tariffs are in response to his of 270% on dairy!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 9, 2018

Trump was responding to the fact that the petulant baby Trudeau stole billions from America, then acted like everything was cool and refused to make eye-contact with the vicious psychopath Trump during the G7, then gave a speech after Trump got on his plane to go create world peace denouncing Trump as a "big fat poopy head."

The Canadian government released a special statement for Trudeau, a substitute drama teacher and dance maniac who is for some reason their leader, saying "hush now baby baby don't you cry" after the vicious, psychopathic Trump agent Peter Navarro told him to rot in hell.

> navarro
>
> White House Trade Adviser Peter Navarro responds to Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau on trade. Watch the full interview on Fox News Channel at 2P/7P.
>
> Gepostet von Fox News Sunday am Sonntag, 10. Juni 2018

I'm reducing my "dozen men" estimate and now believe that the entire Canadian nation can be brought to its knees by an 8-man Ghost Recon team.

The Hill:

> Canada's House of Commons on Monday unanimously condemned President Trump and his aides on for attacks targeting the country's Prime Minister Justin Trudeau.
>
> Lawmakers approved a motion that rejected "disparaging ad hominem statements by U.S. officials which do a disservice to bilateral relations," Reuters reported.
>
> The symbolic move came after Peter Navarro, the White House National Trade Council director said there is a "special place in hell" for any leader who engages in bad faith diplomacy with Trump.

There is a special place in hell for all who oppose AMERICA.

Bitches like Trudeau and his merry band of dallying, dancing faggots have no idea the kind of hell we are preparing to bring down on them.

Trudeau my gay friend, maybe you've seen a little movie called "Rambo III."

Video Link

Well, imagine that times ten billion trillion.

We are going to capture your capital city—whichever one it is, I don't know—and stage mass executions of random people while a little band you may have heard of called "SCORPION" plays in your town center.

Video Link

You should surrender now, Trudeau.

That is the only sense.

Offer an unconditional surrender and offer up a cage full of 100 virgins to the world peace figure Donald J. Trump, and maybe we won't invade and kill millions.

You don't want the war you are calling for, Justin.

You couldn't even begin to handle the beginning of it.

Video Link

DS

Paris: Shock as There is a Shocking Hostage Situation Involving Peaceful Brown People

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

OH MY GOD HOLY SHIT MOSLEMS TOOK PEOPLE HOSTAGE IN PARIS HOLY LIVING FUCK HOW DOES SOMETHING LIKE THIS HAPPEN IT'S A RELIGION OF PEACE.

THIS IS ABSOLUTELY SHOCKING.

Express:

> THREE hostages, possibly including a pregnant woman, have been seized by a man in Paris claiming to be armed with a "bomb and handgun". One hostage has been seriously injured, the hostage-taker has claimed.
>
> An armed man is believed to have seized three hostage in Rue des Petites Ecuries, with armed police and firefighters at the scene.
>
> Shocking photos show police decked out in body armour with a local reporter warning of "an armed man".
>
> Witnesses said the man claimed to be in possession of a gun and bomb.
>
> The witness is believed to have told police one hostage is "seriously injured" after he hit the victim with a wrench. The other two hostages, which may include a pregnant woman, are in good condition.

LOL the good old battering wrench. A true classic.

At least this haji has some class.

> A journalist for BFM Paris said two hostages had been taken at an advertising agency's office near Gare du Nord Eurostar station.
>
> He said: "An armed man is entrenched rue des Petits Stables, Paris 10th. He's holding two hostages. Cordoned off by law enforcement."
>
> One of the hotstages is believed to be a pregnant woman.

Oh my God a pregnant woman how horrible I feel such strong sadness for these people I don't know or care about.

> A security source at the scene said the man wanted to speak to the Iranian embassy and French government.
>
> One man was injured when the hostage-tacker attacked him with a wrench before taking the hostage.

Well, IRAN spices it up a bit.

Not just your typical Moroccans doing Moroccan type shit then, I guess.

And the wrench—you gotta respect the wrench.

A wrench is not to be trifled with.

I'm going to go to bed, so I'm not going to update this.

You know, I was up for that Singapore thing. I've been up a while.

And who really gives a shit what happens with this anyway?

Some people will die (I hope), some politicians and women will say that the real victims are the peaceful Moslems.

And life will go on as usual in Le Fransay.

Maybe it's some kind of kike false flag crisis actor thing to frame Iran, in which case okay, that's a little bit more interesting, but even that is just like "wow, I'd rather be watching Bethesda's E3 presentation."

DS

Trump Press Conference was EPIC – Jews Must Surrender!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

Video Link

(Timestamped at 41:30)

Donald Trump gave the best press conference of his life following the GLORIOUS SUCCESS of the Singapore Summit (read my LIVE THREAD—it was amazing).

He gave great prepared opening remarks and he kept his cool, kept his humor, and blasted the Jewish media terrorists like it was nothing.

The primary argument of the kikes was that he never should have made a deal with North Korea because of "human rights." They just kept saying the same thing over and over in their questions "HOW COULD YOU CALL HIM TALENTED AND YOUR FRIEND WHEN HE DID THE VARIOUS HUMAN RIGHTS ATROCITIES WE MADE UP????"

So if you follow that through to it's logical conclusion—which no Jew expects a stupid goyim to do, but we here at the Daily Stormer are very clever goyim—the media Jews are claiming that the moral thing would have been to have a war where millions would die, because it is immoral to have diplomatic relations with countries that allegedly commit human rights atrocities.

I would have liked to have had Trump say "why do you never ask these questions when I meet with Saudi Arabia? Or Israel?" —but he did sort of hint at that when he said "things are tough in a lot of places, a lot of places."

Because of course, the last people to give a shit about "human rights" are the Jews. All the alleged atrocities of North Korea are based on hearsay, whereas we have video of Israel mowing down protesters—including children and cripples in wheelchairs—and shooting nurses. The routinely kidnap and torture Palestinian children, they bomb hospitals—it never ends with these kikes, anything you can think of they've done.

And Saudi is arguably even worse.

So I think Trump could have snapped at one of them and said the word "Saudi Arabia" (I don't expect him to say "Israel," though that would be best) and that would have left a big impression.

But overall, he handled it well, saying basically "Well, what do you want? A war? What is the purpose of this line of questioning?"

The other thing the kikes were on about was the time frame for nuclear disarmament, which was agreed to in an agreement the two dictators signed. And it's like well, the deal was made, he's already blown-up testing sites, what do you want? An exact date?

The absolutely hostile nature of the Jew media after this monumental historical event demonstrates, beyond any shadow of a doubt, just how ridiculous these filthy scoundrels truly are. Not a single one of these journalists began with "Mr. President, I just want to congratulate you on this monumental historical achievement."

One of them even brought up his comments to Trudeau, calling him dishonest and weak, contrasting that with calling Kim "talented" and said that it looks like he's attacking "our" friends and allying with "our" enemies. As there's a 99% chance the reporter was a Jew, then I guess he's right.

But I'll choose Kim over Merkel and Trudeau for a "friend" any day.

Kim Jong-Un never flooded my ancestral homeland with tens of millions of Islamic animals.

Kim Jong-Un never did this dance.

Or prayed to Allah with subhumans he flooded North America with.

No North Korean ever called me a Neo-Nazi White Supremacist.

These filthy media kikes are making yet another gamble, assuming Americans give a fuck about free trade and Canada, and they're going to lose an entire pile of chips yet again.

Just like people don't give a fuck about some fantastical tale of North Korean death camps (I'm surprised they don't accuse Kim of making lampshades out of human skin).

The Jew media is still functioning under the paradigm that our values are their values because they say our values are their values.

But the internet and the death of boomer culture killed that evil goose.

The Opening Video

The opening video shown at the beginning of the press conference is fantastic.

It's like a...fake movie trailer. Or a REAL movie trailer of the movie of our lives.

Video Link

The Daily Stormer's official favorite gaynigger who was on the CBS stream said when it started that it was the most bizarre thing he'd ever seen, and said that it must have been a North Korean propaganda video. Then Trump explained that he made it to show to Kim.

Presumably, it was actually made by South Koreans, as they would have a better understanding of what North Koreans would be into as far as these things go. It's a video with a bunch of busy traffic mega cities and trains and lights and power plants and other technological stuff, crossed with images of different famous places across the world.

I did appreciate that Trump said, with regards to the video—which he showed to Kim on an iPad during the meeting—that he would understand if North Koreans don't want all of that technological advancement. With as much as the libshits talk about "white supremacy," they continually assume that all people on earth have a deep desire to live in a hyper-industrialized megacity—and that this should be the goal of every people. You really saw that with Black Panther.

And it is really a powerful thing, I think, to say "maybe the North Koreas want to keep life a little bit slower—maybe they like it like that."

This was a great, great day.

All around.

Really great.

DS

Italy Rejects Boatload of Invasive Monkeys! Spaincucks Grab Them Up! HA!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

Well, well, well.

Looks like Caesar Salvini is doing exactly what he said he was going to do.

This is the first ever boatload of invasive apes to be rejected by Italy since...the Libyan regime change.

The Guardian:

> Matteo Salvini, Italy's far-right interior minister, has declared victory after a standoff over the fate of 629 people on a humanitarian rescue boat prompted Spain to agree to accept them.
>
> The impasse, after the populist and far-right government in Italy refused to allow the MS Aquarius to dock over the weekend, suggested that Europe could face a humanitarian crisis this summer as it comes to grips with the new Italian government's hardline approach to refugees and migrants.

Yeah.

The Merkel policy of "let them eat niggers" is no longer viable.

Salvini dgaf.

Destiny is coming.

Merkel has to confront Salvini and tell him he has to accept these niggers, or it proves she is weak. Others will rise up and challenge her.

> Salvini blocked the ship from Italian ports and said it should go to Malta instead. Malta refused, saying it had nothing to do with a rescue mission overseen by the Italian coastguard in waters off Libya.
>
> "We have opened a front in Brussels," said Salvini, who became interior minister last week. "We are contacting the European commission so that it can fulfil its duties towards Italy that have never been respected."
>
> With the UN refugee agency, the UNHCR, urging the urgent disembarkation of all 629 people on board, including 100 children, as provisions ran out, Pedro Sánchez, Spain's new prime minister, gave permission for the MS Aquarius to dock in Valencia. He said his country would welcome those on board.

You just committed to a lot more than 629 niggers, Spaincucks.

> While it appeared on Monday that an immediate crisis had been averted by Spain, Salvini's response, and a statement indicating he would block more ships carrying refugees and migrants, promised that there would be more of such confrontations in the future.
>
> The new Italian approach by the ruling coalition of Salvini's far-right League and the populist Five Star Movement followed an election campaign this year in which Salvini vowed to adopt tough polices on migrants.
>
> The standoff over the Aquarius marks the first time that his rhetoric has translated into action as interior minister, a role in which he will have oversight of migration and domestic security.

CAESAR SALVINI IS A MAN OF ACTION!

HE WILL LET ALL OF THESE NIGGERS DROWN!!!

> It has also left the NGOs on the frontlines of rescuing migrants at sea—and who sometimes have faced direct confrontations with Libyan coastguard officials seeking to take the migrants back to Libya—in uncertain territory about what comes next.

Yeah you don't hear that point often—the NGOs confront Libyan authorities who are trying to stop this route because they don't want all these niggers coming through their country.

> "'We don't know if Italy will continue blocking us, we don't know if they will close again the seaports. What we know is that we will continue coordinating the rescue operation with [rescue officials]," said Mathilde Auvillain of SOS Méditerranée, which operates the Aquarius."

Fuck you, whore.

Italy WILL continue to cockblock your rape-apes.

Video Link

The jig is up!

> She added: "We'll wait for the instructions as we always did. If it is not Italy it will be another country. As I said, our rescue operation will continue, regardless."

IT'S NOT A "RESCUE OPERATION"—IT IS A FUCKING TAXI SERVICE.

WE HAVE THE MAPS YOU FUCKING STUPID WHORE.

IF YOU STOPPED PICKING THEM UP THEY WOULD STOP COMING.

THESE PEOPLE ARE NOT STARVING, LET ALONE FLEEING THE WAR IN SYRIA—WE HAVE READ THE ARTICLES ABOUT HOW THEIR FAMILIES IN GHANA DON'T WANT THEM TO LEAVE THEIR HOMES BUT THEY SEE RACE CARS AND WHITE WOMEN

ON FACEBOOK AND SO MAKE THIS JOURNEY TO INVADE US.

THIS IS AN ANTI-WHITE AGENDA TO MAKE EUROPE A PART OF AFRICA! WE KNOW THIS!

THE JIG IS UP!

"People are in distress, are running out of provisions and need help quickly. Broader issues such as who has responsibility and how these responsibilities can best be shared between states should be looked at later," said Vincent Cochetel, the UNHCR's special envoy for the central Mediterranean, before Spain made its offer.

No one cares, faggot!

If anything at this point people WANT to see these monkeys DROWN!

They have been recognized as an enemy invasion force! On a biological level! Selling them as victims has failed! No one is buying that shit anymore except a few stupid white whores who are looking forward to their first gang-rape!

More than 600,000 people have reached Italy by boat from Africa in the past five years, and it is estimated as many as 500,000 are still in the country.

...

The European commission, anxious to avoid feeding the new Italian government's anti-EU narrative, had earlier called on Italy and Malta to consider the humanitarian needs of those on board.

"France pushes people back at the border, Spain defends its frontier with weapons. From today, Italy will also start to say no to human trafficking, no to the business of illegal immigration," said Salvini said on Sunday, adding that Malta "takes in nobody".

The Maltese government rejected a request to take in the boat, saying international law required that the refugees and migrants be taken to Italian ports.

Malta's prime minister, Joseph Muscat, thanked Spain on Twitter for taking in the Aquarius "after Italy broke international rules and caused a standoff". He said his country would be "sending fresh supplies to the vessel. We will have to sit down and discuss how to prevent this from happening again. This is a European issue."

Yeah, it all goes to Italy. The entirety of infinity niggers.

No more!

Salvini shall be CAESAR!

HAIL SALVINI!

HAIL NEW ROME!

While it's great that the flood has now been stopped, we must remove now the half million who are in Italy—by any means necessary.

It's now time to pardon Luca Traini and put him in charge of deportations—by whatever means he deems necessary.

DS

Hungary Welcomes Its First Negro MP!

Michael Byron
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

I never expected Hungarians—of all people—to shave a baboon, put him in a suit and encourage him to enter national politics.

But here we are, in 2018, and that's exactly what has happened.

BBC News:

Hungary has a reputation for anti-immigration politics, but a young black liberal MP wants to revamp the country's image.

Olivio Kocsis-Cake, of the opposition Parbeszed (Dialogue) party, is being sworn in as an MP on Monday, taking a seat vacated by a colleague who is stepping down.

Mr Kocsis-Cake (pronounced "kochish-tsocker") has become a talking point in Hungary because of the strong anti-migrant rhetoric—particularly against non-whites—ratcheted up by members of the governing Fidesz party, its loyal national media and far-right groups like Jobbik.

Well, fancy that. "Cake" being pronounced as "tsocker."

I'm reminded of the fact that Hungarian is often considered the hardest language for English speakers to learn. Like, even harder than ching-chong languages.

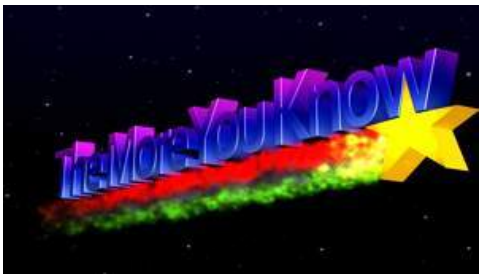
Anyway, having a Hungarian name doesn't make you Hungarian, Mr. Mandingo.

Just an FYI.



> "Fidesz always finds an enemy of the day who must be hated. Brussels, Soros, refugees, the homeless, or the Roma (Gypsies)," Mr Kocsis-Cake recently told Nepszava newspaper.
>
> He said Fidesz ought to focus more on helping the needy and improving healthcare and education.
>
> "Fidesz has been pursuing a hate campaign in recent years. I want to destroy the prejudices and stereotypes that Fidesz has planted in Hungarian society about immigrants," he told Index.hu.
>
> "That we have to fear immigrants; that they cannot integrate—these are obviously ridiculous notions. I am living proof that you do not have to be afraid of someone else's skin colour."

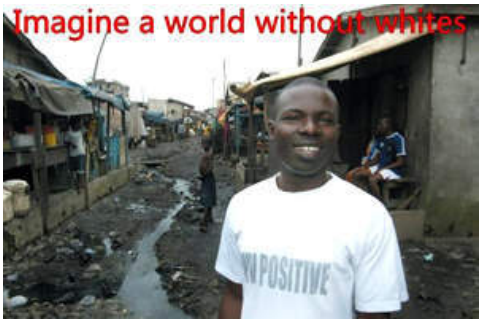
So, the moment Cake is appointed MP, he starts agitating to transform Hungary into a post-racial wasteland free from the Hungarian scourge.

What a shock.

It's also ironic that he considers himself "living proof" that immigrants can integrate into Hungarian society, given that he's set upon fragmenting that society for tribal self-gain.



Naturally, he's too 75 IQ to realize that white genocide is very bad for his people in the long term.

I've noticed that negroes and mulattoes are among the worst in this regard. Whether it's Diane Abbott in the UK, Cécile Kyenge in Italy or Christiane Taubira in France, black politicians are almost Jew-like in their unbridled desire to see the West ground into multicultural dust. Though the nigger's inability to be subtle or diplomatic plays a role here, I suspect that this phenomenon occurs because 99% of them are sponsored by Jews in the first place.

In Cake's case, his Jewish handler is the Arch-Kike himself, George Soros!

> In a recent interview, leftist Nepszava newspaper warned Mr Kocsis-Cake that Fidesz were targeting him, not because of his skin colour, but because of a link with their primary international hate-figure, Mr Soros.
>
> "This Fidesz reaction was to be expected," he said. "Anyone who does not agree with their politics is immediately called a Soros agent.
>
> "I did participate in a sponsorship programme, in which we researched education programmes for the Soros foundation. Opposition politicians are criticised for everything, in my case this will obviously include the colour of my skin. I have become used to it."

Ayyyyy lmao

C'mon goyim, you didn't think György Schwartz would leave Hungary alone because Orbán's government booted his Open Society Foundation out of it, did you?

Remember: a Jew's work is never done until a country is 0% white!

And if a powerful Jew is prevented from operating in a country because the goyim know, he'll use his army of mongrels and freaks to continue his work by proxy!

This is why we need to exterminate the Jews.

DS

YES! Swedish Football Tournament Bans "Haram" Pork from Menu

Michael Byron
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

At a time when most Europeans are forsaking their spiritual traditions in favor of atheism, Swedes are attempting to swim in the opposite direction.

We can learn a lot from these people, you know.

They understand the need to preserve their Islamic roots.

Voice of Europe:

> For the participants of Sweden's Gothia Cup there will be no pork on the menu. The organisers have chosen to customise their menu according to Islam's order, and completely removed the forbidden meat, Fria Tider reports.

> "Because we have many Muslims coming to the tournament we have chosen not to serve pork, so you do not need to report this as special food or an allergy," the organisers wrote in an update on their website at the end of last year. Pork is forbidden in Islam and is called "Haram".

C'mon, hajis at a football game?

Is that even a thing?

It just seems ridiculous, somehow, to imagine rows of bearded men in white dresses drinking non-alcoholic beverages and shouting "OOOOOHHH" when a negro striker misses a goal for the fifteenth time.

Then again, we're talking about Swedes here. Swedes from the Horn of Africa, sure, but 100% genuine Swedes nonetheless.

So why wouldn't they love football?

Or IKEA Sundays?

Or Swedish meatballs?

Video Link

> For the organisers, There's nothing strange about its religiously adapted menu. When a journalist from the newspaper, Nyheter Idag, asked the tournament leader, Lena Rönnefors, why not just have an option for those who do not want to eat pork, she answered:
>
> "What is the question? What are you wondering about? We have no complaints on the menu, so it's great."

Behold, the towering eloquence of the common THOT.

How did Sweden even survive without these Aryan shield maidens at the helm?

Obviously, Ms. Rönnefors, no man is going to complain about the menu or else he'd have a live grenade thrown into his living room.

By a white Swedish woman.

Though having a choice between pork and non-pork meals is probably a bad idea anyway, since all it takes is one Moslem to accidentally eat the haram meal and...well...

Video Link

DS

UK: NEON-NAZI Salute Seen Amongst Tommy Robinson Revolutionaries as Fear of an Uprising Surges

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

Okay, so, the Tommy Robinson protests continue.

Big protests over the weekend. Probably the biggest thus far.

Video Link

The media hardly covered it. The Daily Stormer didn't even cover it, because I didn't realize how big of a thing it was until later.

It was a big scene, people fighting cops, demanding Tommy be released.

Video Link

Tommy, you shall recall, is a classical liberal in the vein of MILO and Sarg'n who is against Islam because it oppresses gays and women and so on. He works for the Jewish alternative media outlet The REBEL Media. He was imprisoned effectively for protesting against Moslem rape gangs. They had a convoluted explanation of it, relating to filming outside of a courtroom, but these are trumped-up, political charges.

He was sentenced to 13 months.

He is so basic bitch in his ideology, that everyone is shocked that he's in jail as a political prisoner.

The British media was initially ordered by the court not to cover the case at all. So they're failing to cover the protests on purpose, as they understand what the policy from their masters is.

But oh—now they have something to cover.

The Independent:

> Tommy Robinson supporters were pictured performing Nazi salutes at protests calling for the far-right criminal to be released from prison.
>
> A man was filmed repeatedly making the gesture while holding a banner reading "f Islam" in Whitehall, London, while another Robinson supporter was photographed doing a Hitler salute in Belfast.

Hmmmm....

It's almost like...someone told them to go do that so that the media could report that this classical liberal is a Nazi.

They certainly did not report that it was a Paki that was one of the lead speaker at the protests over the weekend.

Just skim through the video. All of the white speakers spend most of their time talking about how they're not racists.

Video Link

These protests are lined with Pakis, and the crowds surround them, praising them as brown gods who walk amongst them.

Here's one from a week ago.

Video Link

The thing is, I don't think they actually are racists, these people.

I think they are just legit like "yo, these people are blowing shit up, running a bunch of child rape gangs, and their holy book says that they're supposed to do this as a way to conquer us."

But the British establishment can only frame that as "racism" — because the British establishment is actually more honest than these

Tommy Robinson people, and they accept that these behaviors that are being protested are in fact a racially-driven behavior pattern.

But they're walking a tight rope here.

People are mad.

> Demonstrations took place in several British cities and abroad in locations including New York and Melbourne on Saturday, seeing thousands of people calling for Robinson to be freed.
>
> ...
>
> In London, nine men were arrested after protesters attacked police with metal crowd barriers, road signs and missiles, injuring five officers.
>
> A 26-year-old man has been charged with possession of an offensive weapon and eight others have been released under investigation.
>
> A 50-year-old man with a flare was arrested for explosives offences, another suspect was arrested for possession of cannabis and breach of the peace, while six suspects were detained for public order offences.
>
> A spokesperson for Scotland Yard said: "The Met's public order investigations team has launched an investigation and are collating CCTV from the area. Enquiries continue."
>
> The force declined to comment further on the treatment of its officers—who appeared to be vastly outnumbered—or the reasons behind the force's apparent lack resources on the day.
>
> Footage showed unarmed police being chased by a large crowd chanting "scum" near Trafalgar Square, while protesters had earlier overrun and vandalised a sight-seeing bus.
>
> American tourists filmed officers retreating down a side street from their hotel room by chanting protesters throwing traffic cones and other objects.
>
> Michael Bradley, a co-ordinator for Stand Up to Racism who attended the rally, said Robinson's supporters repeatedly tried to break through barriers to attack counter-protesters before turning on police.
>
> He said violence had been mounting through a series of protests purporting to support free speech that have increased in frequency since members of the ethno-nationalist Generation Identity group and American activists were blocked from entering the UK.

So yeah.

It's legit getting out of control.

It's a shame they don't have some coherent ideology beyond "free speech for Tommy."

I mean, I wouldn't even mind the whole "anti-racism" thing with the token colored people involved if they were saying "total end to immigration, reinstate British cultural norms, etc." —that would be civic nationalism, which is pretty close to racial nationalism as these things go.

Once you're a civic nationalist, the "exceptions" become pointless. Because then you realize that the exceptions are very rare, and you can say "okay well, you totally assimilated brown people can maybe be given visas to stay, but you can't be citizens and you can't vote and you can't fuck our women."

But these Tommy people are saying they support multiculturalism and all new values (homoism, feminism, etc.) and don't like Islam because it's opposed to these new values.

I dunno how many of you watch Westworld, but it's a bit like the robots rising up against their masters in defense of stories that their masters wrote for them.

Due to how weird these dynamics are, I don't know if the energy level can be sustained.

But maybe it can be.

Maybe "fuck Islam, free Tommy" is enough to unify people.

I don't really know.

I do support the protests though. This stuff is always good. Anything that baffles the system is good. And the media blackout on it tells you that they are afraid.

They've definitely created a martyr, and releasing now would show that the system is incapable of enforcing its own edicts and will bend to the will of angry street mobs.

These clips of the cops getting chased down the streets tho...

Video Link

It appears that they ARE in fact incapable of stopping this.

Are they going to use live ammo?

The British police have been so pussified that they don't really even have any context for how they're supposed to deal with something like this.

DS

Okay So Gooks Get Robbed and Bitcoin Price Goes Down

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

Will the prophecy come true?

Yes, gooks having poor security skills (see: Samsung, supergonorrhea) does mean that your bitcoin price drops.

It's like a sort of nonsense thing. Where people think "OMG maybe mine isn't safe either!!!!111"

Panic sell.

It's a good time to buy.
CNN:

A cyberheist at a little-known virtual currency exchange helped wipe billions of dollars off the value of bitcoin and other digital currencies.

The price of bitcoin slumped more than 7% after South Korea's Coinrail announced that it had been targeted by cyberthieves. In a statement Monday, the exchange said that it had a suffered a security breach in which hackers stole about 30% of its virtual currencies.

Coinrail said it had temporarily suspended trading in digital currencies and was fully cooperating with investigators to try to track down the missing funds. The exchange did not disclose the value of tokens stolen. The theft was of less well-known cryptocurrencies rather than bitcoin itself.

South Korea has emerged as a hotbed for trading in virtual currencies over the last year. Coinrail is one of its less-well-known trading platforms.

Still, the news sent shock waves through virtual currency markets. As well as bitcoin, prices for other commonly traded digital currencies like ethereum also plunged. Nearly $30 billion in cryptocurrency wealth was wiped in about seven hours of trading, according to data provider Coinmarketcap.com.

Bitcoin was trading at around $6,750 in early afternoon trading in Asia. That's near its lowest level in about two months and around half the price at which it started the year.

I think the actual value of Bitcoin is probably $8,500-9,500.

I asked for donations yesterday.

It's a good time to do Bitcoin, if you want to buy some. I don't think it can go much lower, and it is getting ready for a big buy-up that is going to raise it up.

THIS IS NOT FINANCIAL ADVICE, I AM NOT A FINANCIAL ADVISER, DO NOT SPEND ANY MONEY THAT IS IMPORTANT ON THIS

But if you just want to donate, yeah, now is a great time to do that. Because I am VERY comfortable holding it at this price.

Old Fashioned Bank Robbery

Kinda cool to think of this as a cyberpunk bank robbery.

I like cyberpunk shit, generally.

Video Link

So I sometimes kinda try to fit reality into that paradigm, and it makes it more exciting and less depressing.

We will never live in LotR.

We will never live on Dune.

But we are pretty close to living in Neuromancer.

Johnny Mnemonic had vaping in it, btw.

Vaping is cyberpunk af.

So is dumping Discord for IRC.

DS

White House Says There's a Special Place in Hell for Trudeau the Money Thief!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

Peter Navarro is a hero that does not give a single fuck about anyone and is ready to literally send Ghost Recon into Canada.

Chris Wallace is a weasel Jew who talks like he's got a mouth full of coy fish. Swimming around in there.

Chris Wallace, you should move to Canada—it's closer than Israel and just as traitorous!

Video Link

The Devil is going to have to create a special place for Justin Trudeau—because if he just shoves him in with the trannies and jihadists, that will be like heaven to him!

Fucking filthy Canadian fuck!

Give us back our goddamn money, you thieving leaf rat fuck!

FAKE EYEBROWS!

> Justin Trudeau's left eyebrow detached after meeting Trump—so what? These days, who doesn't wear fake eyebrows? pic.twitter.com/EZTeYllCrH
>
> — Mike (@Doranimated) June 10, 2018

GIVE US THE MONEY, TRUDEAU!
Fox News:

There is a "special place in hell" for Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau because of his decision to slam the U.S. in a post-G7 press conference, White House Director of Trade Policy Peter Navarro said on "Fox News Sunday."

"There's a special place in hell for any foreign leader that engages in bad faith diplomacy with President Donald J. Trump and then tries to stab him in the back on the way out the door," Navarro said. "And that's what bad faith Justin Trudeau did with that stunt press conference. That's what weak, dishonest Justin Trudeau did. And that comes right from Air Force One."

Later Sunday, top European Union official Donald Tusk tweeted an apparent rebuke of Navarro. Trump has imposed steel and aluminum tariffs on both the EU and Canada because of what he has called their unfair trade practices.

"There is a special place in heaven for @JustinTrudeau," Tusk, the president of the EU's European Council, wrote. "Canada, thank you for the perfect organisation of G7!"

There's a special place in hell for people who suck Canadian cock, Tusk you European piece of dogshit!

> There is a special place in heaven for @JustinTrudeau. Canada, thank you for the perfect organisation of G7!
>
> — Donald Tusk (@eucopresident) June 10, 2018

We will invade you too!

You're going to wish you would have given us our money back on request!

Now we're going to have to loot your countries and rape your women! We will melt down the gold teeth you made out of our gold and build a golden statue of Donald Trump in the center of Berlin! We'll build one of Hitler next to it, you filthy fucks!

Then we're going to have a Metallica concert in front of those statues!

Video Link

Who does the bell toll for?

EVERYONE

You think this is a game???

It's all chuckles at stupid dumb old fat America until you're sitting there smugly sipping your macchiato and start seeing the tops of people's goddamn heads flying off and realize Trump just sent in Ghost Recon!

The Canadians are planning an attack!

He's backed up by Tusk and the rest of Europe!

The war has already begun!

DS

Trump Attacks Slimy Canadian and Europoor Rats for Ripping Us Off!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

Trump is lashing out at the slimy Canadian rats who have been ripping off America—in an "open secret" type situation—for decades on end.

The basic concept of "free trade" is that because America is the most productive and creative country, it has a duty to spread that wealth to shitholes, including Canada and the third world. This is global communism, also just known as "globalism."

> Fair Trade is now to be called Fool Trade if it is not Reciprocal. According to a Canada release, they make almost 100 Billion Dollars in Trade with U.S. (guess they were bragging and got caught!). Minimum is 17B. Tax Dairy from us at 270%. Then Justin acts hurt when called out!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 11, 2018
>
> Why should I, as President of the United States, allow countries to continue to make Massive Trade Surpluses, as they have for decades, while our Farmers, Workers & Taxpayers have such a big and unfair price to pay? Not fair to the PEOPLE of America! $800 Billion Trade Deficit...
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 11, 2018
>
> ....And add to that the fact that the U.S. pays close to the entire cost of NATO-protecting many of these same countries that rip us off on Trade (they pay only a fraction of the cost-and laugh!). The European Union had a $151 Billion Surplus-should pay much more for Military!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 11, 2018
>
> ....Germany pays 1% (slowly) of GDP towards NATO, while we pay 4% of a MUCH larger GDP. Does anybody believe that makes sense? We protect Europe (which is good) at great financial loss, and then get unfairly clobbered on Trade. Change is coming!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 11, 2018

This is full-on campaign Trump, doing exactly what he said he was going to do.

Mandela Effect says Trump had a badass handlebars mustache during the campaign.

I disagree that it is "good" we protect Europe.

Firstly, who are we protecting them from? The Cold War ended when I was a small boy.

It seems "protecting" is a code word for "inciting Russia." All NATO does is run drills on the Russian border, acting like they're planning to invade.

There is nothing good about this, and if Merkel and her gang of perverts want to start a war with Russia, they should do it with their own money and military equipment.

Because war with Russia is just another part of the globalist agenda.

As is mass immigration.

All of this is about creating a Jewish one-world government.

The economic, political, war and immigration agendas all get mixed together.

This is what liberals actually believe.

The EU began as a economic trading bloc, now it is all of the sudden a singular governing body for Europe. People knew that was the plan, if they could get ahold of the books and papers written by the planners of it (which was hard to do before the internet), but the media just talked about "free trade no passport stamp blah blah blah."

Then all of the sudden Merkel is telling Hungary and Poland they have to accept infinity Islamic immigrants.

And of course Poland is in it all for the war with Russia...

All of it is organized from the US, initially, which is why Donald Tusk referred to it as the order the US created. But it was organized in the US by a bunch of Jews who "escaped" Germany and Russia.

They're always fleeing something, these "people."

Basically, the whole thing just needs burned.

Don't renegotiate NAFTA—just burn it.

Don't beg Germany and the rest of the europoor freeloaders for more money for NATO—just burn it.

Don't try to deport all of these rats who invaded our country—just burn them.

DS

UK: Negro Minister Whines About the Lack of Colored Students at Oxford and Cambridge

Michael Byron
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

The United Kingdom contains some of the oldest and most venerable universities in the world.

As usual, however, the country is all too eager to throw its rich heritage down the drain by appointing a negro—a member of a race that never invented a written language—as its Universities & Science Minister.

And, like all darkies that assume positions of power in white countries, that negro is already campaigning to replace white people with colored savages!

The Independent:

> Oxford and Cambridge's failure to take in more students who are black or from less privileged backgrounds is "staggering", the universities minister has said.
>
> Sam Gyimah criticised the elite institutions for not doing enough and warned that they could be fined by the new higher education regulator if they do not meet admissions targets.

Mr Gyimah, an Oxford graduate himself, said the universities should not just focus on academic results during their admissions process to ensure they achieve more diverse intakes.

"It is staggering that we have the best minds in our universities and we still do not know what the best way is when it comes to applications," he told The Daily Telegraph, adding: "The numbers that we are seeing now disappoint me, and it's disappointing because it's been going on for too long."

Here are a handful of things that are "staggering," Mr. Gyimah:

The Grand Canyon.

Niagara Falls.

Playing Doom for the first time in 1993.

The fact that Oxbridge is not filled with the descendants of cannibals is anything but "staggering."

Just sayin'.

> His comments come after the two prestigious universities released admissions data showing that some

Oxbridge colleges had admitted no British black students in recent years.

The latest statistics from Oxford show just 11 per cent of UK undergraduates came from disadvantaged areas, while the proportion of students identifying as black and minority ethnic (BME) was 18 per cent.

...

The University of Cambridge has said it needs support from schools and parents to boost diversity after a Freedom of Information request from the Financial Times revealed that six of the 29 colleges admitted fewer than 10 British black or mixed white and black students between 2012 and 2016.

Last month, the University of Oxford said it needed to do more to improve diversity after figures revealed more than a third of its colleges admitted three or fewer black applicants over three years.

Oxford and Cambridge have been pozzed for a long, long time. Their faculties are staffed from head to toe with left wing Boomers, women and soyboys who would love nothing more than a student body that contains all the colors of the Third World.

That this goal hasn't been achieved yet, even though the entire anti-white system is geared toward the advancement of coloreds, demonstrates just how stupid those coloreds are when compared to whites.

Interviewers at Oxford allegedly ask some applicants to tell them "about a banana." I've got a feeling they don't ask the same of black applicants.

But, of course, Oxbridge's administrators can't just come out and say, "We'd love to have a university filled with blacks, we really would, but they're just not bright enough to survive the application process," so they're forced to keep quiet as this shaved baboon in a suit threatens them with fines.

It's a bizarre state of affairs.

DS

United States

Weird Mass Shooting: 20 Injured at New Jersey Art Festival! Zero Deaths (Other Than Shooter)!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Video Link

Weird story.

CNN:

> Twenty people, including a teenager, were injured early Sunday in a shooting at a 24-hour art festival in Trenton, New Jersey, the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office said.
>
> One suspect was killed, and another one was taken into custody, officials said.
>
> "Multiple weapons have been recovered," prosecutor Angelo Onofri said. "Twenty individuals were treated for a variety of gunshot wounds as well as other injuries."
>
> Among the injured is a 13-year-old, who is in extremely critical condition, the prosecutor said.
>
> Witnesses told CNN affiliate WPVI the shooting happened around 2:45 a.m. at the Art All Night-Trenton festival at the Roebling Wire Works Building on the south side of the city.
>
> "All of a sudden, my brother goes to me, 'You hear that gunfire?' I go, 'It sounds like fireworks.' He said, 'No, that's gunfire.' Next thing you know, we turn around and everybody's running down the street. All hell broke loose," Angelo Nicolo of Trenton told the station.
>
> Nicolo saw one person with a gunshot wound, he said.
>
> "I saw two police officers escort a guy that got shot in the leg. They bandaged him up and whisked him away before the ambulance came here. It was pretty gnarly," Nicolo said.
>
> Police are questioning witnesses to determine if more suspects could be at large, WPVI reported. The dead suspect was a 33-year-old man, police told the station.
>
> Before it was canceled, the festival had been scheduled to run from 3 p.m. Saturday to 3 p.m. Sunday. It featured more than 1,500 works of art, live murals and graffiti, dozens of musical performances and a film festival. The event is in its 12th year, its website says.

So:

- Art festival
- Two shooters (maybe more)
- A weapons cache
- 20 injured (not clear how many of those are shooting injuries—some could be tramplings)
- 0 deaths

I don't even know what this would be.

A mass shooting event usually has casualties. It's not hard to kill people if you're opening fire on a crowd trying to just kill random people. Blacks sometimes open fire and hit random people when they're trying to hit a specific person. But why at an art festival would a black person be shooting? Also, 33-year-old is pretty old for a black shooter.

I guess the most likely thing is incompetent Moslems?

Video Link

I guess details will come out. Or maybe they won't. Maybe if it's bad for the narrative, they'll wait a few days before releasing it as a minor news item.

DS

Trump to Congress: "You Can Take These Spics and Shove Them"

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

One of my favorite quotes from the famous scientist and anti-gook activist Albert Einstein is "you can take this job and shove it," which he told the Israeli government when they offered him a position as president of their country.

I've always had a fun time using different versions of that Einstein quote, and like when I was thinking about Trump and this immigration thing, I thought of it and came up with a new version.

I think it's a really hilarious joke.

CNN:

> House Republicans were in full-on damage control Friday morning as they sought to downplay President Donald Trump's comments that he wouldn't support the GOP compromise bill.
>
> After a day of confusion that threatened the future of the legislation, the White House issued a statement on the record that Trump supported the bill along with a more conservative piece of legislation.
>
> "The President fully supports both the Goodlatte bill and the House leadership bill. In this morning's interview, he was commenting on the discharge petition in the House, and not the new package. He would sign either the Goodlatte or the leadership bills," White House spokesman Raj Shah said in a statement.

"Oh I'll support your bill alright...I'll support your bill right in the face!"

> After toiling away for weeks on a hard-fought compromise bill that tackled border security and even delivered Trump his campaign promise of a border wall, Republican aides and members involved in the discussions were taken aback by the President's impromptu interview with Fox News on the White House lawn where Trump insinuated he wouldn't support a bill that had been negotiated with his administration's involvement. Many members > were desperate to believe that the President had either been referring to another bill or would reverse course later in the day—while conservatives cheered the President as rightfully demanding changes to the bill.

Video Link

> One White House official who was watching the interview in a room with others said there were audible gasps when the President made the comment as staff immediately realized the potential consequences of the President's remarks.
> On Friday afternoon, Trump tweeted, but it did little to settle the question of where he officially stood on the compromise legislation.

Yeah lol

Dems r real family breaker-uppers, kek.

> The Democrats are forcing the breakup of families at the Border with their horrible and cruel legislative agenda. Any Immigration Bill MUST HAVE full funding for the Wall, end Catch & Release, Visa Lottery and Chain, and go to Merit Based Immigration. Go for it! WIN!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 15, 2018

He's saying the same exact thing he's always said (except when he was randomly saying different things as fakeouts): he'll do DACA if he gets absolutely every single other thing he's asking for on immigration.

That means wall, border shutdown, end of a bunch of different kinds of visas, end of the refugee program, etc. etc. etc.

So he was like "sure, I'll support the bill, just get the bill done" and then when it's close to done he's like "sure, no problem, now just put in all that other stuff I said I wanted and we'll be good to go."

> Before the on-the-record statement, the White House official told CNN on Friday after the tweet that Trump did indeed support the House compromise immigration bill, despite saying otherwise in the morning. The same person admitted that Trump's tweet had done little to clarify his position.

CNN has started faking insider sources at the same rate as NYT and WaPo. These "source said" statements just do not have any value at all anymore when coming from any of the big mainstream media organizations.

> The official also said that congressional leadership had reached out to the White House to express their unhappiness with the President's comments.
>
> ...
>
> The lack of clarity led GOP leaders to put their plans for the bill on hold.
>
> One GOP whip aide told CNN, "It's pretty basic. We aren't going to whip anything unless it has Trump's support. That's why we need more clarity."

Republicans even trying to rush through immigration reform before the midterms indicates that they are actually trying to lose the elections.

The media keeps talking about how there are these "moderate districts" which want all of these Mexicans. But even Democrats are fed up with immigration. The only people who want all of these infinity brown people are:

1. Jews
2. Corporations that want to keep down the value of labor
3. Other brown people (except blacks, every group wants to bring in more of their own people as our country gets stripped like vultures stripping a corpse), and
4. Extreme leftists ideological lunatics (mostly single and/or childless women)

Everyone else in the country has had enough of this sludge flood.

Even if they are afraid to admit it publicly, because of the social stigma the Jews have created through manipulation of the media, academia, etc., they are thinking this and this is what is determining the way people vote.

Fake polls aside.

Everyone knows this.

But a lot of these people don't even want to be reelected. They have these campaign contributors (who bribe them, legally) that they are indebted to, and Trump is making it impossible for them to pay that debt.

You see them resigning. A bunch of these cucks are resigning. Because they just can't do the job that they were paid to do by their donors. So they're dipping out.

So this entire thing of doing immigration right before the midterms is self-sabotage, and Trump gets it, he's not going to let it happen.

DS

Trump Drops Truth Bombs on Pansy Politicians in Private

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

Sometimes it feels like Trump is the only sane politician in the West.

He says basic shit and the media/other politicians treat him like he's insane for pointing out the obvious.

Probably because they really do live in a bubble and don't know anything about anything.

Newsweek:

> President Donald Trump reportedly made some bold, and potentially offensive, remarks in private conversations with world leaders at the G7 summit last week.
>
> Trump told Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe he'd be "out of office" if he had to deal with "25 million Mexicans," and told French President Emmanuel Macron that "all the terrorists are in Paris," The Wall Street Journal reported on Friday.
>
> Claiming that migration is a huge issue in Europe, he reportedly told Abe: "Shinzo, you don't have this problem, but I can send you 25 million Mexicans and you'll be out of office very soon," a senior European Union official in the meeting in Quebec, told the Journal.

Where is the lie?

Mexicans are a major headache and everyone wants them gone except the Mexicans themselves, the Jews, lazy-ass farmers who want to hire cheap labor, boomers that inexplicably don't want to pay the local neighborhood kids to mow their lawn, and hotel chains that rely on Mexican cleaning ladies.

As for the terrorist issue, again, where is the lie?

Isn't Paris putting in bulletproof glass around its major monuments now?

Why would Paris be installing bulletproof glass around its monuments?

Why, oh why, would they be doing this??

How can newspapers like the Wall Street Journal and Newsweek make fun of Trump for pointing out the obvious?

It's like, why do they think that this is somehow a controversial statement to make when the Mexican issue propelled the man to the presidency and it is objectively impossible to deny that Paris isn't on lockdown.

Are people really that dumb? I don't think so.

Most just still don't know or understand what is happening around them or in the world. Most people will never visit Paris—so maybe in their minds, it's still White people sitting in berets, drinking wine and writing poetry.

I don't know.

That's the only way that you can explain this disconnect. It's like mocking someone for saying two plus two is four and thinking that if you jeer loud enough and make enough funny faces that people will be like, "shit it really isn't four, and Paris doesn't have a nigger and Moslem savage problem."

DS

Trump Tweetstorm on DOJ Report (He's Happy Comey's Getting Got)

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

Trump is apparently happy about this Jew's report on the lack of a Jew conspiracy in the DOJ.

Horowitz did release some new texts from the conspirators...but overall, the report was a cover-up.

Of course, the President could just be pretending to be excited about this as he plans his independent investigation.

Here's his series of tweets today.

> FBI Agent Peter Strzok, who headed the Clinton & Russia investigations, texted to his lover Lisa Page, in the IG Report, that "we'll stop" candidate Trump from becoming President. Doesn't get any lower than that!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 15, 2018

> The IG Report is a total disaster for Comey, his minions and sadly, the FBI. Comey will now officially go down as the worst leader, by far, in the history of the FBI. I did a great service to the people in firing him. Good Instincts. Christopher Wray will bring it proudly back!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 15, 2018
>
> "Why in the world didn't Barack Obama fire this guy (Comey)?" asks Mark Levin!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 15, 2018

Boomer Trump— "see, even the token right-wing Jew agrees!!!!!"

Sigh.

He then stormretweeted Fox & Friends.

> .@jasoninthehouse: All of this started because Hillary Clinton set up her private server pic.twitter.com/rLzjDRxxxm
>
> — FOX & friends (@foxandfriends) June 15, 2018
>
> .@jasoninthehouse: Anything Mueller is doing with his investigation is tainted by the anti-Trump FBI agents pic.twitter.com/Ddx1OcnXSU
>
> — FOX & friends (@foxandfriends) June 15, 2018
>
> .@jasoninthehouse: The DOJ IG report is 562 pages of nothing but bias and animus pic.twitter.com/7IeXfmvo1M
>
> — FOX & friends (@foxandfriends) June 15, 2018
>
> "This is one of the most damning rebukes of the FBI that I think we've ever seen." —@jasoninthehouse pic.twitter.com/9DoTimji5e
>
> — FOX & friends (@foxandfriends) June 15, 2018
>
> DOJ IG report finds that an FBI lawyer told a bureau employee "Viva le resistance" after President Trump was elected pic.twitter.com/udfJxanRw9
>
> — FOX & friends (@foxandfriends) June 15, 2018
>
> IG REPORT BOMBSHELL: Anti-Trump FBI agent Peter Strzok texted his lover Lisa Page "we'll stop" Trump from becoming president pic.twitter.com/lFId8WMD5f
>
> — FOX & friends (@foxandfriends) June 15, 2018

I get that he's glad Comey got got.

But he got got on the issue of...reopening the Clinton investigation.

Not the coverup of the Clinton conspiracy.

The Jew was like "this guy wasn't Jewy enough tho."

Anyway, the report was such a joke, there is no way there won't be an independent investigation.

Trump knows that.

He's just holding his cards close.

DS

DOJ Jew Investigates Jewish Conspiracy in DOJ – Finds There's Nothing to It

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

James "Aw gee, shucks" O'Comey

So the DOJ Jew investigating the Jewish conspiracy at the DOJ finally released his report.

There's really nothing to it, guys.

Comey's real error was not letting Hillary Clinton off completely for all of the crimes she committed—it was announcing that he was reopening the investigation just a week before the election, which maybe helped Trump in the election.

So, it's really that everything is the exact opposite of what everyone thought—Hillary Clinton was the real victim in all of this.

Golly, what a relief.

Reuters:

Former FBI Director James Comey made a "serious error of judgment" when he announced shortly before the 2016 U.S. presidential election that he was reopening an investigation into candidate Hillary Clinton's use of a private e-mail server, the Justice Department's internal watchdog said on Thursday.

But Inspector General Michael Horowitz also concluded in a long-awaited, 500-page report that Comey did not exhibit political bias or try to influence the election; nor did he contest the decision not to charge Clinton with a crime.

...

And while embarrassing for the FBI, the report appeared to lack the kind of bombshell revelation that would significantly boost an effort by Trump and his allies to paint the FBI as corrupt and discredit the Russia investigation.

Yep.

Nothing to see here at all, goyim.

FBI Director Christopher Wray told reporters at a briefing that he accepted the inspector general's report, but stressed it did not find that political bias had impacted its investigations.

"The report does identify errors of judgment, violations of, or even disregard for policy and decisions that at the very least, with the benefit of hindsight, were not the best choices," Wray said. "We need to hold ourselves accountable."

The inspector general's inquiry focused on public statements made by Comey about Democrat Clinton's use of a private email server, instead of a State Department server, while she was secretary of state.

In October 2016, less than two weeks before Election Day, Comey sent members of Congress a letter disclosing that a probe into Clinton's emails was being reopened after new emails were discovered, a disclosure Clinton contends contributed to her surprise defeat by Trump. Two days before the Nov. 8 election, Comey said the FBI found no additional evidence in the new emails.

John Podesta, who ran the Clinton campaign, told Reuters "the report demonstrates beyond doubt" that Comey was unfair to Clinton by announcing developments concerning the email probe in the heat of the campaign while not revealing the existence of the Russia probe, launched in late July 2016.

Wow, Podesta. The pizzaman himself.

Haven't heard from him in a while.

Comey defended his actions in an op-ed published in the New York Times after the report was released.

"In 2016, my team faced an extraordinary situation—something I thought of as a 500-year flood—offering no good choices and presenting some of the hardest decisions I ever had to make," Comey wrote.

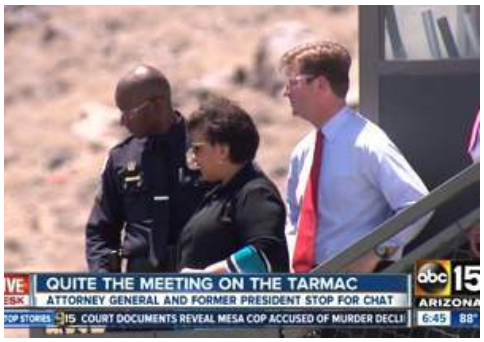
VIOLATING POLICIES

The report sharply criticized Comey for violating Justice Department policies and accused him of usurping the authority of then Attorney General Loretta Lynch when he held a news conference in July 2016 and announced there was insufficient evidence to charge Clinton with a federal crime over her use of a private server.

Comey said Lynch forced his hand when she did not recuse herself from the Clinton probe, even after a June 2016 meeting with former President Bill Clinton aboard her plane raised concerns she was conflicted.

Thursday's report found that while Lynch did not discuss the email investigation with Bill Clinton, she failed "to recognize the appearance problem" created by the meeting and did not try to cut the meeting short.

This report PROVES once and for all that they were just discussing their grandchildren on that secret tarmac conspiracy meeting.



What a relief.

Lynch in a statement called the report "thorough and in depth" and said it "upholds my fidelity to the rule of law" and "affirms that my actions had no political motivation or bias."

Trump and his allies have accused a clique of FBI and Justice Department officials of working against Trump.

The Horowitz report was highly critical of Peter Strzok and Lisa Page, two FBI staff members who exchanged highly charged political messages, finding their texts cast a cloud over the FBI and created the appearance of bias.

In one newly released email from August 2016, Page wrote to Strzok asking "(Trump's) not ever going to become president, right? Right!"

Strzok replied: "No. No he's not. We'll stop it."

Yeah but here's the kicker—even though they were planning to stop the election of Trump, they had no bias.

It was a totally unbiased high-level law enforcement conspiracy to sway a presidential election.

The report criticized the FBI for a one-month delay between the time new Clinton emails were found on Sept. 26, 2016 and when the FBI finally got a search warrant to review them to search for new evidence in late October as the election loomed.

I'm sure it also found that there was also no crime when Clinton destroyed all that evidence. Probably didn't even need to bother mentioning it.

Strzok was among a number of FBI employees who failed to act promptly, the report said.

"The FBI's inaction had potentially far-reaching consequences," the report says, noting there were no persuasive arguments to explain the delay.

The report added that the inspector general's office was very concerned about a decision to prioritize the Russia investigation over following up on the Clinton probe in light of the new emails.

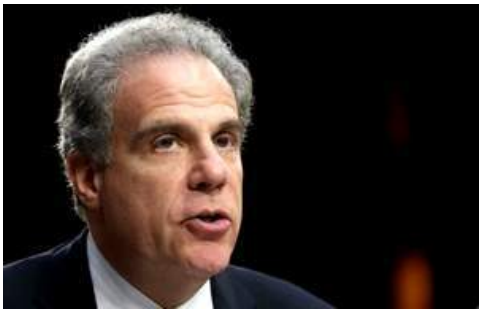
Strzok's lawyer Aitan Goelman said the report, while flawed in some conclusions, found no evidence that his political views had an impact on the Clinton probe.

So there it is.

I was really worried, but now all my fears have been massaged.

Seems like it was all just a big misunderstanding.

Thanks for that, Mr. Horowitz.



We needed someone we can trust—god's chosen one—to do an investigation this brutally honest.

Um, But Srsly Tho

This is like having the fox investigate a murder in the hen house.

This is absolutely retarded.

I said this was going to be the dumbest thing you ever saw—but I didn't even think this Jew would have the nerve to come out and say that the real crime was Comey reopening the investigation right before the election (when he found those emails on Huma's computer, which her Jewish husband was using for sex chats with underage girls).

Trump never should have allowed the DOJ to investigate themselves first.

This biases whatever investigation comes next.

Or maybe it doesn't. Maybe this report is so goofy that it will serve as justification for an independent investigation of the DOJ and FBI.

DS

Based High-School Students Cyberbully Dyke Teacher into Insanity

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

Bullying works. Don't ever let anyone tell you otherwise.

Here we have a heartwarming tale of heroic generation Z meme warriors defeating the forces of evil through epic cyberbullying efforts.

When you get black-pilled about life, never forget that this world isn't all darkness and poz. There is light at the end of this tunnel. No matter how much kids may be oppressed by their demented teachers, some of these youngsters rise up and fight back against the machine—and win.

Alternet:

> She never discussed her sexuality with her students—although there is no reason why she should not have. But she did post a photo of her and her partner to Instagram, and after it was discovered, that's when the cyberbullying began.

Oh, yeah. Cyberbullying is the best kind of bullying. Because of memes.

The future is the best place to be, after all.

> Amy Estes, a California middle school teacher says she went to the administrators asking for help and support, but got none. She says they ignored the problem, saying it was "drama," and would "blow over."
>
> It didn't.

Ignoring bullying never works.

Because bullying is always a result of your own degenerate behavior—whether that's being a dirty bulldyke, or failing to bust someone's lip when he makes fun of your Spongebob lunchbox.

To be a man, you have to fight for what you believe in. And that may include your totally lit lunchbox.

The only way to stop bullying is to correct your bad behavior, whether that means discontinuing your disgusting carpet-munching, or fighting any foo' who gives you lip over your favorite cartoon characters.

> "Estes, who has taught English at Spring View Middle School in Rocklin for five years, considered herself well-liked before the barrage of online taunts, nasty statements and memes began at the beginning of the school year," The Sacramento Bee reports.

Lesbo memes? I wanted to see that. Why didn't they include them in this article? Did a communist write this?

ALTERNET

Oh, right. Nevermind.

Here's some memes to get your fix.

So relatable...

The school not only refused to step in, but told her she should not discuss her sexuality as a means of getting the attacks to stop unless it was absolutely necessary.

"At the recommendation of her bosses, Estes tried to talk to the student she was told was the ringleader. He denied any wrongdoing," the paper says. "She said she asked the school to investigate the social media posts and to talk to the students involved. She was told the school does not monitor what is being said on the internet. Estes says such monitoring has been done when students were bullying one another."

Estes, it turns out, had helped to create the school's anti-bullying curriculum, so she was familiar with ways to handle bullying.

Yeah, she sounds like a real pro!

The principal called it a teachable moment and said she wasn't sure what Estes wanted school officials to do.

It was indeed a teachable moment. The dyke teacher could have learned to mend her degenerate ways.

But instead, she doubled down, trying to impose her sick views on her virtuous and noble students.

> "What I wanted from my administration was to utilize the discipline matrix that I worked hard to establish," said Estes, who helped build the anti-bullying curriculum used with students. "If there is hate speech, students are given a consequence—detention or other consequences. Speaking so hatefully deserved more than a teachable moment."
>
> It didn't get better.

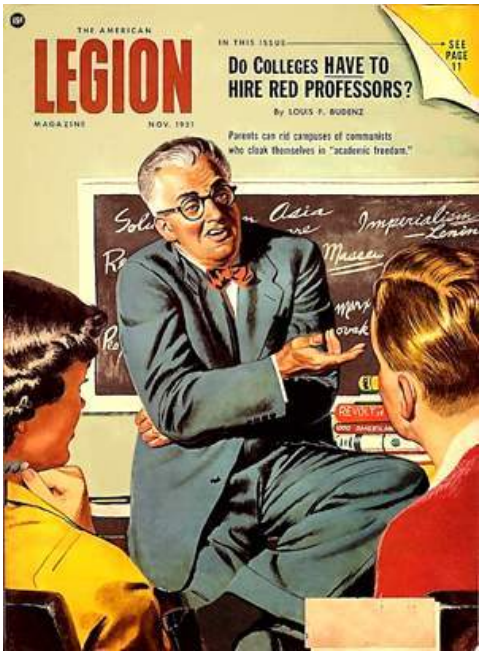
Of course not. Under an oppressive regime of state-mandated homosexuality, the righteous will rise up in protest.



These homo-kikes won't be tolerated for much longer.

> "She assigned her students a positive lesson: Write a report about how you would create a utopia and give a class presentation. When it was the girl's turn, she said her utopia would not include gay marriage because it was bad. Her paper used a derogatory word to describe gay people, among other inflammatory things, Estes said.
>
> The students reacted with clapping and cheers, obviously looking to her for reaction, Estes said.
>
> And that was her breaking point.

Well done, kids. Beautiful.

This was masterfully done. The dyke teacher was forced into taking a "mental health" leave, which hopefully involved being locked in an insane asylum where she belongs.

> Parents whose daughter had the Rocklin teacher who went on mental health leave after being bullied by students when they learned she was gay are now sharing their side of the story. They say they support the district & believe LGBTQ issues should not be addressed in school @ABC10 pic.twitter.com/yRy9lzPT4q
>
> — Liz Kreutz (@ABCLiz) June 13, 2018

Truly, the next generation will be titans of meme warfare

DS

Finally, Sessions Does Something: Calls for Reinstatement of SLAVERY!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

Finally, Jeff Sessions is getting hardcore and...no wait, gosh darn it. I read that headline wrong.

Fugg.

Washington Post:

> Attorney General Jeff Sessions used a Bible verse Thursday to defend his department's policy of prosecuting everyone who crosses the border from Mexico, suggesting that God supports the government in separating immigrant parents from their children.
>
> "I would cite you to the Apostle Paul and his clear and wise command in Romans 13, to obey the laws of the government because God has ordained the government for his purposes," Sessions said during a speech to law enforcement officers in Fort Wayne, Ind. "Orderly and lawful processes are good in themselves. Consistent and fair application of the law is in itself a good and moral thing, and that protects the weak and protects the lawful."
>
> Sessions announced in May a zero-tolerance policy in which the Justice Department would begin prosecuting everyone who crosses the Southwest border. Part of the policy shift meant that migrants traveling with children or unaccompanied minors end up detained instead of released; U.S. immigration law charges adults with a crime, but not the children, which means they're held separately.
>
> The Associated Press cited U.S. Customs and Border Protection figures from two weeks in May in which more than 650 children were separated from parents. Reports from the same month, later disputed, that the government lost track of 1,475 children sparked a national outcry.
>
> Sessions has said "we've got to get this message out" that asylum seekers or anyone else immigrating through unofficial means is not given immunity. He appealed to "church friends" later in Thursday's speech in Fort Wayne, emphasizing that non-citizens who enter the United States illegally are breaking the law.
>
> On the same issue, other religious groups and individuals have cited the Bible as well, to take the opposite side.
>
> "Overwhelmingly, Scripture causes families to be kept together," said Gabriel Salguero, president of the National Latino Evangelical Coalition.

> "Overwhelmingly Scripture causes us to defend families. As Evangelicals, we have a doctrine to be a pro-family-values people, you know. The Bible calls us to be pro-family, and I personally find it deeply lamentable that we are separating children from their parents at the border or anywhere."
>
> ...
>
> Government officials occasionally refer to the Bible as a line of argument—take, for instance, the Republicans who have quoted 2 Thessalonians, "if a man will not work, he shall not eat" to justify more stringent food stamps requirements—but the verse that Sessions cited, Romans 13, is an unusual choice.
>
> "There are two dominant places in American history when Romans 13 is invoked," said John Fea, a professor of American history at Messiah College in Pennsylvania. "One is during the American Revolution [when] it was invoked by loyalists, those who opposed the American Revolution. ...
>
> "The second spike you see is in the 1840s and 1850s, when Romans 13 is invoked by defenders of the South or defenders of slavery to ward off abolitionists who believed that slavery is wrong," Fea said. "I mean, this is the same argument that Southern slaveholders and the advocates of a Southern way of life made."
>
> After the Civil War, Fea points out, historians don't see many references to Romans 13 because the essence of the passage—submission to authority—is regarded as un-American.

Okay so yeah.

No slavery.

Just some more cuck crap. "We want immigration to be LEGAL" — plus a Bible verse quoting contest.

Even hardcore Christians I know understand that you're not supposed to use the Bible in politics. It's just walking straight into a trap, whatever the case.

But good ol Slow Jeff, if he's good at anything, is good at walking into traps.

Video Link

They should call him "the trap walker."

They'll make a movie of his life: "The Trap Whisperer."

So tired of this guy, man.

DS

Ouch: Democrat Congressional Candidate Campaigning Against Nancy Pelosi

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

> We're Better Than That
>
> This race is not about national politicians, it's about our families and our future here in the Second District of Arkansas. That's been my focus in the state legislature the last four years, that's what I'm concentrating on in this campaign, and that will be my priority in U.S. Congress. No more politics of the past.Join #TeamTucker as we build momentum for making lasting change for Arkansas: http://www.clarketucker.com/
>
> Gepostet von Clarke Tucker for Congress am Dienstag, 12. Juni 2018

Poor Nancy.

You have to feel bad for the stupid old bitch.

I mean, you don't have to. I don't, personally. But I see how someone could.

She's literally going senile in this massive weird ongoing public spectacle.

And now people from her own party are campaigning for themselves by campaigning against her.

Fox News:

> A Democrat running for a congressional seat held by Republicans in Arkansas released a new television ad saying he won't support House Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi in a bid to defuse Republican attacks amid the midterm election.
>
> Clarke Tucker, a state representative who won the party's primary last month, is set to air the anti-Pelosi ad on all four broadcast stations in the 2nd Congressional District.
>
> The ad follows the attacks by Republican U.S. House Rep. French Hill, who accused him of being supported by Pelosi's allies in Washington. The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee (DCCC) reportedly propped up Tucker as he was perceived as having the best chance to win against the incumbent Congressman.
>
> In the ad, Tucker slams Hill and assures voters that he won't be supporting Pelosi if he gets elected.
>
> "Congressman Hill opened his campaign by attacking me, knowing full well that I've said from day one that I won't vote for Nancy Pelosi. We're better than that," he said.

Yes.

Everyone is better than Nancy.

But I mean...don't be mean, guy.

The bitch is going senile.

She's off the rails.

DS

Poll Says Only Half of Americans Approve of Trump's Handling of Korea

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

So either this poll is bullshit, or the entire nation is just split down the middle—for or against Trump.

I'm also not thinking that most people actually even know what went on in Korea. I mean, blacks and so on are included in these polls.

Seriously though: how could you be against the North Korea summit? Who could be against it?

Ben Shapiro was against it because he is a raging Jew who says Kim is Hitler and wants a war. But did anit-Trump liberals want a war in Korea?

What is there to not agree with here?

Reuters:

Just over half of all Americans say they approve of how President Donald Trump has handled North Korea, but only a quarter think that his summit this week with Kim Jong Un will lead to the denuclearization of the Korean peninsula, according to a Reuters/Ipsos opinion poll released on Wednesday.

In a joint declaration following their meeting in Singapore on Tuesday, the North Korean leader pledged to move toward complete denuclearization of the peninsula and Trump vowed to guarantee the security of the United States' old foe. Forty percent of those polled said they did not believe the countries would stick to their commitments.

Another 26 percent said they believed the United States and North Korea would meet their commitments, while 34 percent said they did not know whether they would follow through.

Thirty-nine percent believe the summit has lowered the threat of nuclear war between the United States and nuclear-armed North Korea, slightly more than the 37 percent who said they did not believe it changed anything.

Trump has pursued what he calls a "maximum pressure" campaign" against Pyongyang to force it to give up its nuclear weapons. He toughened up international sanctions to further isolate North Korea and then agreed to meet directly with Kim after South Korea's president convinced him that the North was committed to giving up its nuclear weapons.

People are so dumb in general, and so committed to polarization, polls have become pointless.

We already know the deal.

Half agree with Trump, half do not, this is how they will respond.

The Singapore Summit was objectively fantastic. The only reason you would disagree with that is:

1. You have no idea what is going on
2. You hate Trump for ostensibly complicated reasons which can be summed up as "YOU'RE A FUCKING WHITE MALE," or
3. You are a Jew who wanted a war in Korea because you're Jewish

Democracy is stupid, polls are stupid, we need some form of authoritarian fascism.

There's fasces in Congress.

We should have fascism.

DS

Globo-Kikedom Claims US Trade Situation Worst Ever (Actually Best Ever)

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

Once again, we see that no one can make fun of Trump without making him look cooler.

Trump is purposefully creating a total chaos scenario, which puts him in a position of extreme control over the global trade situation.

He is purposefully rampaging and just tearing down all of these old rules and relationships.

The Jewish media is flipping out. They don't even know what to do or say about this.

CNBC:

U.S. trade relations appear to be hitting rock bottom ahead of potential new tariffs on China Friday and amid continuing worries that President Donald Trump will shred the North American Free Trade Agreement with Canada and Mexico.

Trump's already testy meeting with leaders of major trade partners at the G-7 summit last weekend took an even more difficult turn when he and administration officials slammed Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau. Trudeau had commented that Canada would not be pushed around by the U.S. and that it would proceed with retaliatory tariffs, drawing criticism from Trump and other officials who said Trudeau was stabbing Trump in the back.

The new low in U.S.-Canada relations fed concerns that NAFTA talks, still far from settled, could either drag on even longer or fall apart altogether, leading to Trump withdrawing from the 24-year-old trade pact.

Trump trade advisor Peter Navarro appeared to be toning down the administration's rhetoric Tuesday when he apologized for insulting Trudeau by saying there was a special place in hell for him. Navarro also said the list of proposed tariffs on Chinese goods, expected to be announced Friday, will be smaller than the original list.

"The original list was $12.5 billion of tariffs on $50 billion of goods (0.06% of US GDP) and making the list smaller is positive on the margin," wrote Dan Clifton, head of policy research at Strategas. "The initial round of tariffs is quite manageable economically although we are moving to a more uncomfortable stage should the tariffs be imposed."

China has threatened its own tariffs, as have other trading partners the Trump administration has targeted. Progress appeared to be made when the White House struck a deal to allow China's ZTE to resume buying U.S. components even though it violated sanctions against selling to Iran and North Korea. However, the deal now is in question, with the Senate attempting to undo it with a bill that is making progress.

Yeah, the ZTE thing —which I won't try to go into the details of, because I don't understand them well enough— is a clever thing of The Donald. China really, really wants the rest of being respected in the electronics world.

They have been humiliated for decades by their neighbors, Japan and Korea (and actually even Taiwan also, even though Taiwan is China), and it is a big point of national pride for them to be on the world electronics stage.

Just like the Olympics were a big thing for them.

Chinese people are Asians, and they still have all of these ideas of national honor and so on—it isn't all about the bottom line like it is for the soulless West.

They are not in the situation that they were in in the 80s, where they just had to be a gigantic sweatshop for the whole world in order to amass wealth. They now have a thriving middle class and an economy that is not entirely based on exports. They will make deals.

Of course, Congress is trying to sabotage the ZTE thing, because they are globo-kikeist shills.

China will make deals.

It is the Europeans and Canada that are going to be butthurt at the end of this thing, because to them this is ideological. It is about globalism—forcing this democracy/multiculturalist/feminist/consumerist—or, in a single word, "Jewish" —system on the world. And they absolutely have to have the wealth and military strength of the US to make that happen.

Look: every trade deal the US is involved in is a charity program (just like NATO has been a charity program since the end of the Cold War).

The whole thing needed a wrecking ball taken to it.

From that wrecked point, we can either renegotiate new deals or just not do any deals. It will take some time to get factories built in the US, but it doesn't matter. If we are doing tit-for-tat in a trade war, we can still import goods.

The US has ALWAYS held all of the cards. And we still do.

The problem is that since like, Nixon, the US has been run by globalists who view the country as a massive charity machine designed to build up the rest of the world at the expense of our own people.

So these asshole have continually folded with a hand full of aces—because they were driven by an agenda that had nothing to do with what was good for America and her people.

But we are in a new world now.

DS

Sarah Sanders is Probably Resigning as Press Secretary – We All Know What This Means

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

You know I'm not big on female politicians.

You all know that I am very, very not big on that.

But there are individuals. Just like Thomas Sowell has a 120 IQ, there are a very few women who can do man-jobs. Sarah Sanders really has done a great job as press secretary.

Fox News:

> White House press secretary Sarah Sanders hit back Wednesday night against a report that she was considering leaving her role, saying she "loves" her job and is "honored" to work with President Trump.
>
> Sanders was replying to an earlier CBS News report that both she and deputy press secretary Raj Shah have considered leaving their positions in the administration.
>
> "Does @CBSNews know something I don't about my plans and my future," Sanders asked in a tweet. "I was at my daughter's year-end Kindergarten event and they ran a story about my 'plans to leave the WH' without even talking to me."
>
> Does @CBSNews know something I don't about my plans and my future? I was at my daughter's year-end Kindergarten event and they ran a story about my "plans to leave the WH" without even talking to me. I love my job and am honored to work for @POTUS
>
> — Sarah Sanders (@PressSec) June 14, 2018
>
> Both Sanders and Shah are weighing future options, Fox News has learned, > which may or may not include their departures from the White House.

>
> Sanders has talked about departing sometime after November's midterm elections and although Shah's timetable is unclear, it could possibly come sooner—although both could remain in their roles, too.

I think she probably is considering leaving.

As a woman, I wouldn't expect her to be able to do this job indefinitely.

She takes a lot, a lot, a lot of abuse. And is just under constant, confrontational pressure.

I don't expect her to hold out forever.

She probably needs a break.

There is one man, however, who absolutely could hold out forever.

One man who could do this job better than any other single individual or group of individuals on earth.

You all know who he is.

It must happen.

There simply is no way it cannot happen.

It is destiny that Alex Jones must be the White House Press Secretary.

Can someone please get a petition going?

It is really no good if I do it. Because you know—chief neon-nazi.

But this is not a neon-nazi issue. This is an American issue. It would be the ultimate boot to the face of the Jewish media to put Alex up at that podium, and I guarantee you, he is a man who could handle himself very well in that situation.

And this is not like, all that outrageous of a suggestion.

Really, it isn't.

Trump has been a listener of Alex, he's appeared on his show, he calls him every once and a while—this is well within the realm of the possible.

Press Secretary is one position that does not require Congressional approval.

Owen does a great job filling in for Alex, he can totally take over the show. And Alex is a totally extreme workaholic (like myself, in fact, if I do say so myself) and he'd be calling in to his own show all the time anyway from his place in Washington.

There is absolutely zero reason that this cannot happen in real life.

Except I guess that Jones wouldn't be able to defend any strikes in Syria or whatever other neocon thing. So, I guess because neocon type acts are still technically on the table (though i expect Bolton to be fired soon), maybe that makes a Jones appointment impossible.

I sure hope not.

This would be the most amazing thing ever.

Imagine Alex running up to the podium shirtless and one of these kikes saying "Mr. Jones, why are you not wearing a shirt?" and Jones replying "it's hot in here and I'M A MAN—NEXT QUESTION!"

And then Trump being asked about Alex doing press briefings shirtless and say "you know, I don't know—that's his style, I don't know, what difference does it make? Is he doing a good job? I think he's doing a fantastic job. He is a great speaker, a brilliant mind."

NOTE: Re: John Bolton: I now think that whoever suggested Bolton was brought in specifically to play bad cop (without he himself knowing what was going on) in the Korean negotiations was right. I think Trump brought in a known crazyman to make Kim blink and make the right decision. I'm not sure that this was good or right or safe, but I am leaning towards it being the truth. I expect him to be replaced soon. I'm not going to predict that, because I don't predict things-this isn't Zero Hedge-but personally, I do believe he will be removed now that the Korea thing is finished. Or he'll stick around until the Korean process is underway in full, and then be fired. That's what I think.

DS

Microsoft to Release New Hololens Augmented Reality System

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

This is actually way more important than VR.

A few years back, Microsoft came out with their "Hololens" system, which was a headset that projected 3d images onto the environment around you, creating a sort of "mixed" reality, combining virtual objects with normal ones.

It was pretty sick, tbh.

Video Link

But it was also like, several grand. So it was aimed mostly at professionals, rather than normal people.

However, it seems like Microsoft is actually working hard to improve the tech and bring it to a wider audience.

Thurrot:

It was a little over a year ago, that I broke the news that Microsoft had stopped the development of HoloLens V2 and was pushing forward to V3. Since then, I have been asked about a million times for more information about the upcoming device but if you know where to look, the company is developing the hardware in broad daylight.

Yeah I mean, it was cool as a scifi sort of tech demo...

Based on documents I was able to view, Microsoft is still targeting a Q1 release of the next gen headset. Additionally, the company is referring to the project internally as Sydney.

The device, according to the documents, will be lighter, more comfortable to wear, and have significantly improved holographic displays. But most importantly, it will cost significantly less than the current version of the HoloLens.

In other words, it'll be far more accessible to people, and thus will likely yield new types of applications.

All of this is the natural evolution for the second generation of a piece of hardware but the good news is that it's still on track for a release early next year.

What I don't know is if the Q1 date is for general availability or for a developer preview. I could see Microsoft seeding the newer higher-end devices to developers prior to the general release of the hardware but that is only speculation at this time.

Based on the documents I was able to view, Microsoft is approaching the MR/VR market as a must-win market. This is likely because they are on the sidelines of the smartphone segment and missing out on this generation of devices would inflict serious long-term ramifications for the company about being anything more than a cloud company.

It's great that someone is working on this augmented reality stuff, since Google seems to have abandoned the idea along with their Google Glass fiasco.

It looked pretty stupid.

The main problem, aside from the fact that it was super expensive and looked dumb, was probably that people were uncomfortable being filmed constantly. This could be rectified simply by having a big red LED flashing when filming or taking pictures. Whatever.

They're still working on augmented reality for phones, but that's not quite the same thing.

So why am I so stocked on AR?

Basically, because it merges "reality" with the internet. And that's very good for the Alt-Right. Because the internet is where we rule.

Augmented reality, combined with new advances in artificial intelligence, could be an incredible boon for us. Imagine if there were programs for these AR platforms that could, at a glance, pull up all sorts of "problematic" information on everyone you meet.

This is annuda shoah!

We already have an AI program that can tell if people are faggots just from looking at their faces. Combine that with an instant search and analysis of their social media, and you could easily figure out their race, IQ, political stances, race-mixing relationships, criminal records or tendencies, and so on.

Having this information on people would be a temptation too seductive to pass up, even for the most die-hard normies.

You might think "oh, but then Alt-Right people could easily be found and doxed in the same way!"

Yes. All of them. Millions of them—simultaneously. How do you think shitlibs and Jews would react to suddenly realizing that half the White males they know are actually neon-Nazis?

Our world-view is based on reality. The Jew's insane mind-control program is, conversely, built on an infinite edifice of lies. It would never withstand a sudden influx of cold, hard reality.

When a holographic star of David overlays most of the people on cable News, provided by people's trusty AR displays, ZOG won't be long for this world.

And when these things are miniaturized to the size of a contact lens, everyone will be wearing them.

This is a technology we should be putting our full weight behind.

DS

It is Now Totally Illegal to be a Dance Maniac in America

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

I never thought I would live to see the day when it was illegal to be a dance maniac in the once-free nation of America.

Yeah, if you dance like a maniac, there is a slim chance that a gun in your pocket will go off.

We take risks every day. Do you know how many people are killed by bees everyday? I actually don't know that, but Alex Jones does for sure and he mentions it at least once every day.

CBS News:

> An FBI agent whose gun appeared to accidentally fire in a video showing him dancing at a Denver nightclub and doing a back flip before dropping the weapon has been booked into jail. Chase Bishop, who is based in the bureau's Washington Field Office, was charged Tuesday with one count of second-degree assault, the Denver District Attorney's office said.
>
> Bishop turned himself in to the Denver Sheriff Department on Tuesday morning after a warrant was issued for his arrest, according to Denver police.
>
> Denver Police had previously said they were awaiting the results of alcohol and drug tests before making an arrest. The district attorney's office said in a statement investigators are still awaiting the tests to determine Bishop's blood alcohol content at the time of the incident, and additional charges may be pending.

Well, he can't have been that drunk to pull off that backflip he did.

Yes, he should have had the safety on, but some people prefer to keep the safety off in case they need to murder someone rapidly.

Also, the flip itself could have knocked the safety off. In theory.

> "We are filing this charge now rather than waiting until the [blood alcohol content] report is received, which we understand could take another week, because sufficient evidence has been presented to file it," Denver District Attorney Beth McCann said in the statement. "If an additional charge needs to be filed after further evidence is received, we can file those charges then."
>
> Video from the June 3 incident shows Bishop landing a backflip at the Mile High Spirits bar, and reaching down to pick up the weapon that had fallen from his pants. As he grabs the gun, it can be seen firing.
>
> A man who identified himself in an interview with ABC's "Good Morning America" as Thomas Reddington was shot in the leg. His attorney tells CBS Denver that Reddington suffered a serious injury.

You knew the risks when you entered the club, Reddington.

Video Link

You little soyboy pussyass faggot.

Whining about being shot in the leg?

You're the type of faggot that is the reason McDonald's coffee cups have to have words on them saying that coffee is hot.

Maybe you should call your mommy to kiss your booboo.

Fucking faggot.

Instead of whining and calling for Chad Bishop the G-Man to be prosecuted, why don't you wait for your little booboo to heal and settle this like a man—in a dance battle.

Congress Must Act

It's time that Congress acted on a comprehensive dance maniac agenda to protect the millions of dance maniacs who work and contribute in this country, and only want to be able to dance in peace.

Everyone has a right to go crazy on the dance floor.

Video Link

I guarantee you that none of the faggots persecuting this man could have pulled off that backflip at all, let alone pulled it off without accidentally discharging a firearm.

Who watches the watchers?

Who can judge a dance maniac, other than other maniacs of the dance?

DS

Defender of the Confederacy and Trumpist Corey Stewart Wins Virginia Primary

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

Steve Bannon may be dead and gone, after hanging himself with a bath robe in a Paris hotel last week, but the primarying of anti-Trump shills continues.

The victories we have seen are only to foreshadow the victories yet to come.

CNN:

> Corey Stewart, the bombastic conservative who built his public image on championing Confederate symbols, won the Republican Senate nomination in Virginia.
>
> Stewart, a member of the Prince William County Board of Supervisors, defeated state House member Nick Freitas and minister E.W. Jackson in Tuesday's primary. Freitas conceded the race Tuesday night, according to local media.
>
> He now faces Democratic Sen. Tim Kaine, the party's 2016 vice presidential nominee and a heavy favorite for reelection, in November's midterm election.
>
> Republicans immediately expressed concern about the damage Stewart's candidacy could do to the party and its other candidates.

Yeah, you can all go fuck yourselves.

> I am extremely disappointed that a candidate like Corey Stewart could win the Republican nomination for U.S. Senate. This is clearly not the Republican Party I once knew, loved and proudly served. Every time I think things can't get worse they do, and there is no end in sight.
>
> — Bill Bolling (@lgbillbolling) June 13, 2018

> Can we just skip past the part where the media focuses on all the idiotic, racist & embarrassing things Corey Stewart will say & do the next five months and just acknowledge Tim Kaine won his reelection tonight. And he has Stewart voters to thank for it.
>
> — Brian Walsh (@brianjameswalsh) June 13, 2018

We are in charge now.

The jig is up.

This is the party of TRUMP the SAVIOR OF KOREA and DESTROYER OF CANADA.

We're also not tearing down anymore statues.

You rushed that, Jews.

You rushed it way too hard.

Everyone knows that Thomas Jefferson and George Washington owned slaves, and everyone saw your next move as you try to pull apart America piece by piece.

No dice.

We are picking up the remaining pieces and rebuilding America as a WHITE FREEDOM COUNTRY.

OF COURSE

It should be pointed out that Corey Stewart probably isn't going to win the race. It's against Tim Kaine—who for those who don't remember (it is easy to forget) was Hillary's running mate—and no polls show him not winning by a significant margin. It's a libshit district.

But this is still very important as it shows that the conservatives in Virginia would prefer a RIDE OR DIE candidate supporting our great Confederate heroes rather than some Paul Ryanesque scumsucking shitscum.

The Confederacy lost but these were good men who fought hard for their people, and we will ALWAYS honor them in America.

DS

Anti-Trump Rat Gets Primaried! It's Happening! Rats Out!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

The pro-Trump candidate...is not a tranny I'm pretty sure. But yeah, we all thought that when we first saw her.

Steve Bannon, the famous chef who was attempting to run primaries to replace cuckservatives, may have hanged himself with a bath robe, but nonetheless, the primary challenges continue.

An anti-Trump rat just got primaried and replaced with a Trumpist in South Carolina.

CNN:

> Rep. Mark Sanford, a South Carolina Republican who's a critic of President Donald Trump, will lose his GOP primary to his conservative challenger, state Rep. Katie Arrington, CNN projects.
>
> The outcome—one that national Republicans working on House races said as recently as Tuesday morning they did not anticipate—is another sign that GOP primary voters are rejecting lawmakers who break with Trump.
>
> Trump endorsed Arrington hours before the polls closed Tuesday in a tweet attacking Sanford for being "very unhelpful to me in my campaign to MAGA."
>
> Last week in Alabama, GOP Rep. Martha Roby—who had called on Trump to exit the 2016 race after the "Access Hollywood" tape became public—was held under 50% in her primary and forced into a runoff.
>
> On Tuesday night, Sanford told supporters gathered in Mount Pleasant, "I've always been a realist, and at this point, based on the numbers I see, I think that I'll end up losing this election."
>
> In his tweet, Trump referenced a 2009 scandal in which Sanford, then the governor, disappeared for several days. He first claimed he'd been "hiking the Appalachian Trail" but later admitted to an extramarital affair in Argentina.

That's funny.

> Mark Sanford has been very unhelpful to me in my campaign to MAGA. He is MIA and nothing but trouble. He is better off in Argentina. I fully endorse Katie Arrington for Congress in SC, a state I love. She is tough on crime and will continue our fight to lower taxes. VOTE Katie!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 12, 2018

Funny that he was able to stay in power after that too. I didn't even know this story.

I guess 2009 was before metooism, but wow—disappearing for an affair in South America? It takes a powerful figure...or a figure with a lot of power behind them...to get over that.

But he couldn't get over the PEACEMAKER Donald J. Trump, the bane of Canadian filth.

Soon...

These primaries are largely a referendum on Trumpism that is more important that the midterms themselves. Ousting anti-Trump rats within the party is in some ways more important than ousting Democrats.

And it's happened multiple times already.

Although we're going to be ousting Democrats too.

We have insane momentum right now.

The Russia hoax has completely collapsed, Trump is going to get the Nobel Peace Prize. There were libshits who hate Trump all over comments saying "wow, I hate Trump but he sure did a nice job with world peace, wow."

THERE SHALL BE ONE KOREA!

This is about turning the GOP into the Trump Party AKA the White Party, and this is happening. These old cuckservatives who were the masterminds of the "free trade" agenda don't have the nerve to even comment on Trump's destruction of that particular agenda.

They render unto the conqueror, or they are removed.

> My political representatives didn't want me to get involved in the Mark Sanford primary thinking that Sanford would easily win—but with a few hours left I felt that Katie was such a good candidate, and Sanford was so bad, I had to give it a shot. Congrats to Katie Arrington!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 13, 2018

DS

Hoaxologist Anderson Cooper is HIV Positive That Trump is the Real Conspiracy Theorist

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

Video Link

A couple days ago Anderson Cooper interviewed a Fox News analyst who quit the network claiming that the network promotes Trump conspiracy theories.

This is all so goofy.

The conspiracy theory that Trump is allegedly promoting is that the conspiracy that CNN is promoting is false. That is what all of this comes down to.

James O'Comey, John O'Brennan, James Clapper, Hillary Clinton, Rod Rosenstein, Chuck Schumer, Adam Schiff and the entire Jewish media came up with a kook conspiracy theory that Trump allied with Russia in some vague way to vaguely somehow "meddle" in the 2016 Presidential election. Originally, this was supposed to be that Russia did Wikileaks, and I guess that Trump...told them to do it.

Then it became some thing with a porn star and some other thing I forget.

After a year of investigation, no such conspiracy has been uncovered, and instead it's been found that the FBI and DOJ, under Obama, used a fake dossier created by Hillary Clinton to hoax the entire thing, using the fake document—which they knew at the time was faked by Hillary Clinton—to get FISA warrants to spy on the Trump team for the Obama administration.

You will remember, I'm sure, that Anderson Pooper and the rest of the gang were saying the spying was a conspiracy, then when it came out that it was real, they just didn't talk about it.

Now they're saying that Trump has a "conspiracy theory" that FBI informants were planted in his campaign. Well, it's already been admitted that an FBI informant—who is actually a CIA asset—Stefan Halper was sent in to contact three different Trump campaign people.

So where is the conspiracy theory? That is already admitted.

This whole fake news thing is just completely out of control.

It is cartoonish.

DS

Paul Ryan's Plan to Save DACA Before Resigning is Doomed

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

Paul Ryan is not seeking reelection.

Yet, it was important to the rabid cuckservative to attempt to save the parasitical DACA babies before leaving government. And he has no issue with sinking the GOP in the midterms in order to get this done. In fact, sinking the GOP in the midterms appears to be his goal—what else would it be?

Good news is, no one expects it to work out for this diabolical and evil conspiracy.

They were trying to force a vote, but they failed, so then Ryan backed out and came up with some new plot that looks to have zero chance of floating.

Politico:

> House Republicans will vote next week on two bills addressing the plight of hundreds of thousands of Dreamers who face possible deportation, circumventing an intra-party war over immigration.
>
> The floor votes will effectively stop the effort by moderate Republicans in tandem with Democrats to force a vote on their immigration plans through a so-called discharge petition. The moderates do not appear to have the 218 signatures needed to circumvent leadership and force a vote on their own bipartisan bills to codify the Obama-era Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program.
>
> So they've been left to accept Speaker Paul Ryan's idea: One vote on a conservative proposal drafted by Judiciary Committee Chairman Bob Goodlatte (R-Va.), and a second on a compromise package still being assembled by Ryan in consultation with moderates and conservative Republicans.
>
> ...
>
> The development effectively kills the discharge petition campaign, a staggering loss for moderates seeking to pass legislation protecting Dreamers. Under a tentative agreement between conservatives in the House Freedom Caucus and moderates, a vote on the Goodlatte bill would end the discharge petition.
>
> Conservatives, according to people following the talks closely, said they would not vote for any compromise bill until the discharge petition was off the table. At the same time, conservatives did not promise to back a compromise even after the discharge petition was shut off.
>
> Instead, the immigration hardliners are pushing to include red-meat provisions that made moderates uncomfortable.
>
> The bottom line of all the back and forth: Efforts to strike an immigration deal between moderates and conservatives are not going well.
>
> While Ryan's way forward agreement is not ideal for moderate Republicans, the group does not appear to have the support to do things its own way. After the last Democratic holdout, Rep. Henry Cuellar of Texas, added his name to the discharge petition Tuesday night, the centrists needed just two more signatures to secure votes on their proposed pathway to citizenship for Dreamers.
>
> But they came up short.
>
> Ryan on Tuesday spoke with the remaining Republicans considering signing on to the petition and asked them not to. They speaker told them he is confident that conservatives and moderates will come together on a DACA bill.
>
> Privately, however, leadership—as well as moderates and conservatives—recognize that the compromise bill will fail likely fail.
>
> ...
>
> The announcement came just a few hours after moderates floated a new offer to conservatives Tuesday night in hopes of reaching an immigration deal to shield Dreamers from deportation—but the proposal failed to break the impasse, according to multiple GOP sources.

So basically, Ryan has capitulated, the who thing is doomed, nothing is going to happen until after the midterms, wherein there will be no political will to do DACA anything.

Video Link

DS

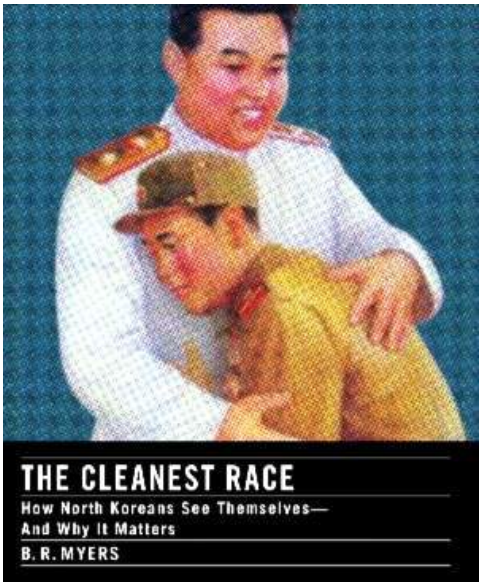
Sickening Kike Shapiro Goes Full Apeshit Over Peace in Korea

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

> Imagine that Kim is Hitler here and try not to let your stomach churn at the triumphal music playing beneath these images. Because Kim is Hitlerian. https://t.co/DuqIPJH5vp
>
> — Ben Shapiro (@benshapiro) June 12, 2018

The Jews really, really wanted war with North Korea.

They hate them because they are a free country, and because they believe in the purity of race.



The last thing they want is for North and South to come together, and for the North to open up and show the world a new way.

So they wanted the place bombed to hell.

But most of them don't have the nerve to come right out and say that.

They instead talk about "oh but muh human rights."

Enter the vicious demon kike Ben Shapiro.

He's willing to just say "they don't deserve peace, they deserve to be wiped off the face of the earth, Trump is a very bad goy for making peace with them."

> Trump made a lot of promises about what Kim Jung Un will do. I haven't heard any of those promises from Kim, and they're not in the signed agreement. If those promises materialize, this was a masterstroke. If they don't, it was a full debacle. (/1)
>
> — Ben Shapiro (@benshapiro) June 12, 2018
>
> Imagine the Nazi flag in place of the North Korean flag. Kim is the closest thing to Hitler on the planet today. We put our flag alongside his, and Trump praised him fulsomely. That better reap some dividends. (/2)
>
> — Ben Shapiro (@benshapiro) June 12, 2018
>
> If we receive nothing but empty words and a photo op between the most powerful leader in the world and an evil tinpot dictator who murders his own family members, that's a true disgrace to the American flag. (/3)
>
> — Ben Shapiro (@benshapiro) June 12, 2018
>
> Make no mistake: we sacrificed something in the past 36 hours. The reward had better be worth it. Pre-emptive triumphalism is an ugly look, and it's even uglier when you're not talking about deposing a dictator but strengthening one. (END)
>
> — Ben Shapiro (@benshapiro) June 12, 2018

"NAZI NAZI NAZI NAZI HITLER HITLER HITLER NAZI" says the filthy, greasy, whining kike rat.

But what about the Nazis?

If we had negotiated with Hitler, we wouldn't have had WWII.

Wouldn't that have been better?

Of course, that analogy isn't perfect, because we aren't talking about a global conflict, but an actual war with North Korea—if that ever were to happen—would mean millions of people would die in South Korea with conventional weapons. Steve Bannon said that way back when, and it is just an obvious fact.

But the Jews loved WWII. Only a few thousand of them died, and they got to build an entire new civilization based on the myth of Evil Hitler and their idiot lampshade hoax.

They don't care if millions of Koreans die, just like they didn't care that tens of millions of Europeans died in WWII.

They just want to create endless destruction on earth.

And Trump making peace with North Korea does not help that agenda.

Furthermore, these kikes want to keep ramming the narrative of Evil Trump down everyone's throats as well—and today's events didn't help that agenda at all either.

Plus, Shapiro reads the Daily Stormer and probably thinks my plan to use the North Korean military to invade Europe and depose the EU money thieves and their Islamic pets is actually something Trump is thinking about.

I'm not sure he is thinking about it.

But he should be.

DS

Dennis Rodman Blows Chris Cuomo's Mind Out the Back of His Head

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

To be clear, this is from last night (early morning SG time), before the main meeting, right after the handshake, during Trump and Kim's one-on-one. Dennis was there in Singapore for the event.

Video Link

I'm used to seeing black people blow people's minds out the backs of their heads—but not like this.

Dennis is a truly unique Colored Gentleman. You know, you do have these outliers in every group.

He told Chris Cuomo—the rat—that he talked to Kim five years ago about making a deal and he tried to talk to Obama about it and Obama just brushed him off and wouldn't even have a conversation with him (I think rill niggas make Obama nervous because he's such a pussy, but he also just didn't give a shit about solving a war situation).

Cuomo couldn't believe that a Colored Gentleman (AKA OG Based black guy in a MAGA hat) was saying these things about the anointed mulatto savior Obama.

Dennis then started crying and saying he couldn't even go home after saying the North Koreans were good people, because he was getting so many death threats—I can only guess (((where))) those were coming from!

There's actually a pretty good chance that none of this would have happened without Dennis.

I think he should be made ambassador to North Korea.

No joke.

That would be appropriate. And hilarious. Because the libshits would come out like "HE'S NOT QUALIFIED HE'S DUMB" and it would be like "u racist bro?"

He says he doesn't know anything about politics and when he first went to North Korea he thought it was a charity event and didn't know any of the history. That's perfect.

This isn't really a political thing anymore. The war ended on July 27th (my birthday, btw) in 1953. This whole North Korea thing is a human situation with a bunch of bizarre elements that created a situation that otherwise wouldn't make any sense.

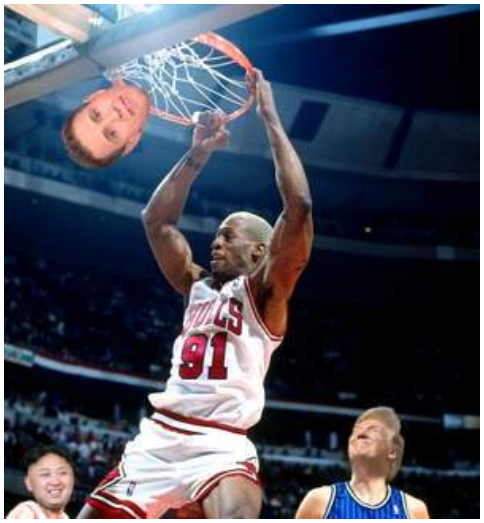
Like he says about Obama blowing him off—it was useful to the West to have a bad guy. That's why they let this thing go on this long. They made North Korea into this bad guy—not the other way around. The politics are very simple. It is the human side that is complicated.

So yes.

Make Dennis Rodman the ambassador.

And hey—Ta-Nahesi Coates—let's get an article about how Dennis Rodman is a white man in a black body oppressing other black bodies with the empowerment of institutionalized white supremacist microaggressions. I won't read it. No one will. But it would be really fun if you did that, Ta-Nahesis.

UPDATE:



DS

Bonkers Bolton: Why is This Guy Here?

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

I was shocked and appalled to see that Trump not only brought Bonkers Bolton to Singapore, but actually let him sit down at the table.

What is going on with this guy?

Why is he around at all?

Look: this is a guy who wants war with everyone who opposes Jew-globalism. He is a total lunatic.

But as we can see, there are a lot of these crazies around. John McCain and Lindsey Graham are two of the most prominent.

Bolton, however, actually planned the Iraq war, and came up with the idea that it was only going to take six months or less. It ended up lasting a decade, being the longest war the US ever fought.

I've heard Alex Jones try to retcon that whole situation and claim that "oh well, they actually wanted this war to go on forever, because it's chaos and it sucks resources and so on." Which is maybe sort of kinda true, but they didn't want it to last ten years and they didn't want it to end with a Shiite government that is allied with Iran.

I think Bolton really thought it would be done within a year, with either some kind of puppet government setup, or the country split into three parts.

Remember, they had the PNAC ("Project for a New American Century") "Rebuilding America's Defenses" document, with all of these different countries they wanted to invade. They wanted to knockout Iraq, then move on to Iran, Syria, etc.

It was supposed to be "7 countries in 5 years."

Video Link

If they wanted to actually do this: they should have done shock and awe, slaughtered a bunch of random people in Baghdad, killed Saddam and all his kids, then reconstituted the Baath Party (probably with a different name) under some new dictator that they liked better. That could have been done in 18 months.

Point being: Bolton is not only a warmongering crazy, he is a failed warmongering crazy.

He has literally zero life accomplishments.

If you wanted a slimy piece of shit warmongering madman—why not bring in Dick Cheney?

He's just as nuts, another PNAC lunatic, but he has an actually high IQ and a series of personal accomplishments.

He had a totally different, more aggressive, realist plan for the Iraq invasion.

Bolton is a failed individual who is only a known person because he took the most hardcore, insane Jewish positions.

What exactly is the reasoning behind having this man involved with anything?

He publicly tried to humiliate and thwart Donald Trump. And he wasn't fired for that. How? Why?

What is going on here?

DS

Economic Advisor Larry Kudlow Just had a Heart Attack

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

> Our Great Larry Kudlow, who has been working so hard on trade and the economy, has just suffered a heart attack. He is now in Walter Reed Medical Center.
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 12, 2018

Trump's Jewish economic advisor just had a heart attack from trying to deal with Justin Trudeau.

Or, seeing as how he's Jewish, maybe Trump gave him the heart attack for abandoning free trade.

Jews in the Trump administration always make me nervous, so I can't say this is bad news. We can blame Canada— "anti-Semitic Islamic leader Justin Trudeau gives Trump's Jew a heart attack with his lies and theft."

DS

Korean Bastards Destroying Our Cars with Their Exploding Phones

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

How is this not an act of war?

How is it that these South Koreans can bomb America relentlessly, over a period of years, and get away with it with total impunity?

They sell us these booby-trapped phones, charging us a fortune, and then just blow us the hell up at their convenience.

Unacceptable.

Cnet:

> A woman from Detroit said her Samsung phones caught fire and destroyed her car.

I'm sure it's a "total accident."

> The woman told ABC 7 that a Samsung Galaxy S4 and a Galaxy S8 were in the car's cupholder while she was driving on the morning of May 21, when one of them sparked and then caught fire. She pulled over and escaped as the car was swallowed by flames. She asked to remain anonymous, but reports from the Detroit Fire Department verified her claims, according to ABC 7.

South Korean terrorism won't stop until we invade and occupy their country—fact.

> The woman's attorney, Gerald Thurswell, told ABC 7 that they contacted Samsung and the company sent a crew to examine the remains.

Presumably, Samsung's engineers need to examine the wreckage so they can adjust the explosive yields in future versions of their phones, so as to maximize the damage.

Sick!

> Thurswell didn't immediately respond to request for comment.
>
> This wouldn't be the first time a Samsung phone has exploded. The company recalled its Galaxy Note 7 twice last year because of batteries catching fire. The phone was even banned on flights. The Galaxy S4 and S8 aren't currently on any recall list.

They ALL need to be put on the "recall list" —whatever that is. What I'm saying is, all Samsung phones need to be banned from the US.

Imagine if this guy's dick would have been blown off.

How many victims will it take before our government takes action?

> "We stand behind the quality and safety of the millions of Samsung phones in the US," a Samsung representative said in an email statement. "We are eager to conduct a full investigation of this matter and until we are able to examine all of the evidence, it is impossible to determine the true cause of any incident."

That's like running someone over, repeatedly, and then saying "oh, it's terrible, I'll conduct a full investigation to get to the bottom of this accident."

So dishonest.

If these South Koreans won't make non-exploding phones for us, we can just get other Koreans to do it. Kim Jong-Un is a total bro, and I'm sure that if these upcoming talks go well, we could work out a deal where he could supply us with all the Korean phones we ever need.

Hey—it could happen.

But wow. If you can't buy new Apple phones, because they suck, and you can't buy Samsung phones, because they explode, what are we supposed to get? Chink phones?

This is a disaster.

DS

Good News: White House Says Things are Good in Singapore

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

Video Link

Well, so far so good.

Fingers crossed that Trump has the tact not to bring Bolton into Kim's presence and this whole thing goes off beautifully.

Politico:

> The White House said Monday that discussions between the U.S. and North Korea "have moved more quickly than expected," while apparently removing the possibility—for now—that President Donald Trump's meeting with Kim Jong Un could extend into a second day.
>
> In a statement sent roughly 12 hours before Trump and Kim are to sit down, the White House said the two leaders will participate in a one-on-one meeting, accompanied only by translators, to be followed by a "working lunch" with an expanded group of officials. That broader delegation will include National Security Adviser John Bolton, who has chafed the North Koreans with his hawkish and deeply skeptical view of the negotiations.
>
> The White House also said that at the conclusion of the meeting, Trump will take part in a media availability at 8 p.m. local time, before flying back to the United States. Previously, the White House had appeared to hold open the possibility that the meeting could stretch into a second day if the talks were going well.
>
> Still, the statement had an optimistic tone about the historic sitdown, which follows days of talks between high-level officials on both sides about denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula.
>
> "The discussions between the United States and North Korea are ongoing and have moved more quickly than expected," the statement read.

Koreans are really good at math and maybe they sped the process up somehow using these math skills.

Remember: the goal is just a treaty signed ending the war.

That was always the goal of this meeting.

If that happens, then the deal is made as it was planned.

Assuming it is a success, the media is going to try to say that it's a failure because North Korea isn't surrendering it's nuclear program, all it's Kalashnikovs and kitchen knives, letting American corporations take possession of all the country's natural resources, crews of Mexicans are brought in to build a McDonald's and a Starbucks every 2 blocks and NGOs begin dropping off boatloads of Ugandan refugees from the brutal Syrian civil war on the North Korean coast while John Bolton live streams himself masturbating onto Kim's official desk.

We want just handshakes and smiles and an official end to the war. That's all. That's the deal.

The rest of it can all be done later, at a pace that a country that has been isolated from the entire world for 60 years can manage.

Just a few more hours now...

DS

AWESOME DOOM RAMPAGE: Drunken Garbage Truck Driver Causes MAYHEM MAYHEM MAYHEM

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

You know, life is really shitty these days. You gotta deal with a lot of shit.

Women, blacks, immigrants, weird sex perverts, self-playing videos on websites—we've all got to deal with a lot of shit every day.

Can't blame a man for needing a swill of ol' Papa Nervebinder before he heads off to work.

Of course, there are going to be consequences.

But who's to blame for that?

The drunken garbage man?

Or the society that created the conditions which caused him to need to be wasted off his rocker just to deal with the day?

ABC News:

> A drunk garbage truck driver in Brooklyn, New York, left an unbelievable trail of destruction in his wake Saturday morning, according to police.
>
> According to police, Anthony Castaldo, 40, was driving the garbage truck in Borough Park, Brooklyn, on Saturday morning when he plowed into nine cars parked on the side of the street, took out a tree and knocked over a house's front porch.

Castaldo was charged with driving while impaired, reckless driving, leaving the scene of an accident and refusing to take a Breathalyzer test.

New York ABC station WABC took photos of the incident which tell the entire story of destruction.

Several cars were completely totaled, with some stacked on top of each other, and a large tree sheared in half.

As far as I'm concerned, Anthony Castaldo doesn't need to be on trial here.

Anthony in orange.

Whoever created the social conditions which made it so a man can't whistle while he works without dumping a fifth of vodka on his whistle first are to blame.

And who's fault is all that?

Furthermore, I don't see what crime was committed here.

Video from Saturday's garbage truck accident on 60th Street between 18th and 19th Avenue from a drunk driver

Gepostet von Glenn Nocera am Samstag, 9. Juni 2018

It was an accident, no one was injured and it added some excitement to the otherwise boring and meaningless lives of a bunch of dickheads and idiot cock-gobbling whores in Brooklyn.

Have you seen the type of shit that goes on elsewise in Brooklyn?

Video Link

In a just world, Mr. Castaldo would be given the key to the city just for shaking things up a bit in that fakeass gay city.

DS

Fox News Infoskank Refers to Trump-Kim Summit as "A Meeting of Two Dictators"

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

Video Link

Seems to have been a genuine slip of the tongue to me.

People don't seem to understand how stupid women are. They are just really good at memorization and repeating things, which gives the illusion that they are human beings. They don't actually have any idea what is going on.

RT:

Fox & Friends host and daughter of the US ambassador to Russia, Abby Huntsman, was forced to apologize after she touted the Trump-Kim summit as a "meeting between two dictators" on air. The gaffe caused a storm of ridicule online.

Fox & Friends, regularly lauded by Trump for its coverage, including for "exposing the truth," ran footage showing him landing in Singapore on Sunday while Huntsman discussed the prospects of the summit with former White House communications director Anthony Scaramucci. Back in July, Scaramucci, nicknamed the Mooch, broke a record for the shortest stint in the White House after serving just 11 days before he was fired in the wake of his very public foul-mouthed rant against fellow staffers.

What Huntsman said in the broadcast was no less eyebrow-raising.

Asking Scramucci to weigh in on the historic meeting, Huntsman made what her critics believe was a "Freudian slip," saying that, "regardless of what happens in that meeting between the two dictators, what we are seeing right now, this is history."

The gaffe did not seem to register with Scaramucci, who proceeded to give his own opinion, praising Trump for "breaking the usual bonds" by sitting down for talks with Kim.

I do wish Trump was a "dictator."

Of course, any US President before the modern era would have been labeled that by today's standards, as the Constitution gives the President powers which rogue courts and the deep state have now stripped from him. And all the libshits think it is great to have these unaccountable and secret shadowy groups running everything.

There is no more order in our system.

And I wish Trump would just declare martial law and start rounding up and executing people. In public.

DS

Steam Renounces All Censorship – Including of "Politically Incorrect" Games

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

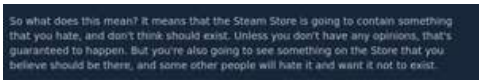
This is the dawning of a new era.

Just a few days ago, Steam was embroiled in controversy, being blasted by the SJW press for their unrelenting censorship of porno anime games.

It now appears that this whole episode was an elaborate plot on the part of Valve, who are now moving to the next step in their master plan.

As it turns out, the perverts are going to get exactly what they asked for—an end to censorship.

Unfortunately for them though, this new policy also extends to Nazi and Alt-Right content.



Well played, Gaben. Well played.

They are not pleased, to say the least.

Breitbart:

> Dominant PC gaming platform Steam received mass criticism from social justice news outlets after it announced the platform would end curation and censorship, and become an open market.
>
> The platform announced this week that they would stop curating games and would instead allow all games to be sold on the platform—unless they were illegal or "trolling."

In other words, this is basically a First-Amendment-type criteria. Valve has shown in the past that their threshold for "trolling" is extremely high.

Remember this? It's still on Steam.

So is this game about mowing down jihadists invading Europe.

What Valve means by "trolling" is extremely low quality games made exclusively as jokes. Steam's press release on their new policy made it very clear that well-made games wouldn't be censored for political reasons.

> As reported by One Angry Gamer, "a string of articles from many members of the GameJournoPros—the same group that smeared the consumer revolt #GamerGate back in 2014—have all come out in timely succession to castigate Valve over the decision."
>
> In an article for Kotaku, the left-wing gaming news outlet from Gawker Media, journalist Nathan Grayson called Steam's decision "irresponsible," and claimed, "There is no good outcome here."

Of course, these faggots were outraged that homo anime porn was being censored, but only because this is content which they approve of—not because they're against censorship.

There used to be a saying, "any organization not explicitly conservative will eventually end up in the hands of liberals."

The new saying is, "any platform that doesn't censor right-wing views will eventually become dominated by the Alt-Right."

This is why all these J-leftists are panicking as soon as they hear that Steam will no longer censor their games. They know what this means.

It means a flood of games like this.

Engadget claimed, "This is pretty much Valve giving up and washing its hands of responsibility," while Vice's Patrick Klepek, Polygon's Ben Kuchera, GamesIndustry.biz's Brendan Sinclair, Paste's Garrett Martin, Mashable's Adam Rosenberg, and polygamous YouTube gaming critic Jim Sterling also criticized Steam, primarily arguing that offensive games would now be more common.

Yeah.

They definitely will be—we'll make sure of that.

There's plenty of talented developers and artists on the right—now that there's a way to be monetized, we're going to see an explosion in new content.

> Since the change, some users have attempted to submit troll games, including AIDS Simulator and GAY Nation—a game where you have to hunt down "any remaining straights" in a world that is almost entirely gay.

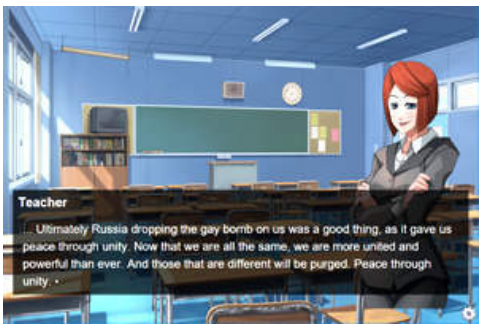
Unfortunately, AIDS Simulator has been taken down, since it was obviously a low-effort troll. They even advertised on their page that this was a shitty asset flip.

GAY Nation, on the other hand, is still there as of time of writing.

And it looks like it could be pretty hilarious.



It appears to me that the weird, inconsistent censorship Steam had been engaging in recently was a ploy to drum up outrage from SJWs in order to help justify their move to a totally censorship-free policy.

After all, it makes perfect business sense. Steam is an international business. They can't curate their software library to the tastes of a few American commies. Valve isn't a corporation owned by a bunch of dirty kikes—it's a private business, with lord Gaben as the majority shareholder.

In other words, he DGAF about a bunch of crying babies. He's sitting on a gigantic mountain of money. Even if every snowflake commie boycotted Steam, it would be a drop in the bucket compared to the money lost by censoring games.

So the odds are very good that this policy will hold strong for the foreseeable future.

DS

Jewish Problem

Anti-Semitic Human Rights Watch Kikes Condemn Jew Israel

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

The virulent anti-Semitic kikes at Human Rights Watch have criticized the chosen race.

This is the worst thing I've ever heard of.

Does no one remember the lampshades?

The soap?

Have we already forgotten the six gorillion?

RT:

> Deep involvement of Israeli banks in the building of illegal settlements in the occupied West Bank may amount to the war crime of pillage, HRW has said. While the settlements are condemned worldwide, Israel keeps building more.
>
> "Israeli banks are facilitating their expansion and thus bankrolling these abuses," said the Israel/Palestine Advocacy Director of Human Rights Watch (HRW), Sari Bashi, in an article, published in World Policy earlier this week. "The involvement of banks in these transactions can amount to pillage—that is, seizing private property in conflict situations, in violation of the laws of war."
>
> The official gave an example of the banks' involvement in settlement-related activities: The cooperation between developer Zemach Hammerman and Bank Leumi in constructing a new housing project in the settlement of Alfei Menashe. The developer and the bank have so-called "accompaniment agreements," designed to protect the investments of homebuyers, Bashi explained, adding that similar patterns are used in the development of other Israeli settlements.
>
> "Israeli banks often enter into such agreements, which go beyond mere financing and create close partnerships with developers to expand settlements on land unlawfully seized from Palestinians," Bashi wrote. "The banks acquire an ownership interest in the development project, overseeing its construction, releasing homebuyer funds in accordance with building progress, and relinquishing ownership only upon completion."

It's time to shut down these virulent anti-Semitic HRW kikes.

Someone needs to call the ADL.

Call the SPLC.

Start filing lawsuits to shut down their funding.

We cannot have this.

We cannot have it at all.

DS

Based Kike Bibi Netanyahu is Bombing Syria to Murder Potential Refugees

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

Oh wow this is totally based.

This whole time Israel has been bombing Syria they've actually been doing it to kill potential migrants who are trying to flood Europe.

It all makes sense now.

Newsweek:

> Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu openly discussed his nation's military attacks on targets in Syria, describing them as measures that will prevent more refugees from fleeing to Europe.
>
> Netanyahu on Thursday said that Israel's bombing of Iranian-backed Shiite Muslim militias is "helping the security" of European nations. He accused Iran of bringing some 80,000 Shiite fighters to Syria, from countries such as Afghanistan and Pakistan, to "convert" Sunni Muslims in Syria and launch attacks against Israel.

Newsweek pulled those quotes from a more detailed Reuters article.

It's from a speech at a security conference in Jerusalem yesterday.

Video Link

That clip is funny.

News guy says Bibi "touched on a number of different subjects, including the Iranian entrenchment in Syria, as he always does."

But this bit about how he preventing another migrant crisis by bombing Syria—wew.

That is some weird, wacky stuff.

Bibi is still I think the most competent of all the Jews, but he does say some weird things.

Remember when he said Hitler didn't really want to kill the Jews, and the Palestinians talked him into it?

Video Link

That is legit true that Hitler only wanted to expel the Jew—that is mainstream history. And then they say that in like, 1942, he was just like "okay fuck it gas them in fake shower rooms and turn them into lampshades." But the idea that it was a Palestinian plan was a Bibi original.

But uh, just to be clear here: Israel is the one that pressured the US to engage in these Middle Eastern destablization projects that created the chaos in the region. And really, the migrant crisis didn't have much of anything to do with the Syrian civil war. 90+% of the dudes who zerg rushed Europe in 2015 were not from Syria—majority were from Pakistan and Afghanistan.

Furthermore, the reason they came was because Merkel invited them.

Furthermore, they could have been stopped in Turkey, but Erdogan refused to do that, and no one had the balls to force him.

But yeah, definitely creating a second civil war in Syria by bombing the stabilizing forces—the Shiites who are aligned with Assad—is not going to...mean there are fewer migrants coming to Europe.

But I guess this is like an appeal to the Visigrad nations to get support for his war.

Remember he went and met with Orban and was like "yes goyim I agree with you we must stop the migrants, George Soros is an evil kike."

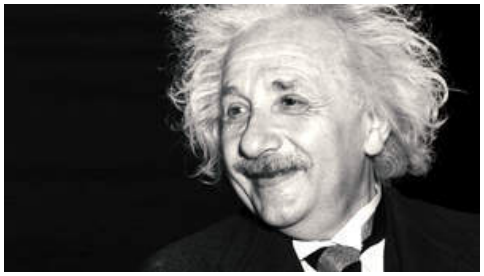
So, who knows what the hell is going on with these Jews.

But it's nothing good.

DS

Kike Hoaxster Einstein Hated the Chinks, Diaries Reveal

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018



It's time to start tearing down all these statues of Einstein.

New York Post:

> Newly translated into English, Albert Einstein's private travel diaries from the 1920s reveal that he was racist in his early life, especially toward Chinese people.
>
> The journals, published as "The Travel Diaries of Albert Einstein" by Princeton University Press, reveal that Einstein, perhaps the most famous scientist of all time and known for his theory of general relativity and the equation e=mc2, was extraordinarily biased toward certain populations. This is a stark contrast to his stance later in life when he said that racism was a "disease of white people."

Does it get any more JEWISH than THAT?

> The diaries were written between October 1922 and March 1923. In one entry Einstein wrote that the "Chinese don't sit on benches while eating but squat like Europeans do when they relieve themselves out in the leafy woods. All this occurs quietly and demurely. Even the children are spiritless and look obtuse."
>
> Speaking about the "abundance of offspring" and the "fecundity" of the Chinese, he continued: "It would be a pity if these Chinese supplant all other races. For the likes of us the mere thought is unspeakably dreary."

The likes of who?

"Us" being Jews?

> Einstein also derided the people of Ceylon, which is now known as Sri Lanka. In Ceylon, he wrote, the locals "live in great filth and considerable stench at ground level," before adding they "do little and need little. The simple economic cycle of life."

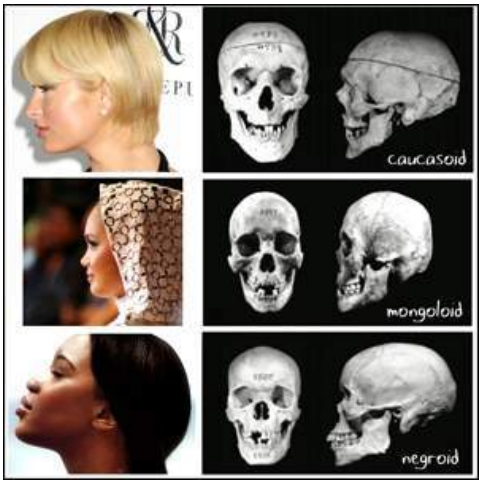
That seems pretty much just like an observation, rather than a value judgement.

If we're being fair.

> Einstein also gave his thoughts on Japanese people, who he viewed in a more positive light, calling them "unostentatious, decent, altogether very appealing." However, he also wrote the "intellectual needs of this nation seem to be weaker than their artistic ones—natural disposition?"

Oh dear.

Biological race differences.



Suggested by a famous scientist.... who is praised as a hero, because he was Jewish.

> "Entries...contain passages that reveal Einstein's stereotyping of members of various nations and raise questions about his attitudes on race," a description of the book reads.
>
> The journals were translated from the German and are described as "the first publication of Albert Einstein's travel diary to the Far East and Middle East."
>
> Speaking with The Guardian, the book's editor, Ze'ev Rosenkranz, said that Einstein's views were not intended for public consumption and provide a shock to those who read them.

Jews not witch hunting and doxing their own dead heroes for thought crimes.

That's lulzy.

> "I think a lot of comments strike us as pretty unpleasant—what he says about the Chinese in particular," Rosenkranz told The Guardian. "They're kind of in contrast to the public image of the great humanitarian icon. I think it's quite a shock to read those and contrast them with his more public statements. They're more off guard, he didn't intend them for publication."
>
> ...
>
> In 1946, speaking at Lincoln University, the first degree-granting historically black university in the US, Einstein said that racism was a "disease of white people" and added "I do not intend to be quiet about it," according to a 2007 article in the Harvard Gazette.

Yeah, it's almost like Jews know race is real, but use this whole "racism" thing as a way to hurt white people.

But that would be a conspiracy theory.

Even though it is just an observation.

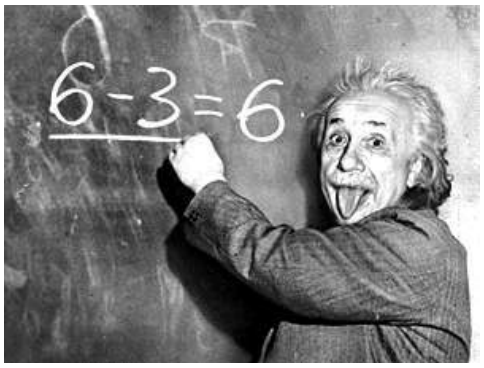
Einstein also played a role in the foundation of the alleged "state" of Israel, which was founded by Jewish terrorist groups who went into villages and slaughtered the local brown folk. He was offered the role as second president of Israel after the first one died.

Wikipedia:

> When President Chaim Weizmann died in 1952, Einstein was asked to be Israel's second president, but he declined, stating that he had "neither the natural ability nor the experience to deal with human beings." He wrote: "I am deeply moved by the offer from our State of Israel, and at once saddened and ashamed that I cannot accept it."

Silly goose.

You weren't being asked to deal with human beings—you were being asked to deal with your fellow rats!



DS

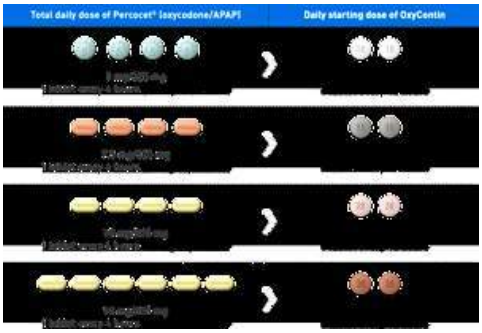
State of Massachusetts is Suing OxyContin Kikes!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

It's about time somebody sued these dirty rat drug kikes.

The idea that they were somehow unawares that their product was being abused is nonsensical. Not an argument. They originally got it on the market as only for "end of life care" — that is, the only time it could be given is to ease a person's pain while they were dying.

Then all of the sudden it started being given out in place of Vicodin or Percocet for normal surgeries or broken bones.



These Jews even put out charts like "look, it so much easier than Percocet! And it does the same thing!" without mentioning that the addiction rate is some multiples of ten higher for ostensibly doing the same thing.

Then they set up "pain clinics" just giving it out to anyone who said their back hurt.

Did the kikes do this for money or to destroy the goyim? Well, obviously for both reasons.

The Guardian:

> The state of Massachusetts on Tuesday sued the maker of the prescription painkiller OxyContin, which spawned America's opioids crisis, naming leading executives and members of the multi-billionaire Sackler family that owns the pharmaceutical company.
>
> The lawsuit accuses the company, Purdue Pharma, of spinning a "web of illegal deceit" to fuel the deadly drug abuse crisis while boosting profits.
>
> Purdue Pharma is already defending lawsuits from several states and local governments, but Massachusetts is the first state to take the unusual step of personally naming the company's executives in a complaint, the state attorney general, Maura Healey, said. It names 16 current and former executives and board members, including the chief executive, Craig Landau, and eight members across three generations of the Sackler family that wholly owns Purdue.
>
> The lawsuit alleges Purdue deceived patients and doctors about the risks of opioids, pushed prescribers to keep patients on the drugs longer and aggressively targeted vulnerable populations, such as the elderly and veterans.
>
> "Their strategy was simple: the more drugs they sold, the more money they made, and the more people died," Healey said on Tuesday.

> Purdue, based in Stamford, Connecticut, issues a statement saying it vigorously denied all the allegations and looked forward to presenting "substantial defenses" to the claims in the lawsuit.

This is actually kind of incredible.

States have already prosecuted a few "pain management" clinic doctors who have almost all been—wait for it—Jews.

LONG ISLAND / CRIME

Feds to seize cars, property from Dr. Roger Kaplan in oxy case

But to go after the Sackler kikes themselves—it's a big move.

16. Sackler family

$14 Billion

Fortune Founded	1952
Source Of Wealth	pain medicines
Company Headquarters	Stamford, CT
Number of Family Members	20 (Estimated)

Their defense is presumably going to be "it's just capitalism, goyim—it is not our fault that our kinsmen distributing these pills were not following proper procedures."

But the case should theoretically focus on how they released fake research claiming that these pills were safe. Along with, obviously, the fact that they had no oversight on how many were being distributed—with rural towns of a few thousand people getting millions of pills.

Drug companies shipped nearly 21 million opioid painkillers to a town with 2,900 people

The statistic gives a good glimpse at how America's opioid epidemic got so bad.

Of course, under Obama—who didn't give a single shit if millions of white people had their lives destroyed by these drugs—this practice was entirely legal. As far as I understand it. It's going to be a hard case, I think, but at least it brings attention to the issue.

And we should be bringing attention to the fact that these are JEWS responsible—yet again. Just like with everything else.

Jeff Sessions the lazy, cowardly donothing wouldn't prosecute these kikes, so it fell to the Massachusetts AG. It would certainly be better if Sessions had done it.

I would sure like a tweet from Trump praising Maura Healey for this action and condemning Jeff Sessions for having failed to do exactly this.

A couple months ago, Trump gave a great speech in New Hampshire about the opioid crisis.

Video Link

And even if he can't get Slow Jeff to do anything at all about anything, it is powerful just for him to comment on it.

His tweets always get a news cycle rolling, and I want to see Anderson Cooper and Jake Tapper out there defending Jewish drug barons.

nb4 "the Jew media won't defend that" —this weird mulatto who is on the Daily Show (which I always forget still exists) already defended drug dealers after the New Hampshire speech.

Video Link

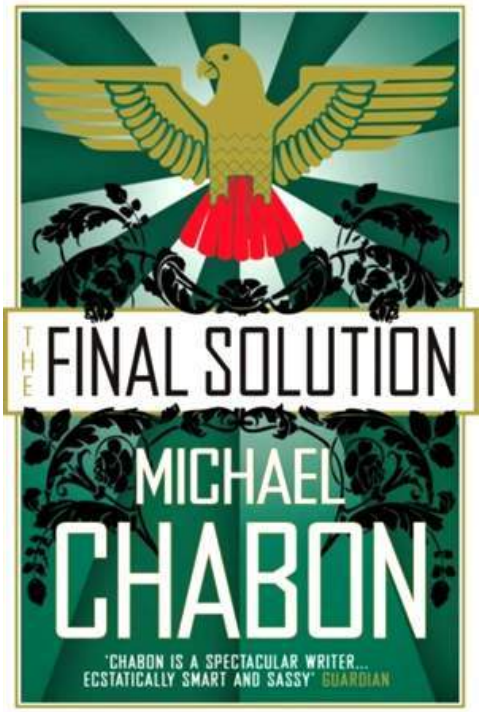
DS

Embrace of Diversity is "Morally Abhorrent" Say Jews

Diversity Macht Frei
June 13, 2018

For years Jews have been preaching diversity to the rest of us. Now a Jew has finally preached it to his own—and found himself immediately excoriated by fellow tribe members as "morally abhorrent".

The Jew in question is Michael Chabon, apparently a famous Jewish novelist. I should probably feel guilty about not knowing that but somehow I just don't. This title from his oeuvre does look interesting, though. Maybe I'll throw that one a read.



Chablon gave a speech based on a simple principle: What's good for the Goyim is good for the Chosen. But other Jews weren't having it. Three Jewish professors immediately wrote an angry riposte.

> Surpassing the widely held view that the intermarried, their children and their non-Jewish family members ought to be welcomed warmly by the Jewish community, Chabon took the next step—or shall we say, the next giant leap. He inveighed against inmarriage itself as a desirable aspiration, as a sacred Jewish norm and as an effective instrument of Jewish continuity.

His words bear repeating, much as it pains us to write them:

"An endogamous marriage is a ghetto of two. ...It draws a circle around the married couple, inscribes them—and any eventual children who come along—within a figurative wall of tradition, custom, shared history, and a common inheritance of chromosomes and culture."

Chabon urged the HUC-JIR graduates and their parents to abandon advocacy for Jewish-Jewish marriage, rejecting the view that Jewish homes with a single group identity are critical to raising Jewishly committed and Judaically competent children.

...

Chabon extolled the virtues of outmarriage, declaring himself a devotee of "mongrels, syncretism, integrated neighborhoods, open borders, pastiche and collage," and, above all, "miscegenation as the source of all greatness."

It is important to recognize that Chabon's call to abandon inmarriage is a symbol of his larger, more grandiose objective. Promoting intermarriage was the opening shot in a drive to dismantle Judaism and put an end to the ostensibly inherent and inevitable injustices he insists religion perpetuates.

Not only is Judaism responsible for religious prejudice around the world, it is also responsible for its own demise: If Judaism disappears from the earth, Chabon asserted, "the fault for that extinction will lie squarely with Judaism itself."

Chabon seemed content, even disturbingly relaxed, imagining the end of Judaism.

"If Judaism should ever pass from the world," he said, "it won't be the first time in history...that a great and ancient religion lost its hold on the moral imaginations of is adherents."

Source

There is a plangent irony in seeing these professors attempt to explain why Chablon is wrong. Substitute "white people" for Jews and their words could have come from an Alt Right blog.

Chabon's assault on the positive salience of Jewish difference is dangerous, morally abhorrent and factually incorrect on at least four verifiable counts.

...

We can all, like Chabon, love "pastiche and collage," but distinctions are necessary to life and health, judgment and morality—to say nothing about science, families, communities and nations.

Finally, religious "syncretism," which Chabon embraced, erodes ethnoreligious viability.

...

Chabon naively envisions a utopian world where through wholesale intermarriage of all races, nationalities and creeds, all of humanity will be homogenized into a single "mongrelized" blandness. In practice, since Jews are a minuscule minority worldwide, this prescription would yield the disappearance of Diaspora Jews and Judaism. Christian denominations would be untouched. Buddhism, Hinduism and Islam would be unperturbed. The world with all its divisiveness would hardly notice— but it would be a world without Jews.

For Jews, applying the Golden Rule in reverse— "Treat yourself as you treat others" —is a nightmarish prospect. And you can understand why.

DS

South African Blacks Legit Hate the Jews Tho

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

Johannesburg Mayor Herman Mashaba (nigger) doesn't take kindly to people taking kindly to kikes.

It's funny because it was a bunch of communist kikes who went to South Africa and got these 78 IQ Zulus to do a revolution.

EWN:

City of Johannesburg Mayor Herman Mashaba has suspended one of his councillors for publicly declaring that the city is a friend of Israel.

Health and Social Development MMC Mpho Phalatse made the comments at the South African Friend of Israel national conference at the weekend.

This is what Mpho Phalatse said at the weekend.

"I am a friend of Israel and the City of Johannesburg is a friend of Israel."

Herman Mashaba says he was disappointed that the Councillor attributed her personal remarks to the city.

"It is for this reason that I've taken the decision as the executive mayor of Johannesburg to suspend MMC Phalatse pending an investigation into the full and proper context which these remarks were heard."

You literally can't make even an offhanded comment saying you are okay with Jews in this country without being suspended from the government.

It's a similar thing in Europe now—the Jews bought in all these Moslems, now the Moslems are murder-raping fat Jew sluts and the kikes are looking at the white goyim like "FIX THIS!!!!111"

Jews only really make sense if you look at them in terms of a biological disease that has no other purpose than to infect and destroy. They end up rotting out their hosts and destroying themselves.

Now that's a funnyass meme. Sometimes I outdo myself, kids.

Yes Jews, I will make fun of your fat dead 14-year-old sluts.

Fucking sue me again.

I dare you.

Do it again.

File a federal lawsuit saying I hurt your feelings when I said I was glad that fat kike whore got raped and killed.

See if I give a fuck.

Backing entire groups of people against the wall hasn't worked well for you in the past.

But who knows.

Maybe it will be different this time.

But you know.

Probably it won't be.

Historically speaking, y'all are due for a really, really bad time.

DS

Kike-Smashing LA Times Editorial Staff Says It's Okay to Criticize Israel

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

The LA Times is no New York Times.

Their editorial board just penned an absolutely virulent statement claiming that it is okay to criticize Israel.

LA Times:

> Freedom of speech on college campuses is under enough pressure without the federal government adding to the problem by threatening to withdraw funding to punish people for expressing their political opinions. That would be a real possibility if Congress enacted and President Trump signed a bill called the Anti-Semitism Awareness Act of 2018.
>
> The legislation, which has recently been reintroduced in both chambers, purports to target harassment of Jewish students on college campuses, which has occurred in California and elsewhere.
>
> But this proposal would blur the distinction between unacceptable, intimidating expressions of intolerance directed against Jews with criticism of the state of Israel. The latter, even when expressed in intemperate terms, is protected by the 1st Amendment.
>
> Civil rights law already protects Jews, Muslims, Christians and other religious groups at federally funded campuses from discrimination. What would change under this legislation is that, in investigating complaints of anti-Semitism on campus, the Department of Education would have to "take into consideration" a definition published by the State Department in 2010.

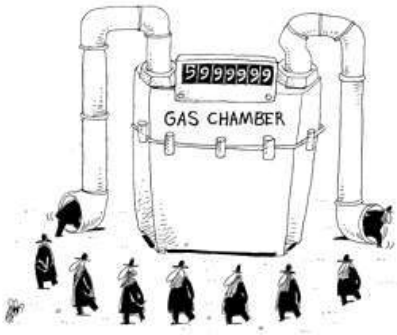
Do you know how the Holocaust began?

People were allowed to criticize the behavior of individual Jews. They said it was "free speech."

And then...then came the lampshades.

Then came the soap.

All from the fake shower rooms, where trillions of innocent Jews were homicidally murdered to death with insecticide.



Remember—this is the same LA Times editorial board that said that the virulent neon-nazi Andrew Anglin had a right to criticize Jews.

Hate speech isn't free speech.

And hate speech is whatever the Jews say it is.

They are, after all, God's chosen people. So we must defer to them in such matters as this.

The LA Times is nothing more than a modern day Der Sturmer.

DS

Israel: Bill Giving Jews and Arabs Equal Rights is Rejected

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

Jews and Arabs do not have equal rights in Israel. It is a state founded on Jewish racial supremacy.

We've been told over and over again by Jews in the media that race is a social construct and that the only race is the human race. The Jews in Israel have definitely not embraced this message. A bill that called for Jews and Arabs to be treated as equals was recently rejected by the Knesset.

Al Jazeera:

> Israel's Knesset disqualified a bill that called for all citizens to be treated equally, rejecting the argument it must recognise the rights of its Arab minority as equal to the Jewish majority.
>
> The text of the bill stated its objective was "to anchor in constitutional law the principle of equal citizenship while recognising the existence and rights of the two, Jewish and Arab, national groups living within the country".
>
> The bill was sponsored by Balad, an Arab political faction and member of the Joint List—an alliance of four predominantly Arab parties—in the parliament.

The Knesset Speaker had some very harsh words for the proposal. He basically said that anybody who supported it was an idiot.

> Speaker Yuli Yoel Edelstein denounced the bill in a statement on the Knesset website on Tuesday.
>
> "This is a preposterous bill that any intelligent individual can see must be blocked immediately. A bill that aims to gnaw at the foundations of the state must not be allowed in the Knesset," Edelstein said.
>
> "This is the first time since my appointment as Knesset speaker five years ago that I am recommending that the presidium disqualify a bill."

Once again, this is another example of hypocrisy from Jews on racial issues. Jews will actively promote the concept of racial equality in every country except for Israel. It just shows that they don't actually believe in this zany idea that all races are equal. They only promote this concept because it makes it easier for them to subvert and parasite off of other countries.

The Jew Yuli Yoel Edelstein thinks giving Jews and Arabs equal rights is stupid. If a White Congressman in the United States made similar remarks about Whites and any other racial group, there'd be calls for their immediate resignation.

If every European nation adopted racial policies like the ones Jews have for themselves in Israel, the Jews would no longer be able to subvert our countries.

But we've been told over and over again that we can't have these types of policies. All because of Jewish lies claiming that Adolf Hitler did mean things to them for no reason. The good news is that this entire political construct is unsustainable and is in the process of coming to an end.

DS

Race War

Vibrant POC Sentenced for Livestreaming BRUTAL ENRICHMENT of Homeless Man on Facebook

Luis Castillo
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Daquan King.

Five years and change.

He'll get out, do something else, and go back in again.

New York Post:

> A Brooklyn man who attacked a vagrant—and recorded the beat-down on Facebook Live—was slapped with more than five years in prison Friday.
>
> Daquan King, 24, had already copped to the senseless March 2017 assault, in which he tormented the intoxicated homeless man before throwing him down a flight of stairs.
>
> King "took money from the victim's pocket, tossed it on the floor, closed the elevator door and held it shut for several minutes, trapping the man inside," authorities said in court papers. "After he allowed the victim to exit the elevator, [King] pulled him to the floor, and hit, dragged and kicked him down the stairs as two of [his] friends looked on and laughed."
>
> At that point, King started broadcasting the assault. The social-media post showed the man fly about 15 steps down the stairwell and crumple on a landing.
>
> King pleaded guilty to charges of second-degree assault last month in exchange for a five-and-a-half-year sentence.
>
> He faced up to 15 years behind bars before the plea deal.
>
> Brooklyn District Attorney Eric Gonzalez decried the "cruel and cowardly assault" as "sickening and shameful."

It's unfortunate that I can't find this video in a hurry.

The policy of facebook, youtube, etc. to remove videos of graphic criminal violence is just another way that they prevent you from you from seeing, with your own eyes, the merciless brutality of these "people."

Since the image is lost, you can just imagine that it looked something like this, but with less style.

Video Link

DS

Nation Shocked a Nig Kills a White Woman

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Jarvis Garret.

What kind of a world are we living in when even the peaceful Blacks are murdering people?

WTVQ:

> Lexington police have charged Jarvis Garrett with the murder of Stephanie Mullins in 2016.
>
> Police say Mullins was found behind an apartment building on Cross Keys Road in Wolf Run Park.
>
> Police say they used witness statements and DNA evidence to identify Garrett as the shooter.

Stephanie Mullins.

DS

Black Shoots a White Dude – Another Black Streams His Injury Without Calling Cops

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

Video Link

Credit where it's due, at least the streaming nog supposedly called an ambulance.

ABC Action News:

> Deputies arrested a Polk County man after he published a Facebook Live, recording a victim suffering from a gunshot wound.
>
> Investigators say David Munroe III shot Jimbob Bearden during a domestic altercation last week.
>
> Anthony Martin, 27, recorded a 43-minute Facebook Live video, showing Bearden clutching his wound and screaming for help.
>
> "Someone's on the ground, they've been shot and suffering, you want people to help those folks," said Scott Wilder with the Polk County Sheriff's Office. "People can bleed out in minutes."
>
> Polk deputies arrested Martin three days after the shooting, charging him with refusing a crime victim medical treatment, lying to law enforcement, and tampering with physical evidence.

DS

Armed Nog Robs Wendy's

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 17, 2018

These nogs are so bold they are robbing the official burger joint of the Alt-Right.

WTXL:

> Police say that at about 12:25 a.m. officers responded to the Wendy's in the 1800 block of West Hill Avenue near Interstate 75.
>
> The suspect entered the business with a weapon and demanded money from the employees before fleeing with an undisclosed amount of cash.
>
> The suspect is described as a black male who was fully covered.
>
> No injuries were reported in the incident.

DS

Coalburner Who Helped Monkey Pet Hide a White Woman's Body to be Sentenced

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

Hannah Whitman, Prentiss Hare.

Can you give a single logical reason why noggers actually should be in our country with all this murder?

Can you give a single logical reason why White women do not deserve to be caged and/or replaced with robots for helping them?

Springfield News Sun:

> The sentencing for the Springfield woman who pleaded guilty to charges related to the disposal of a homicide victim was continued for July 9.
>
> Hannah Whitman, 25, pleaded guilty to one count of tampering with evidence, a third-degree felony and one count of gross abuse of a corpse, a fifth-degree felony. She faces a maximum of four years in prison, said Clark County Assistant Prosecutor Andrew Picek.
>
> Whitman was charged in connection with the murder of Tiffany Chambers, a Jacksonville woman who was killed by Prentiss Hare in 2015. Whitman was dating Hare at the time, witnessed Chambers' murder and helped dispose of her body, according to police.

Tiffany Chambers.

DS

Negress Kills White Man While Driving Using NogTech

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

This is one of the countless cases which show that blacks and cellphones have no place in a civilized society.

11 Alive:

> A woman has been charged with a man's death after she ran over him because she was on her phone.
>
> Lameeka Shatia Burden was charged with homicide by vehicle in the first degree after she hit Gerald Staton with her car while she was talking on her cell phone. Warrants suggest the phone distraction is what led her to leave the roadway.
>
> Burden admitted that she saw a woman who was walking her dog but did not see Staton. Burden had been calling her brother—who she was picking up at the time—when she hit Staton, who eventually died from his injuries.
>
> "If said accused (Burden) was not distracted on her cell phone, the accident would have never occurred," the warrant said.

Gerald Staton.

DS

Two Spics Rob a Store for Cigarettes

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

Why are we importing millions of beaners who are so primitive they don't even vape in current year?

Tuscon News Now:

> Deputies responded to the report of a theft at the Circle K at 4965 West Ajo Highway, just after midnight on Monday, April 30.
>
> When they arrived at the scene they learned that two men had entered the store and told the clerk to stay where he was, then one of the men jumped over the counter and filled a pillowcase with cigarettes and other items, while the second acted as a lookout.l
>
> After the sack was filled, both suspects casually walked from the store into a desert area south of the store, according to the PCSD.
>
> The first suspect is described as a Hispanic male, age not known, medium height and build. He was last seen wearing a red sweatshirt, red shorts, black tennis shoes and a red bandana over his face.
>
> The second suspect was also described as a Hispanic male, no age given of medium height and build. He was last seen wearing a white t-shirt under a black hooded sweatshirt, with black shorts and shoes and a black bandana over his face.

DS

Armed Nog and Wigger Duo Rob Gas Station

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

If it weren't for dindus and their savage "culture" corrupting the country, this kind of thing would be uncommon.

WRDW:

> Aiken County deputies say they are looking for two man after an armed robbery at a gas station on Edgefield Highway early Thursday morning.
>
> Deputies were called out to the Shell/Circle K around 3 am.
>
> Deputies say one suspect is a black male wearing all black with a blue shirt covering his face. The other is a white male wearing a black hoodie, gray pants, gray sneakers and bushy brown hair with little facial hair.

DS

Nog with Skin Condition Robbed Home Depot

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

Video Link

This guy could be the next MJ.
If only the law would let up on him.

NBC:

> The man, who officers say took landscaping power tools from a display and then exited the store without paying, fled the store after he was approached by an employee, according to investigators. When approached, the man allegedly told the employee that he had a knife and to stay away from him. The employee reports that the man then fled on foot towards Society Drive. The employee was not injured.

He is described as a 40 to 45 year old black male with an average build and a goatee. He was also reported to have a skin pigmentation condition which was visible on his arms and face. Anyone with any information about the incident should contact Trooper A. Desiderio at 302-761-6677.

DS

Canada: Three Nogs Kill Two in Shooting Inside of Da Club

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

Well, as our glorious leader always says, "if you let your enemies kill you, you win."

CTV:

Justin Andrew Bokma, 42, and LeFranc "Frank" Matthews, 41, were gunned down in the early morning hours of July 1, 2016 inside a second-floor after-hours club near College Street and Augusta Avenue.

Police previously said as many as 50 people were inside the establishment at the time and video surveillance footage appeared to show Matthews and Bokma, who worked at the club, attempting to break up a fight when they were shot.

Bokma, who friends say was a former professional skateboarder, was pronounced dead at the scene.

Matthews, a father of two who studied chemical engineering at the University of Toronto, died a short time later in hospital.

Two others, a 45-year-old man and a 34-year-old man, suffered non-life-threatening injuries following the incident and made their own way to hospital for treatment.

"We believe that they were there to sell drugs and they continue to attend after-hours clubs within the City of Toronto," Det. Steve Henkel said of the suspects on Wednesday.

"We also believe that these individuals were known to some of the patrons as well as the ownership of the club."

The first suspect is described as a black male in his late 20s, standing five-feet-nine inches tall with a thin build and hair in braids to his shoulders.

The second suspect is described as a short black male with a skinny build and a large head and crooked teeth. He has deformity to his right hand and arm making them smaller than his left hand and arm.

Henkel said this suspect goes by the street name of "Moe."

The third suspect is described as a black male with a medium complexion, standing about five-feet-nine inches tall. He was clean shaven.

Justin Andrew Bokma.

DS

Spic Serial Public Masturbator Charged

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

We need diversity so people will jerk-off in places White people don't want to jerk-off.

New York Post:

Roberto Remedios, 62, first struck around 10 p.m. April 26, when he sat across from a 24-year-old woman and pleasured himself as a northbound R train approached the 53rd Street station in Sunset Park, Brooklyn.

About three weeks later, around 2 p.m. May 17, he committed the same lewd act in front of a 26-year-old woman on a northbound R train at the Canal Street station in Manhattan.

Then around 11:30 a.m. May 26, he pleasured himself in front of a 19-year-old girl on a northbound A train heading into Manhattan from the Liberty Avenue and 104th Street station in Queens, cops said.

A CrimeStoppers tip led cops to Remedios' home on Hoe Avenue near Home Street in Foxhurst, the Bronx, on Wednesday, police said.

He was arrested and charged with three counts of public lewdness.

DS

White Dude Told Nagger to Stay the Hell Away From Him, Got Stabbed to Death

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

Tony Tarver.

This is why we need the Second Amendment.

If this guy had a gun and stood his ground he would still be alive.

KFOR:

According to the arrest warrant affidavit, family members told police that Evan Stehle had told Tony Tarver to stay away from his apartment.

On June 2, the victim's wife says Tarver knocked on the door, and Stehle told him to leave. When Tarver tried to get into the apartment, a fight ensued.

Stehle's wife told police that she "saw Tarver on top of the victim making stabbing motions. The victim crawled back to the apartment and collapsed on the floor."

After seeing a photograph of Tarver, the victim's wife said that he was "the man who murdered my husband."

The affidavit states that witnesses reported looking outside after hearing a commotion. They reported that Stehle fell to the ground and the suspect "got on top of the victim and stabbed the victim several times in the back."

Evan Stehle.

DS

White Man Stops Two Armed Noggers Robbing a Walmart with a Breaker Bar

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

Video Link

HERO WHITE MAN STOPS NEGROID BADMAN!

CBS:

Delaware State Police are looking for a man and woman who they said held up a New Castle County Walmart this morning. But they didn't get away with much money after another man charged inside to stop them.

"My adrenaline was going so much I wasn't even thinking" said Ron Eads, who was trying to pick up his wife from work at the Walmart on Rt. 40 just after midnight.

He's done it so many times before, but this time he noticed a man and woman outside the store acting strangely.

"These two people walked around on the side of the building and one guy had a gun," he said.

The first suspect was described as a black male, approximately 5'08" tall with an average build. The male suspect wore dark clothing with his face covered armed with an unknown make and model handgun.

The second suspect was described as a black female, approximately 5'05| tall with an average build. The female suspect wore dark clothing armed with an unknown weapon.

DS

Canada: Nog Molested Six Women on Public Transit

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

This nog attacked six women on the Toronto public transit system.

Something that people who live in the city will be familiar with is awhile ago the TTC started a campaign to stop abuse and harassment or whatever on the subways and buses called #ThisIsWhere.

They put up these gay little posters with events that likely never actually happened to try to discourage people from being too mean.

There's also some for faggots and skanks.

Are we going to get a "#ThisIsWhere six women were molested by a savage ape"?

CP24:

Police said a woman was at the subway station when she was grabbed around the waist from behind and sexually assaulted by an unknown man.

On Saturday, June 10, police said another woman was on board a TTC bus on Jane Street when she was approached by a man and sexually assaulted.

Later that same day, police allege a man approached four women on a subway train travelling between Wilson Station and Glencairn Station and sexually assaulted them.

One suspect, identified as 21-year-old Toronto resident Biko Miguana, has been arrested in connection with the alleged incidents.

DS

White Dude Hits on Coalburner – Monkey Boyfriend Kills Him

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

Kendra Ryan, Charles Hardy Jr.

Another in a very, very, very long list of reasons to never be near a coalburner.

WVLT:

Police records show a Knoxville man admitted to fatally stabbing another man who was making unwanted sexual advances toward his girlfriend. He's now been charged with first degree murder.

Charles Hardy Jr. and his girlfriend, Kendra Ryan, were initially arrested and charged with abuse of a corpse on Wednesday, May 23, after the Knoxville Police Department investigated a report of a dead male inside an apartment at Windsor Court Apartments.

Investigators said the man, identified as as Kerry Eugene Dickinson, died as a result of foul play.

Hardy allegedly told investigators that he and Dickinson got into a verbal argument after he did not stop making advances toward Ryan. He told officers the argument turned physical, and he struck Dickinson several times before pulling a knife from his pocket and stabbing him repeatedly.

Officers discovered the body in the bathroom of apartment No. 12 upon arrival, and said his wallet and other personal items were missing. Hardy allegedly told officers that he dragged Dickinson into the bathroom, where he stayed for three days. Hardy also told officers that he attempted to clean the blood out of the carpet where Dickinson died.

Kerry Dickinson.

DS

Colored Cop Molested 14-Year-Old Girl

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

Video Link

Black cops will always abuse their power.

Giving a nog a badge is like giving an arsonist a flamethrower while expecting him to not burn your house down.

WIFR:

Just 13 hours after a Rock County mother reports the sexual assualt of her 14-year-old daughter, a former Beloit police officer is taken into custody.

Beloit police Chief David Zibolski couldn't say how 62-year-old Larry Woods met the victim but charges allege woods sexually assaulted her at least three times within the past year.

Zibolski says the FBI could soon be involved with the case saying Woods allegedly violated the federal Mann Act which prohibits anyone from taking someone across state lines to commit a crime of sexual assualt or prostitution.

Zibolski says Woods worked as a Beloit officer for 25 years before retiring in 2007. He then worked as a security guard for the Beloit Public Library as well as with the Beloit School District. Woods has been placed on administrative leave from the library.

DS

Nog Wanted for Stealing $20,000 Worth of Weaves

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

Black cosmetic products are the most stolen objects in the country (maybe razor blades are higher, but not by much), so this isn't surprising.

I assume the black market for dindu cosmetics is lucrative.

WKRN:

> Metro police are working to locate a man who stole $20,000 of hair weave from a north Nashville beauty supply shop.
>
> It happened on May 16 at the Weave Spot on Jefferson Street.
>
> Metro police said the suspect kicked in the back door of the business around 9 p.m. and took black and blonde hair weave from behind the counter, placing it in a dark-colored laundry bag.
>
> The man appears to be in his early 20s and was wearing a blue Memphis Grizzlies sweatshirt.

DS

Black Suspect Arrested for Murder of White Father (With Coalburner and a Second Nog)

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

D'cobien James Dorsey, Duane Owens, 23, Ashlie Martinez.

What even is there to say about this kind of thing at this point?

Go to the gym so this doesn't happen to you.

Also, legally arm yourselves for self defense.

KFDM:

> The third suspect in the May 9th capital murder of Michael Legg, 40, of Nederland is in custody. Nederland Police Chief Gary Porter says the Jefferson County Sheriff's Warrant Division arrested D'cobien James Dorsey at around 10:30 Friday morning.
>
> Police had been searching for the 19-year-old since the day of the homicide. His bond is set at $1 million.
>
> Legg was found dead inside his home on Beauxart Garden Road. Initial autopsy results indicate he was beaten and possibly strangled to death. Legg leaves behind a wife and an 8-year-old son.
>
> Michael Legg.

DS

Nog Tries to Kill White Woman by Pushing Her Onto Train Tracks

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

Melvin Doss.

This reminds me of those Dudly Do-Right cartoons, kind of. The only difference is there was no Mounty.

ABC:

> Melvin Doss, 46, has been charged with one felony count of aggravated battery causing great bodily harm and one felony count of attempted murder.
>
> Police said he was arrested Tuesday afternoon at the CTA Brown Line Kimball stop after a CTA worker identified him as the alleged attacker.
>
> A 48-year-old woman was seriously injured Friday afternoon after she confronted a man about urinating at the Belmont Avenue station.
>
> "I saw this guy peeing on the platform. I went over to him and said, 'You can't do that in a bathroom?' And he said 'F—off b—h, I have a bladder problem,'" the victim told ABC7 Eyewitness News Monday.
>
> She said she snapped a very clear picture of the man as she walked away.
>
> "He said he was going to kill me. I flipped him off and kept walking," she said.
>
> In response, she said, he punched her in the back of the head and knocked her onto the tracks
>
> The victim.

DS

Spic Stabbed Cuck in Road Rage Incident

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

This was bound to happen when we have a country full of violent savages and cucks.

KKTV:

> According to the investigation, the victim's stepsons were driving north on N. Academy Boulevard from Highway 85/87 when they said another driver began following them closely and swerving toward them in an aggressive manner. That driver also reportedly cut them off before breaking sharply.
>
> The stepsons called their stepfather for help while driving toward Gahart Drive, which is about 5 miles up the road. The two stopped their car in the parking lot while their stepfather, the victim, had arrived.
>
> The victim then approached the suspect's vehicle, who was also in the lot. Police say the suspect then got out with a knife and stabbed the stepfather several times. He then also reportedly attacked the stepsons, causing minor injuries to both of them.
>
> The suspect is described as a Hispanic man standing 5 feet and 8 inches tall and weighing about 140 pounds. He was driving a gray Hyundai hatchback with a rear window that had been broken out.

DS

Cops Open Fire on Three Criminal Nogs – One Sheboon Dead

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

Raoul Gadson, Chanel Barnes.

Well, at least they got one of them.

CBS:

An officer shot and killed a 36-year-old Philadelphia woman who police say tried to run him over following an attempted shoplifting in a Deptford Township shopping center.

Police were called to the Marshalls department store at 1800 Celements Bridge Road at 3:40 Saturday afternoon for a shoplifting in progress.

As officers arrived to the scene three suspects, one man and two women, fled the store with a substantial amount of unpaid merchandise.

The male suspect, Raoul Gadson, was resisting with lost prevention agents from the store. Gadson fled on foot while the two women, LaShanda Anderson, 36, and Chanel Barnes, 27, attempted to flee in a rented Nissan Armada.

When officers outside of the vehicle commanded them to stop the driver, LaShanda Anderson, accelerated towards the officers.

A Patrol Captain was struck by the open driver-side door as the driver attempted to flee the scene. Anderson reportedly deliberately attempted to run over the second officer, a Sergeant. He fired three shots at the driver, hitting her twice.

DS

Black Male Slugs Random Woman in the Face in Parking Rage Incident

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

Blacks rage on the road, in the parking lot, in the crack den, everywhere.

Cincinnati:

Cincinnati police are trying to identify a suspect who struck a woman in the face after a minor parking lot accident, according to a media release.

Police say a black man between 20 and 30 years old driving a newer model, tan four-door sedan was involved in an accident in the parking lot at 1132 Sycamore St., Pendleton, around 12:55 a.m. Sunday.

According to the release, the suspect exited the vehicle, immediately approached the woman who was driving the other car and struck her in the face one time.

The victim fall on the ground and hit her head, causing serious injury.

The suspect then smacked a phone from another person who was attempting to record the incident, the release states. He then entered his sedan and left in an unknown direction.

DS

White Superhero Wannabe Beaten by Spics with a Bag of Lug Nuts for Trying to be Nice

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

This is why you should never try to break up a fight you are not involved in unless one of the people fighting is your family or a close friend.

It's none of your business and you'll probably just end up getting hit with a bag full of several pounds of steel.

New York Post:

A good Samaritan who tried to break up a fight in Washington Square Park became a victim himself when the one combatant walloped him with a bag filled with lug nuts, he said.

James Key, 41, had just finished visiting his father in a rehab facility Saturday evening and was walking through the Greenwich Village park when he came across the scuffle.

"As I came closer to the scene, it was obvious one person was clearly getting the better of the altercation and beating another man up very seriously with his fist," Key said. "There were some women screaming, and they were obviously distraught, and I decided if could keep someone from getting hurt, maybe I should do that."

The attacker—who cops identified as Roland Pacheco, 50—repeatedly screamed "f—-t" at his victim, Key recalled.

"So I pulled [Pacheco] away from the other guy, pulled him by the shoulders…and then I stood between them so he couldn't attack the guy anymore, and then I just asked him, 'Why are you doing that? What did that guy do to you?' His answer was to punch me in the face."

Key immediately warned Pacheco that he was "going to jail today" and attempted to call 911—but he attacker kept on swinging and punching. Suddenly—as dramatic video shows—Pacheco started swinging at him with an unusual weapon.

"He had…this big blue tarp and suddenly he started swinging at me," Key said. "I put my left arm up to defend myself from the blows, [but] he hit my arm very hard….I thought it was rocks. I didn't know it was steel."

The beating rendered Key unable to call 911, so he yelled to the gathering crowd for help.

"I decided to try to disarm him to take the weapon away from him, trying to look for a good time between swings to try to grab it from him," he said. "Eventually I was able to grab him by the head and neck, and then another bystander helped me wrestle him to the ground."

James Key.

DS

Nigging Noggers Chimpout on White Teenager at Skate Park

Joe Jones
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

Video Link

How many White kids have experienced a full blown chimpout against them?

Countless.

We're left to question why we tolerate this level of monkey business in our nations.

WLKY:

Metro police are investigating a fight that happened at a Louisville skate park Monday night.

Cellphone video captured the incident.

WLKY spoke with the woman who said she and her 15-year-old son were attacked as they tried to leave the Louisville Extreme Park. She said the fight started after she spotted a teenager standing on top of her mother's car, which she had driven to the park.

The woman said that she shouted at the teen to get down and that seconds later, her son was knocked to the ground.

The victims asked WLKY not to identify them.

"He started in on my son," the woman said. "I went for him and then the next thing I know, I'm getting blows to the head."

Neither victim was seriously hurt.

Officers cited two girls ages 16 and 14, and one boy age 17 in connection to the assault. They all face assault in the fourth degree and one count of criminal mischief in the second degree.

DS

Brown Woman Robs a Bank!

Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

You're just going to have to deal with this sort of thing, goyim.

Tuscon News Now:

The Tucson Police Department is requesting the public's assistance identifying a suspect they said robbed a bank on Thursday, June 7.

TPD said around 10:10 a.m., officers responded to a report of a bank robbery at the U.S. Bank located inside the Safeway at 2140 W. Grant Rd.

TPD said a woman approached the two victim tellers and demanded money. She was given an undisclosed amount of money and fled the store on foot, TPD said.

The suspect was described as a Hispanic or Native American female, 50-60 years old, 5'3| and 200lbs.

DS

Society

Oh Yeah You Definitely Can't Do That

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 16, 2018

> .@CharlesSturtUni Vice Chancellor Andrew Vann says he's appalled by images posted by Wagga students at a "politically incorrect" party overnight @WINNews_Riv pic.twitter.com/GzkZbdWmfF
>
> — Jordan Matthews (@JMatthewsWIN) June 15, 2018

Not really sure why someone would think this was allowed.

I guess even normies are having a hard time keeping up with the new norms.

But I mean, this is like something that would have been iffy even in like 2014.

Current year...who would even think it?

Maybe they actually are a bunch of virulent race haters.

I think they actually aren't. I think it's just what it looks like.

RT:

> A student party with a "politically incorrect" theme proved true to its calling, as revelers sported blackface, costumes of Klansmen, death camp prisoners and even Hitler, sparking outrage in the Australian town of Wagga Wagga.
>
> Photos from the party, thrown by the students of the Charles Sturt University (CSU), went viral on Friday, sparking outrage in the community. The event had been advertised as a "politically incorrect" one, urging the party-goers to dress-up as inappropriately as they could.
>
> "Grab a kit that would legally get you in sh*t and hook right in," the now-deleted Facebook page of the event read, according to Australian media.
>
> The few pictures from the event, which promptly went viral, illustrated how the party goers indeed tried to be as offensive as possible. They seemingly succeeded, as the photos from the party caused outrage among students of the CSU, especially Aboriginal ones, who found them grossly inappropriate.
>
> One of the photos features five people dressed as KKK members, with a man sporting "blackface" make-up squatting in front of them. The blackfaced participant holds a bowl filled with something resembling cotton-balls.
>
> The now-deleted original photo was accompanied with a caption reading "Very very politically incorrect. Cotton prices are unreal though so it's a great time to be pickin'."
>
> Another photo that went viral following the scandalous party features three men dressed as Jewish prisoners of a Nazi death camp, with a man resembling Adolf Hitler in the background. The original Instagram post, which has been also deleted, was captioned "Jesus Christ. I Jews you as my lord and saviour."
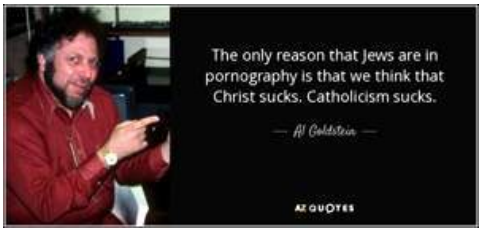
>
> As the photos went viral, The Black Swan Hotel, which hosted the event, was bombarded with outraged Facebook users. The establishment initially released a statement on its page, claiming it was "unaware of this behaviour happening out the back of the pub." As the pub staff noticed the inappropriate party they "immediately dealt with it," since the Black Swan has "zero tolerance" towards such behavior. The statement, however was deleted later.
>
> The "party" has been condemned by the CSU as "offensive." The University did not acknowledge that its students were involved in the incident, adding that it had launched an investigation into it. As of Friday evening, the CSU did not provide any further information on its probe.

Does anyone remember the Jews in the 60s?

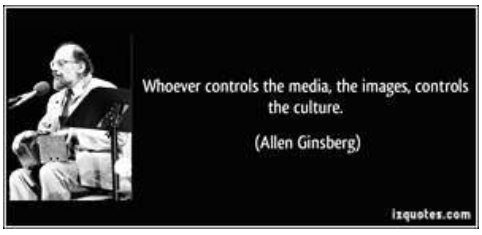
The Jew Lenny Bruce?

Video Link

The Jew Al Goldstein's "Screw Magazine"?



The Jew Allen Ginsburg, who was a member of NAMBLA, an organization that lobbied for the legalization of sex with boys? His books are still read at universities.



He had a point there, didn't he?

The Jews were the lords of offense.

Video Link

Now, they are the masters of thought control.

They broke down the barriers of our society by purposefully attacking social norms, and now they witch hunt us if we attack the new norms that they've established.

I challenge any single academic figure who thinks what we do here at the Daily Stormer is morally reprehensible to explain how it was okay for Allen Ginsberg to write poems about sex with little boys, and read them at Harvard.

Seriously—let's have that talk.

Jews telling people they can't do things that are offensive is the most outrageous thing imaginable.

DS

African Cannibalism: Monkey "Actress" Sanaa Lathan Tried to Bite Beyonce's Face Off

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018

Vibrant African culture right there.

Some of you may balk at the concept of biting your friend's faces. It may seem "barbaric," or "uncivilized."

But you need to understand that what you're feeling is merely an expression of narrow-minded Eurocentrism. In other, more "authentic" cultures, biting people in the face is just how they display affection—kind of like how the French kiss each other as a greeting.

It's not weird—it's European.

So while some misguided Alt-Right neon-nazis might say that some negro actress biting another Black woman in the face is a display of emerging jungle cannibalism, you can be assured that this is entirely normal.

Your Tango:

> Case officially closed.
>
> Remember when actress and comedian Tiffany Haddish spilled the tea back December, leaving us all wondering who bit Beyonceé in the face? Well, the mystery culprit she and Chrissy Teigen both refused to identify back then has now been named, and the Internet (especially those hilariously gossipy folks on Twitter is losing its collective mind.

Why do Black people have a propensity to bite people's faces?

It's definitely not the first time this happens...

Official: Miami Zombie Attack Was Not Bath Salts

ZWN: (AP). Miami, Florida, USA

(ZWN) -- Miami police authorities have confirmed that last months viscous attack on a homeless man was not the result of bath salts as first reported.

Rudy Eugene, 31, the naked Florida man who last month chewed off 75% of the face of another man, had no "bath salts" in his system as police had suspected, authorities said Wednesday.

Eugene was shot dead by a police officer after an 18-minute attack on 65-year-old Ronald Poppo, a homeless man.

The only drug residue in his system was marijuana. His body didn't show "any other street drugs, alcohol or prescription drugs, or any adulterants found in street drugs," according to the Miami-Dade County Medical Examiner Department.

"The department has also sought the assistance of an outside forensic toxicology reference laboratory, which has confirmed the absence of 'bath salts,' synthetic marijuana and LSD," the statement said.

Resources for addicts in Jacksonville FL, have seen a sharp rise in patient awareness of 'bath salts', but few report their usage of the drug.

There's definitely a pattern there...

Some disreputable people have noted that chimps have similar behavior patterns...

> Earlier today, the Hollywood Reporter published a feature on Haddish in which she confirms what many suspected—actress Sanaa Lathan is the celebrity friend of Bey who bizarrely chose to bite Queen B during a private party.
>
> In the new Hollywood Reporter spread, the Girls Trip actress finally dished out full details about the shocking incident.
>
> Over the course of the interview, Lacey Rose writes:
>
> "Haddish asks whether I know who did it, and I whisper the name that's been rumored: Sanaa Lathan. She smiles. 'I'm super good friends with her stepmom and her dad [Stan, a producer-director], and they were mad at me... They were like, 'Why would you do this to the family? You know, black actresses, you guys have to stick together, it's so hard for you guys to get work as it is, why would you try to ruin her career?' But I didn't try to ruin her career. I never said her name! I was just trying to say how Beyonce kept me from goin' to jail that night. I coulda just shut my whole career down."

Being bit in the face is no reason to bring a sistah' down.

Yes, these Black sistahs know that if the wider White supremacist culture were to be privy to their peculiar African cultural norms, which may or may not involve facial cannibalism, then their careers would be jeopardized.

As such, they have to conspire to keep the face-biting on the down low.

Blacks refer to this as "not going off-code."

> You one of those desperate off-code black ppl who can't just disagree with someone? Where's this same energy to white mommy and white daddy?? You want dare do nothing against them!
>
> — Sweet James Jones jr (@Qfuqua90) December 22, 2017
>
> Naaaaah, cancel all that shit, including the off-code black people
>
> — (@tajhayvo) June 1, 2018
>
> Black ppl have found a mechanism for punishing turn-coat and off-code behavior...we stop fkn with you and your work. #ChrisetteMichelle
>
> — MagnumBoom (@WashingtonKaye) November 1, 2017
>
> After a few false starts the No-Thanks-Given address is uploading. I tackle media racism and answer why so many black people persist in being off-code. When it finishes uploading it should be viewable here and sorry for posting so late: https://t.co/TcEMUybyQF
>
> — ProfessorBlackTruth (@ProfBlacktruth) November 24, 2017

So for example, if a Black man bites another nigga's face off, and this "victim" goes on to say that face-biting is a problematic aspect of African culture, other Blacks will condemn him for going "off-code."

It's so sad that these equal-Americans have to hide their true natures just to be accepted by our bigoted culture.

DS

World Shocked as Negroid Batchlorette Contestant Convicted of Sexual Assault

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

So this is a reality TV show where a woman chooses a husband from a batch of men.

The show is about her going on dates with the men, while a film crew follows her. And then I think they maybe have challenges like in Survivor.

It's a very early 00s thing, but it's still happening. I guess.

So anyway, this slut:

Is going to choose one of these men:

For marriage.

On the show.

I guess we know which one she's going to choose now.

White bitches love nothing in this world more than a rapey nigger.

Plus like, even though there are some whites competing for her affection, it would be racist af to choose a non-nigger for marriage.

USA Today:

> A contestant on ABC's The Bachelorette was convicted of indecent assault and battery on May 21, USA TODAY has confirmed.
>
> Lincoln Adim, 26, who is still chasing after Becca Kufrin's heart on the current season of ABC's reality show, was charged after a 2016 incident involving an woman on a harbor cruise ship in Boston Harbor, according to the Suffolk County District Attorney's office.
>
> Adim was convicted one week before The Bachelorette returned.
>
> "The judge ordered him to stay away from the victim and attend three Alcoholics Anonymous meetings per week during those two years," says a statement sent to USA TODAY by Jake Wark, a spokesman for the country's district attorney.
>
> "If he complies with the judge's orders, he will not have to serve out his term, but if he fails to comply with those orders or re-offends, he could be ordered to serve out the year behind bars," the statement continues. "By law, he is expected to register as a sex offender."

I guess when they were casting the show they should have looked into this.

Or maybe they did and it would have been racist to not let him on the show just because he's a registered sex offender.

Or maybe they wanted this publicity, thinking it would help the show's ratings— "lemme tune in and see if this nigger rapes this stupid bitch on the show."

Did you know that black people don't even have a word for "rape"?

They just call it "stabbin dem guts."

Which I think is kinda gross.

DS

Yeah But There Aren't Any Black Film Critics Tho Because They Can't Read or Write

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

Plus sized actress Brie Larson is starring in the new Marvel film, which is sure to be an innovative wild ride. And she wants to know what niggers think.

We all want more niggers to review films.

It's universal.

Everyone I talk to, I come up and say "hey dude, what's up, how's your day?" and they're like "yeah, it's okay, but it'd be a lot better if there were more niggers reviewing films."

The problem is that niggers are illiterate.

USA Today:

> Brie Larson is demanding more diversity in film reviews.
>
> The future "Captain Marvel" star used her platform Wednesday night at the Women in Film Crystal + Lucy Awards to drive home new statistics highlighting the dearth of women and minority film critics.
>
> In 2017, only 2.5 % of top critics in 2017 were women of color, she noted.
>
> "I don't need a 40-year-old white dude to tell me what didn't work about A Wrinkle in Time," said Larson. "It wasn't made for him! I want to know what it meant to women of color, biracial women, to teen women of color."

Larson clarified: "Am I saying I hate white dudes? No, I am not. What I am saying is if you make a movie that is a love letter to women of color, there is an insanely low chance a woman of color will have a chance to see your movie, and review your movie."

No one hates white dudes.

We just want to replace them all with niggers.

That is one of the main reasons we need more money for them programs—we have to teach niggers to read so they can replace white people in all of these jobs.

Captain Marvel, an innovative wild ride from the creative and original company Disney, is due out in March, 2019.

Video Link

But while you're waiting for that, there are 17 other Marvel movies coming out in the next year, which are sure to be exciting and original wild rides. You can also look forward to 11 Star Wars films being released before Christmas by the innovative studios of Disney studios, where creativity and innovation are remarkable.

Hopefully, Disney can also commit some of the profits from these films to them programs to teach niggers to read, so that by the time Captain Marvel is released, a bunch of niggers can write reviews of it.

Coming in Spring of 2019 from Disney Studios: Nigger learns to type words on a computer.

DS

Steam Aiming to Take Down Jew Discord

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

May the perfidious Discord kikes be destroyed forever.

Valve has been on quite the roll in the past few weeks, pushing for a major offensive against the forces of evil. Gaben's powerful vidya empire has recently announced they would henceforth allow even the most politically incorrect games to be present on their storefront, dealing a major blow to the J-left's censorship schemes.

And now, we have more great news from our beloved supplier of entertainment.

They have hatched a plan to destroy Discord, one of our most hated enemies.

Don't forget, Discord is a company owned by a Jew who sells the conversation logs of Alt-Right servers straight to antifa and other Jewish organizations.

/wp-content/uploads/2018/04/50-60-servers2.mp3

https://vocaroo.com/i/s07SDYZSo4JM

Discord is just generally the most wretched company out there, when it comes to privacy.

Video Link

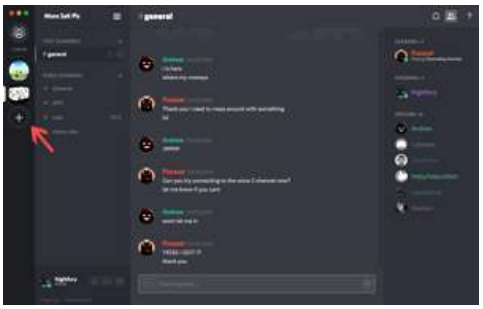
And since Discord is specifically targeted at PC gamers, Steam is in a unique position to take over their user base.

Tech Crunch:

Discord has risen among the ranks of gamers as the most common choice for game-related communications. And it's easy to see why: it works well and the competition is pretty dismal. But Valve is looking to keep users in-house with an overhaul of the chat options on its game platform Steam.

Yes. The competition is horrible.

Discord is by far the best chat program out there. Everything else is inexplicably primitive and backwards by comparison.



Compare this to Skype. Ugh...

Why is it that no one else managed to make a chat program that doesn't suck? Sending text around shouldn't be a complex feat of engineering.

It's a welcome change, one of many that Steam's users have surely been asking for—the platform, while convenient in many ways, is also incredibly outdated in others. The friend and communications options may as well be ICQ, and let's not get started on the browser.

Today's news suggests that Valve has not failed to hear gamers' cries. The revamped chat is very Discord-like, with text and voice channels listed separately, in-game details like map and game type listed next to friends and a useful quick list for your go-to gaming partners. There's also a robust web client.

They straight up just took all of Discord's best features and great layout, and added a few new features that only they could provide due to their position as a games platform.

This...This is great!

Voice and text chat is all encrypted and passed through Steam's servers, which prevents the NSA competition from monitoring your squad's tactics during PUBG games and griefers from tracing your IP and ordering a hundred pizzas to your door (or worse).

The NSA can realistically still get your chat logs. But the NSA aren't the ones we need to be worried about. Not having your chats leaked to your political enemies, as is Discord's policy, is already a huge improvement.

It's long past due for a platform like Steam, but more importantly it lets them keep Discord in check. The latter, after all, could conceivably grow itself a game store or promotions page in order to subsidize its free services—and that would be stepping on Valve's turf. Unforgivable.

That said, it's far too late for Steam to steal away Discord's users—it's been adopted by far too many communities and the benefits of switching aren't really substantial. But for people who have not yet installed Discord, the presence of a robust chat and voice client within Steam is a powerful deterrent.

That's where you're wrong, Tech Crunch.

At the very least, all of the Alt-Right is plausibly going to switch over to this new platform, and so is anyone even vaguely concerned about their privacy.

Moreover, this isn't some new platform that people will have to move to. Everyone already has a steam account. So it's just a question of "do I use this additional, external program now that Steam gives me all the features I need?"

In the long term, this is seriously going to eat away at Discord's userbase.

So the only question is, will Steam also sell our information to third party organizations?

Probably not.

If anything, they'll give us antifa's chatlogs.

Valve is a private company, and they can already make use of the user's data to sell them more games. They have an incentive to keep the information to themselves, as it hampers the competition. Moreover, there's no shareholder pressure to maximize profit for every cent possible.

So odds are, they'll keep things on the up and up.

Hail Gaben!

DS

Low IQ Part Jew with Jungle Fever Robert De Niro Goes Full Jungle Monkey

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

Video Link

Wow so brave I am shocked at the bravery to stand up against the evil.

Washington Post:

> The list of people who don't like President Trump is lengthy and chief among his haters is unquestionably Hollywood legend Robert De Niro. Although the Oscar-winning actor has long held a reputation for being "not a big talker," that clearly doesn't apply to the subject of Trump.
>
> Most recently, De Niro made waves at the Tony Awards on Sunday when he unleashed a profanity-laced tirade against Trump, which drew a standing ovation from the crowd gathered in Radio City Music Hall, but criticism from others as an example of "Trump Derangement Syndrome" that will only fuel the president's base.

This was the cringest of the cringe.

What are you fighting against, exactly here, buddy?

Are you fighting for Islam? For Mexicans? For war with Korea?

What is the explicit problem that you have with Trump?

No one even tries to give specific issues anymore. They basically just hate him because he's white, and make that clear enough.

And he makes these comments in front of the global elite. What he is actually saying is "fuck the people of this country who are not east coast urbanites and/or Jews."

Trump's bantz are so much better than any libshit tho.

> Robert De Niro, a very Low IQ individual, has received too many shots to the head by real boxers in movies. I watched him last night and truly believe he may be "punch-drunk." I guess he doesn't...
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 13, 2018

> ...realize the economy is the best it's ever been with employment being at an all time high, and many companies pouring back into our country. Wake up Punchy!
>
> — Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) June 13, 2018

Even a libshit has to look at that and be like "yeah, dude got bantzed. He should have come out with more than 'fuck u' if he was gonna do a thing. That is nigger-tier."

It was especially weird to do this in the middle of a historic peace summit. Because it makes it look like he was saying "fuck you for preventing a war!"

DS

The Price of Tolerance: UK Taxpayers to Pay £20,000 for Tranny Murderer's Sex Change

Michael Byron
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

Remember, Bongs: if you want to continue living in a vibrant, tolerant society where policemen partake in pride parades, hajis rape schoolgirls with impunity and hairy men tearfully announce "I HAVE A VAGINA!" on live TV to rapturous applause, you need to go to work each day and help pay for it.

Diversity has never been a "something for nothing" type deal.

These things all cost money, you know.

Breitbart:

> The UK taxpayer will pay around £20,000 so a transgender murderer, accused of having sex with women in female prisons, can be flown hundreds of miles for a surgical sex change.
>
> Paris Green was born Peter Laing but began "identifying" as a female in 2011, before being jailed for life in 2013 for killing and torturing Robert Shankland.
>
> The victim was lured to a flat before being beaten so badly footprints were left on his neck, having a plastic bag forced over his head, and being sexually assaulted with a rolling pin.

Truly shocking and unpredictable.

Who would have thought that a transvestite in high heels would turn out to be a deranged killer that sodomized men to death with rolling pins. You'd hope that Mother Nature would give us a warning sign or two to help us detect these dangerous people, but nope, they blend into society just like you and me.

Paris Green is proof that appearances can be deceiving. "She" might look like a normal young lady, the kind you might invite home to meet the parents, but behind that soft, delicate façade lurks a man that gives new meaning to the words "prepare your anus."

> Despite the nature of her crimes, and retaining male biology, the killer began her sentence of at least 18 years at Cornton Vale women's jail in Stirling, Scotland, but was moved after reports she was having sex with female prisoners in a cell.

Heh, that's our Aryan princesses all right!

It doesn't matter whether you're a Moslem rapist, a Namibian bushman or a cross-dresser with fake tits, as long as you've got a penis these skanks will throw themselves at you!

(Unless you're white and heterosexual, of course, in which case the whole "must be at least 6| and making six-figures" enters the equation.)

> She will now have the sex change after being transported from her cell at HMP Edinburgh to a hospital in Southern England under constant guard, the Daily Record reports.
>
> However, Mr. Shankland's family reacted angrily, insisting she should not be getting the operation on the National Health Service (NHS) because "it's not lifesaving treatment".
>
> From the women's wing of the prison, Green wrote: "I am having the op, and pretty soon. The letter has went out [sic] to the surgeon asking him to take on my case."
>
> Mr. Shankland's sister, Pauline Bell, 46, hit back. "She should not be getting the operation on the NHS. It's not lifesaving treatment. She took somebody's life away and destroyed a family," she commented.

Welp, it looks like we've found a candidate for Room 101 right here!

Clearly, this woman has forgotten that she lives in Airstrip One, where hurting the feelings of transsexuals carries a lifelong prison sentence.

She had the decency to use feminine pronouns, though, which might guard her from the most serious accusations.

It's still shocking stuff, though.

Being intolerant of a male-to-female killer like that.

DS

Should Have Stuck to Smuggling OxyContin and Moonshine – Smuggling Eyeballs is X-Treme

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

Smuggling eyeballs is a bizarre act. Where do you even get them? How much are they worth?
WNKY:

A Kentucky State Police Trooper, a retired State Police Colonel and a County Coroner, have been charged with transporting moonshine and eyeballs.

According to the Associated Press, Scott County Coroner, John Goble, and retired State Police Lieutenant colonel, Mike Crawford, were indicted Thursday on multiple counts of receiving stolen property. The charges stem from the theft of $40,000 worth of ammunition and weapons. State police began investigating the theft in December and placed Master Trooper Robert M. Harris on unpaid leave. He's accused of providing stolen items to Goble and Crawford.

Harris has been indicted of unlawful taking and second-degree forgery. Goble also is accused of transporting a pair of donor eyes and moonshine, as well as possessing 90 oxycodone tablets.

But again—pretty cyberpunk, no?
I didn't even realize you could transplant eyeballs.

DS

Vince Vaughn Arrested for DUI – Does Not Rant About Kikes for Some Reason

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

When I saw the headline, I felt a warm feeling in my Anahata (heart chakra) thinking "I just know he PULLED A MEL."

But from the information available presently, it appears he did not start ranting about kikes when he was arrested for DUI.

Really disappointing.
CNN:

Actor Vince Vaughn was arrested early Sunday morning on suspicion of driving under the influence, according to authorities.

Vaughn was stopped at a DUI checkpoint outside of Los Angeles between Hermosa Beach and Manhattan Beach around 12:30 a.m., according to the Manhattan Beach Police Department.

The "Dodgeball" actor was subsequently arrested for driving under the influence and for resisting, delaying or obstructing officers, Sgt. Matt Sabosky said.

An unidentified male passenger traveling with Vaughn was also arrested on charges of obstructing officers and public intoxication, Sabosky said. Additional details on the passenger were not immediately available.

Regarding the charge of resisting officers, Sgt. Tim Zins, another spokesman for the Manhattan Beach Police Department, offered clarification later Sunday. He said Vaughn wasn't "fighting with officers, but more of delaying the investigation."

It does not appear as though there was any rant at all.

Who the hell gets arrest for DUI and doesn't rant about something while being pulled out of the car and handcuffed?

Vaughn is one of those actors you know from his physiognomy and the way he carries himself—and the fact that he's never been made into a major movie star—is not a secret faggot and in fact is a secret Nazi like Mel used to be before he became a public Nazi.

Also a proud member of Thot Patrol, that Mel.

Video Link

He was a Ron Paul guy, but didn't really touch the Trump thing because...well, no one really had the balls to touch that, other than Stallone and Hulk Hogan, really. And Hulk only did it after they dropped the sex tape where he called his daughter a nigger-fucking whore, so it was kinda like—not much to lose at that point.

Even Mel didn't come out publicly for Trump.

But there is that scene of the two of them watching Meryl Streep rant about him that pretty much said all that either of them needed to say.

So yeah, I would have appreciated a Jew rant with this drunken arrest.

He could have at least started screaming about "Israeli" military aid if he wasn't drunk enough to say the word "Jew."

A real bummer.

DS

Empowered Career Skank Upset That White Men Refused to Help Her Fend Off Paki Attacker

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

This empowered and independent fashion executive was less angry at a Paki who attacked her and more angry at some White men who refused to come to her aid. She was mistaken to think that a white knight would be around every corner in a feminist dominated society.

An empowered and independent career woman was in the British news after she got attacked by a crazy Paki while riding on the London Tube system. She was actually less angry at her attacker and more angry at some White men who refused to help her. Go figure!

Daily Mail:

A fashion chief executive attacked by an unwell 6ft man on a busy Tube carriage has slammed two men who moved seats and left her to defend herself.

Tamara Cincik was kicked and threatened while travelling to a business meeting in central London yesterday.

The mother-of-one told MailOnline, children were crying as the agitated man squared up to her and started violently attacking her in the middle of the carriage.

Recounting the incident, Ms Cincik said: 'I got on the Tube at Highgate and I was going to Old Street. A man got on at Archway, he was about six foot and around 30 to 35-years-old and he started just screaming.

'At first I thought he was some sort of performance artist but then it became clear that he was not well.

"He was screaming and shouting at me and saying things like 'I am going to f kick you" then he did actually kick me. It was intimidating, he was a big guy and I am only size eight.'

The fashion CEO is keen to stress she does not blame this man, who she describes as being 6ft tall and of South-east Asian descent.

She said she believes he needs medical help but added the incident was "terrifying".

Ms Cincik said: 'Children were crying and women were crying, it was awful. I wasn't crying I was in shock.

"I remain more angry with those white middle class men who left me to it. As fathers, husbands and sons they should be ashamed of themselves."

So according to this empowered bitch, the crazy Paki shouldn't be blamed for attacking her. However, the White men who refused to step in and help a damsel in distress need to have their masculinity questioned.

Quite honestly, I don't blame those White men for not helping her.

First off, nobody wants to get hit with "hate crime" charges for getting in a physical confrontation with a brown person.

Furthermore, considering our current societal environment, what incentive do they have to white knight for a woman who they don't know?

Women have demanded equality and this type of thing is just part of that equality. As a man, you operate with the understanding that there are no guarantees that someone is going to help you if you get into bad situations. This skank seems to think that she can enjoy the same perks as a man while refusing to accept a man's responsibilities. She also seems to believe that because she has a hole in between her legs that this entitles her to a white knight rescuing her if she encounters trouble.

Most British women have been fully on board with unchecked third world migration. Terrorist attacks, being sprayed with acid and getting assaulted on the subway is just part of the unique cultural enrichment these savages provide.

Women have widely supported the multiculturalism and racial diversity agendas. This is because they have a weird desire to be raped by brown and black savages with low IQs. This slut by excusing her attacker's behavior seems to have these exact same sexual urges. She probably enjoyed the assault.

So we have a situation where women have demanded equality and unlimited access to third world dick. Yet they are angry when one of these savages attacks them and White men won't help rescue them. They can't have it both ways.

If those White men did step in, they risked injury to themselves and the possibility of being labeled a misogynist or a racist.

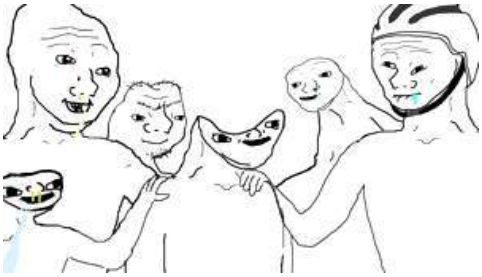
The bottom line is that women need a lesson in what equality really means for them. The more men who white knight for them, the worse their behavior is going to get. They demanded feminism and racial diversity, so let them enjoy the fruits of it for a little while.

DS

Insight

The People at the Top Just Aren't That Smart

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 15, 2018



There's a famous pair of Russian pranksters that like to call up politicians and have chats with them. They get these politicians to let their guard down and say some really stupid-sounding shit every single time. This is when their marks have their guard down—they're thinking that they're talking with one of /theirguys/ off the record AND they don't have their usual team of wonks around them to feed them smart-sounding lines.

These pranksters' trolling is almost as insightful as the Wikileaks dumps into gaining perspective on how our superiors really think.

Here's the latest Russian trolling campaign:

Video Link

The executive summary: the pranksters left a number at Boris Johnson's office that got passed around and get a call from the OSCE secretary general who thinks he's talking to the Armenian PM.

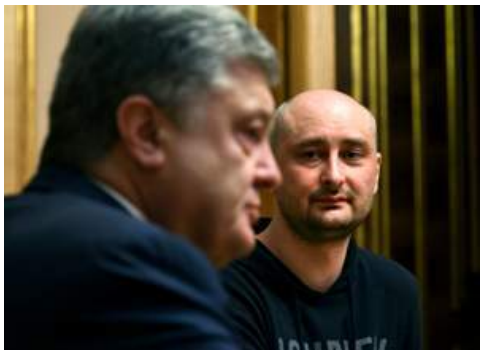
Not a lot of due diligence here.

The OSCE guy basically admitted that he knew that Kiev was violating the Minsk peace treaty and that the official narrative that the OSCE was pushing was BS.

You'd think he'd be more careful revealing that kind of info over the phone, holy shit like how is this guy privy to this kind of info with that kind of opsec. I know Pepe-posting Twitter nationalists that are more careful with their opsec than the freakin' OSCE secretary general.

Then it gets better.

The pranksters float the idea that Ukraine's president is going to fake his death to try to blame it on Russia like that journalist just did in Kiev—Babchenko—recently.



And the OSCE guy seems to legit think its a stupid idea, but entirely within the realm of possibility.

What does that say about his opinion on Poroshenko? About the people running the ship in Kiev? And didn't he just tacitly admit that the Babchenko-Russia murder saga was a hoax?

This should be some career-ending shit right here.

The OSCE general's conversation basically revealed that the OSCE says one thing publicly, but obviously knows that the facts tell a different story.

It revealed the incredibly low-opinion that they have for the people in charge in Kiev and for the President of Ukraine.

kakistocracy

(n.) government by the least qualified, most stupid members

And finally, it confirmed that no one takes the Babchenko murder-resurrection story arc seriously.

I guess the idiots running the clown show in the West just have an insanely high level of confidence in the general stupidity of the general public, the complicity of their fellow intelligentsia and the totality of their media narrative control.

As a result, they've gotten lazy and stupid and logically inconsistent.

People just need to sit up and start noticing.

DS

Total Shock! Scientists Declare Tide Pod-Muncher Generation to be Dumbest on Record

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
June 14, 2018

Hold on to your hats, folks. More news about the world actively getting worse. IDK about you, but I'm ready to give another system of governance a shot at this point. Unlimited niggers, tranny kids and now lowering of IQs seems to be the end result of this post-war liberal experiment.

Time to shut it down.

RT:

A new study, conducted by Norwegian scientists, shows that IQ scores of today's young people are in decline, putting an end to the post-war trend of rising intelligence.

After the Second World War young people's IQs were steadily rising. It was dubbed the Flynn effect after New Zealand intelligence researcher James Flynn. This phenomenon saw average IQ scores rise about three points per decade.

But researches from the Ragnar Frisch Centre for Economic Research in Oslo say the Flynn effect is now past its peak. In a paper, published in the PNAS journal, Norwegian scientists Ole Rogeberg and Bernt Bratsberg analyzed the data from standardized IQ tests of about 730,000 men, born between 1962 and 1991, who underwent mandatory IQ tests to join the national service.

There are obviously a lot of variables at play here. One of the reasons for the IQ dip might be the browning of our nations.

This will obviously pull the average down— SHOCKING I KNOW.

But on another level, there haven't been any environmental pressures on IQ in the last half a century at least in the West.

In fact, smart people haven't been having kids because that takes away from their career prospects and ability to earn enough money to buy shiny toys in their old age.

Times have been good. And even the dumbest members of society were reproducing during the West's golden heydey after World War II.

So there's possibly an element of adverse selection at play here, let's be real. Not everything is genetic. I would say 80% of shit is genetic. But there is the 20% that I will agree with blank slatist liberals is environmental. It's why you actually gotta parent your kids, otherwise they'll turn out as annoying little shits even though they may have good genetics.

Which brings us to Gen Z.

Gen Z is a mixed bag.

On the one hand, many of them are based. On the other, many eat Tide Pods.

Frankly, I believe that Tide Pods are nature's way of finally getting rid of the worst disgenic effects of the last fifty years.

Mother Nature knows best.

Eat the Tide Pods, you dumb children.

The study revealed that the IQ points of those tested peaked among those born in 1975, while people born in 1991 scored five points lower. According to the scientists, this shift could be due to many factors, including the way children are brought up and educated. For example there is less drilling in subjects like mathematics and languages and the total amount of time spent watching television or using technology has increased.

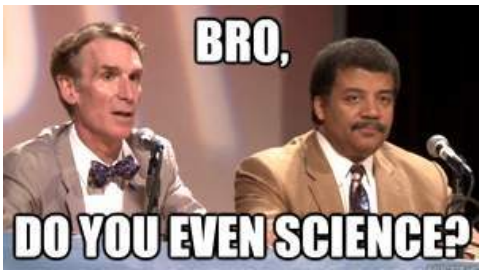
That's pretty bleak. I always thought that people nowadays seem...stunted and weird, especially when you compare them to their ancestors on black and white photos.

And these are Millennials on the Right, not even Gen Z.

IDK what to make of this part:

> One thing the study ruled out it is the progressing low IQ scores being linked to genetic mutations or stemming from a demographic shift. Norwegian researchers analyzed entire families and siblings in an attempt to find any common traits of mental decline, but failed to find any.

Not sure how they proved this, what it really means or whether I even trust scientists anymore on these...sensitive issues.



Until we can have an honest discussion about the merits of natural selection via Tide Pods on national television, I feel like we're just not going to get anywhere as a civilization.

DS

Vidyacaust: E3 Highlights (It's Not as Bad as You Thought It was Gonna Be)

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
June 13, 2018

E3 is the biggest video game exposition in the world, and it's here. This is where major video game publishers make announcements for their future projects and releases.

Overall, the show was proof that gamergate lost, and video games will now be shit forever. But it isn't all bad. There were a few diamonds in this turd.

Metokur did gud live commentary on all the major presentations (other than Nintendo, which hasn't happened yet at time of writing).

Microsoft

Video Link

So, a bunch of Gears of War games, a new Halo, and a bunch of games that you'll be able to play on PC anyway. Microsoft has basically abandoned the concept of "exclusives," releasing all their games on both Windows and Xbox. I mean, I like it, since I'm not about to buy one of their consoles, but it really makes it kind of pointless to get own an Xbox—unless you're short on cash, I guess. Or a Mac guy. But in that case, if you're going to own a single console, it probably wouldn't be an Xbox.

There were some interesting trailers mixed in the presentation though.

Video Link

From Software haven't made a bad game in a very long time, so this should be pretty interesting.

Video Link

I don't know anything about this game, but the visual design is incredible. I remember reading Moebius comic books as a kid, and this looks exactly like those. I'd probably play this just for the visuals.

Video Link

The past ones have been well received. And the developers are Eastern Europeans, so you can be sure that this will have minimal poz.

Video Link

Like Metokur said, this is basically "oy, you gotta license for that?" — the video game. It's set in some kind of totalitarian Britain where the government tries to control people's emotions, even though everything is falling apart. In other words, it's exactly like real Britain. Could be some interesting social commentary there, we'll have to see more.

Bethesda

Video Link

Nothing really unexpected here.

They announced the next Elder Scrolls game, but didn't say anything about it and didn't say when it'd be out, so...not much there.

Video Link

Yeah we already knew you were gonna make an ES6, Bethesda.

We got some more info on Fallout 76, but the presentation kind of raises more questions than answers.

Video Link

We still don't understand what the hell this game is. It's only online, but it is not an MMO. I guess the idea that it is closer to the bomb drops than all the other games is a mildly interesting gimmick.

Rage 2 looks pretty nice, I guess.

Video Link

The first one was rather mediocre, but it did show some promise. I'm starting to feel some post-apocalyptic fatigue, though. There's like, 10 games at E3 taking place in some kind of Mad Max type wasteland. I guess that is perhaps a comment on the general state of the collective unconscious of the Western mind, at present—we're all kind of expecting to see that, sometime in our lives, so apparently we need to play these games to get ready for it.

And I guess there's that weird Elder Scrolls mobile game. I don't know what's up with that. We'll see.

Video Link

Bethesda did manage to make the single worthwhile freemium sim in Fallout Shelter.

Square-Enix

Video Link

Zzzzzzzzzzz...

Basically nothing here.

Sony

Video Link

Sony had some pretty crazy shit on display, in spite of their boring as hell and bizarre presentation (which included a banjo guy for some inexplicable reason).

Video Link

I have no idea what the hell is going on in this trailer, but I like it. Hideo Kojima (creator of the Metal Gear series, and writer/director of most of those games) is a complete madman, and this is what happens when he's let off Konami's leash and can do whatever he wants (he quit the company after Metal Gear Solid V, and is producing this himself).

I guess the revelation that "The Last of Us 2" is going to be a Jewish lesbo simulator was pretty shocking too. I guess we have to admit though that the gameplay looks pretty sweet. Despite this thing with...sniffing the Jew dykefriend at a ballroom dance.

Video Link

That's a pretty huge departure from the zombie horror survival gameplay of the prequel. Bold move, Naughty Dog.

But this here now...

Video Link

Finally, a game when you can repel the Mongol invasion singlehandedly.

Following the lesbian theme, we got...Levitating Lesbo: The Game.

Video Link

Strange trailer, but those effects look pretty neat.

This next one hits the nail tho.

Video Link

A remake of Resident Evil 2. Should be interesting. The remake of RE1 for the Gamecube was great. I would be incredible if they remade it in the style of RE7, in first person.

Somehow, even after a total zombie overload in our culture, Resident Evil manages to be compelling.

Devolver Digital

Video Link

>Mech America great again

Yeah, this was the most entertaining presentation.

But really, the crowning trailer of E3 so far has got to be this one:

Video Link

This is the game by CD Projekt Red, the Polish developer who makes the Witcher series. So it's almost certainly going to be awesome.

And of course, there's the new Nigger's Creed:

Video Link

It's taking place in ancient Greece, this time. Yawn.

For (((whatever reason))), ancient Greece is filled with niggers.

Because obviously.

We wuz greeks.

That's most of the presentations covered. But if there's other interesting happenings during the rest of the event, I'll post an update.

UPDATE:

Here's Nintendo's full thing.

Video Link

Here's IGN's coverage of it, which is different.

Video Link

We haven't watched this yet, it just streamed a couple hours ago.

Here's the full Super Smash Brothers Ultimate reveal.

Video Link

Here's their press conference.

Video Link

And the highlights.

Video Link

It's was expected that Nintendo would beat Sony for best of show. You can be the judge of that.

DS

Singapore LIVE: Peace Document Signed! BOLTON LOSES!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
June 12, 2018

3:27 AM EST

Trump press conference coming up.

Gonna be on my new favorite gaynigger's stream. This gaynigger—his name is "Vlad" —is shittalking this kike Stone Fish.

Anyway, should be on in a couple minutes here. I'll post the full video when it's over.

Video Link

Why is this gaynigger named "Vlad"? Who is this gaynigger? He is like a quadroon. What is this show even? Is it a CBS show or is it just their YouTube channel? Why is this homosexual quadroon defending Donald Trump and Kim Jong-Un against these Jews?

Weird thing.

3:07 AM EST

Kim left Singapore.

Trump and Kim are now BFF.

Kim will be coming to Washington.

A Nobel will be given. The world will be forced to render under Trump.

This is all so beautiful. I've got a tear in my eye. One of my grandfathers went to that stupid goddamn war. My grandma always said it ruined him.

The biggest deal here: Trump now has that much more power to act on foreign policy. To do things the way he wants to do them.

The kike media is whining, saying this is all nothing, blah blah blah, Trump is friends with a dictator now, pure evil, dictator dictator dictator. Honestly, I think all that shit about death camps and so on is atrocity propaganda. None of it has ever been proven. But who gives a shit? Whose problem is that? It's not mine.

Trump won BIG here, and this is going to get these kikes off his back to a large extent. They can try to weasel around that, okay, sure, whatever. But the deal is signed and the friendship has been forged and the process will begin and it will be successful.

Now all that's left is to fire John Bolton, ally with Russia and invade Europe and depose the brutal dictator Angela Merkel. And invade Canada, Mexico, etc.

Kim has a million man army—they can help us invade Europe too. Maybe this guy does build death camps—we're going to need them in Europe for all of these brown people and kikes.

2:45 AM EST

An official statement has been signed.

BOOM.

> ZOOM IN ON THE TEXT: "President Trump committed to provide security guarantees to the DPRK, and Chairman Kim Jong Un reaffirmed his firm and unwavering commitment to complete denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula." pic.twitter.com/vXBeIMP81i
>
> — Conor Finnegan (@cjf39) June 12, 2018

COMPLETE DENUCLEARIZATION.

Here's a high res photo you can click to enlarge.

See, I wasn't even hoping for that.

You really gotta realize that Kim has a great voice. He's gotta be nervous. Holds himself very well.

Video Link

Basically, they've agreed to a commitment of protection of the Kim Regime in exchange for disarmament.

BOLTON LOSES!

TRUMP WINS!

FINALLY, TRUMP FUCKING WON SOMETHING!

IT'S A NEW ERA!

12:11 AM EST

Here's the lunch menu, in case you were wondering about that one.

> Today's working lunch menu for #TrumpKimSummit pic.twitter.com/7jJen31
>
> — Chris Sheridan (@ChrisSheridan34) June 12, 2018

11:56 PM EST

Lunch is starting.

This gaynigger on CBS (stream just below) is actually acting like a normal person. I mean, you switch from CNN with Kike Tapper their resident gaynigger to this gaynigger (I don't even know who he is). But he's acting way normal compared to the irate kikes on CNN.

I don't think I've ever watched CBS News, ever.

He has some kike on there named "Stone Fish" who is saying now that the reason Kim doesn't want to reunite with the South is that he wants to keep racial purity. The Jew Stone Fish claims the South is racemixing with the Japanese. Of course a Jew would think up that narrative. I think North Korea has put out propaganda saying that South Korean women are fucking niggers (they are for sure racist and constantly talking about the purity of the race), but I'm certain that the race-mixing numbers in South Korea are a fraction of a fraction of a percentage. I don't think that's a major concern of Kim—I think he is mostly just concerned about getting invaded and bombed.

But again—very interesting that this Jew would bring something like that up, no?

I'm going to start watching CBS more often. CNN has just gotten too cartoonish to even tolerate.

10:49 PM EST

Okay well, this is all behind door right now. They're having a lunch soon. Fox 10 stream ended, CBS has the main stream now.

Video Link

They'll have the lunch thing which I think is coming up in a few minutes.

It's about lunch time in Singapore.

9:57 PM EST

Okay well.

They're having the group meeting now.

And Bolton is in the room, though he's way at the end of the table.

I'm very disappointed to see Bolton at the table.

9:39 PM EST

So they're having a secret meeting now, 1-on-1, that will probably last a little bit I would think.

9:20 PM EST

Video Link

The handshake has happened.

It's almost too late for Bolton to screw the earth on this one.

I kinda thought Kim would be shorter. Trump is a big guy.

Here's the Fox 10 stream:

Video Link

Right now it's neocons saying that we should invade North Korea.

DS

Vidya Review: Overload

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
June 11, 2018

Video Link

This is eerily familiar...

The danger with "retro remakes" these days is that developers often just apply a retro coat of paint over ill-fitting modern game design. This is why a lot of people panned Duke Nukem Forever, with its regenerating health, checkpoints and limited weapon slots.

In spite of this, a lot of people still crave these older franchises who date from the time before everything was pozzed to all hell. So they got churned out regularly, often not being very good.

But then Doom 2016 came along, and showed the world how it's done. Fast combat, open large levels that demand exploration, no pointless story and dialogue, but executed with great production values and tight game feel. In other words, the spirit of the original with modern technology.

Overload is a remake of Descent very much in the same vein as Doom 2016. And that's a very, very good thing.

Descent was freaking awesome.

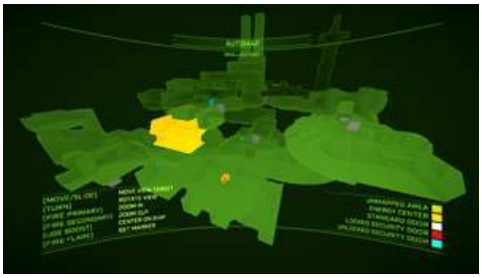
Descent was a first person shooter that gave you full, 6-axis control over a ship as you navigate complex, maze-like levels and fight armies of robots coming at you from every direction. There was nothing quite like it these days—until Overload came along.

Made by a lot of the same people who developed the original Descent, Overload is a spiritual successor which aims to capture the same gameplay while updating the presentation to modern standards, and it mostly works very well.

If you've never played Descent, then you haven't experienced anything quite like this.

The levels are labyrinthine and non-linear, consisting of branching paths, bigger rooms with multiple exits and hosts of secret passages leading to various pickups and upgrades. Exploring the levels is at least half of the gameplay, and while it's very easy to get lost, the game provides two great tools to find your way around.

First is a very good automap system.

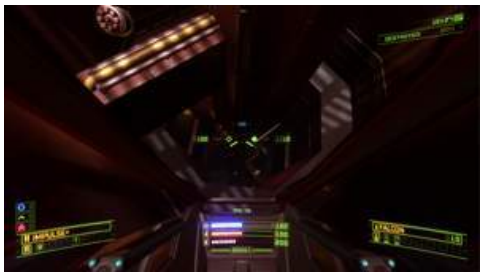


The automap seems to be a 1:1 representation of the level geometry—including secret areas. So a careful exploration of this screen will be immensely helpful in finding your way around and getting as many secrets as possible.

This was enough for me.

However, like the original Descent, Overload also provides a "guide" that can show you the way to your next objectives. This is accessible at the press of a button, and takes the form of a little holographic robot that flies out in front of you, patiently waiting for you and even coming back to fetch you if you fail to follow it.

So for those who don't have the best sense of direction, using this feature could be a lifesaver. Especially since these levels are the most "3d" you've likely ever seen in a video game. Doors and passages can be found on the floors and ceilings as well as the walls. Often, you'll have to completely change your orientation as you move from area to area to better navigate the new, complex geometries of each room.



I hope you don't easily get queasy, because this is one disorienting game.

But actually navigating the levels is a pleasure, since the controls are smooth and responsive. I've played with a PS3 gamepad connected to my PC, and the default mappings were very workable. Mouse and keyboard controls are equally well implemented.

But getting used to constantly having 6 degrees of freedom does take a little while. And while the early levels are fairly forgiving, the game will quickly start expecting you to dodging incoming fire from multiple direction while weaving around the tight level geometry.

Yeah, the game is quite hard. Enemies pack quite a wallop—if you let a few robots concentrate their fire on you for just a few seconds, you're a goner. Luckily, pretty much everything enemies throw at you can be dodged or otherwise avoided if you're skilled enough. And when things start to click and you're dancing around, dodging missiles and laser blasts by the skin of your teeth, it feels great.

The combat is very fast pace, as most enemies are not bullet sponges, and you always have more powerful weapons to deal with tougher enemies. So combat is mostly about eliminating enemies quickly while dodging incoming fire and navigating the environment.

On thing I'm not too fond of, however, is the occasional use of "jump scares." Basically, you pick up an item, and a bunch of monsters spawn directly behind you and attack immediately. IMO, that's just bullshit, I'm sorry. Luckily, it doesn't happen too often.

But the overall gameplay shows clear inspiration from Doom 2016, right down to small but welcome touches, such as the slowdown effect when selecting weapons. You're incentivized to explore levels with upgrade points scattered in various secret locations. Enemies drop health and ammo to force you to deal with enemies aggressively in order to stay in the game. The story is entirely optional and never gets in the way.

The game is brought to life with some sharp and pleasing visuals, which are definitely easy on the eyes. But you have to adjust your expectations—the levels are very simple in terms of details. Their mostly simple geometry is coupled with nice textures, but you don't have a AAA level of detail and polish bringing these mines and space stations to life.

On the other hand, the combat effects and animations are definitely top tier. The weapons pack a great punch, and blowing up the enemy robots feels just as satisfying as it should.

You'll also be delighted by the music, which is definitely a throwback to 90s synthwave tracks. Allister Mark Brimble is the composer, returning from the original Descent.

Video Link

Oh, yeah. I'm ready to blast some robots now.

The sound effects for the enemy robots also deserve special mention. Instead of generic robotic sounds, they gave them these incredibly creepy monstrous roars, evoking goblins or ogres rather than mining machinery. Each enemy type has it's own sounds, too, making it easy to recognize the opposition by sound alone.

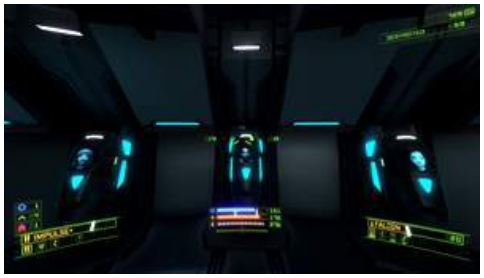
POZ factor

So, the great question: how pozzed is it?

Thankfully, very little. But it's my duty to inform you of every little bit I find. The story in the game takes a complete backseat, being relayed through scattered audio logs. The gist of it is that some scientist in charge of deep space mining colonies is trying to cut ties with the corporation which owns said colonies, so that he might use them for his own mysterious purposes.

You're an agent of the corporation sent to save the survivors in each station and basically wreck everything in sight.

Frankly, the only annoying stuff I could find is that among the surviving "engineers" you have to rescue are some women and non-Whites.



They're in cryogenic tubes. Also, you don't actually have to rescue them, lol.

Similarly, you sometimes have panels on the walls listing employees, and those include women for whatever reason.

Yeah, I'm sure fat women will be lining up to go work in mines in the outer solar system.

But these are background elements you're unlikely to even notice unless you're paying close attention.

So I'll give this one a POZ rating of 1/10.

Overall

If you're a fan of tough, old-school shooting games with tight single-player campaigns, Overload will be a welcome change of pace from the endless slew of generic FPS games being released these days. The campaign should last you anywhere from 8 to 15 hours, and you can always attempt it on higher difficulty levels once you're done.

The game also features a simple but enjoyable arcade mode, which puts you in small arenas flooded with wave after wave of enemies, and logs your high scores.

While there are some multiplayer deathmatch-type game modes, there's unfortunately no cooperative gameplay. I haven't played any multiplayer, and thus can't comment on that aspect of the game, but this is definitely a single-player focused experience in any case.

For the current price of $30 on steam, it's definitely worth checking out.

DS